AFL-CIO STATES TERMS

It Won't Vote On Pay Board

. . . Meany Speech Slashing

•The New York Times

Bal Harbour, Fla. — The AFL-CIO voted Thursday to remain on the Pay Board — but to stop immediately cooperating with the board's activities.

"If the President doesn't like the terms we lay down here, let him kick us off," AFL-CIO President George Meany told a cheering convention of the federation.

Starting Thursday, the three AFL-CIO representatives on the tripartite Pay Board will refuse to cast their votes on most matters before the board. The federation will also not tell its member organizations to abide by the board's decisions, a measure that could lead to strikes and labor unrest. The other labor members of the Pay Board — the Teamsters and the United Auto Workers — had no immediate comment on the action.

20 To 1 Odds

The federation's vote came shortly after Meany made a slashing speech offering 20 to 1 odds against the success of President Nixon's economic policies and scathingly attacking Nixon, his administration and individual members of the Pay Board.

Meany described the Pay Board as a "stacked deck." He accused it first of trying to goad labor into walking out and then trying to divide the five labor members by offering them separate "under the table deals."

Later, the federation's executive council issued the recommendation to the convention that its representatives remain on the Pay Board "only so long as a reasonable hope exists of securing recognition of the validity of contracts and achieving justice for working people generally — including most particularly those with low or substandard incomes and those without the protection of strong bargaining representatives."

Meany said, "We are going to say that we are not going to cooperate. Those are our terms for staying on. We say there is little hope, but we still hold on to the idea that maybe somebody will see the light."

Little Voting

A spokesman for Meany said later the noncooperation of the AFL-CIO representatives on the board will take a form of a refusal to participate in board votes. The only exception would be if the labor ballot could cause a victory favorable to a union's demand for justice, case by case.

Meany, in describing the "birth of Phase 2" of Nixon's economic program, said: "Obstetricians, I think, would refer to it as a breach presentation."

He also recalled that when the Pay Board was being formed, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, called and asked him to get information on Judge George Boldt, who, Hodgson reported, was being considered as chairman of the board.

Three days later, according to Meany, Hodgson again called him up and told him to forget about Boldt as chairman. He quoted Hodgson as saying Boldt "is totally and completely unfit for this job. .

"Thursday night, I was informed by Hodgson," Meany continued, "that Boldt was going to be chairman."

'Hatchet Man'

Meany also had sharp words for Arnold R. Weber, the former executive director of the Cost of Living Council who is now one of the five public members of the Pay Board. He described Weber as the government's "hatchet man" and "the fellow that has been doing all the dirty work."

Meany described Neil Jacoby, an economist who is also a public member of the Pay Board, as a "conservative" "who helped fashion two recessions." Another public member, William Kaples, president of Kenyon College, was described as "a nice guy" but one who represented the business viewpoint. Kermit Gordon, the fifth public member, was identified simply as being "onetime director of the budget."

Finally, Meany turned to Nixon, saying this was the first time in American history that a president had "ever set out to control the economic life of the nation in peacetime."

"It is no disrespect to the President to say that "on the basis of his track record, we don't have very much confidence."

Nixon is scheduled to speak to the convention here Friday.

Draft Dodgers' Partings Hard

The following story, last of three about Nebraska draft dodgers now living in Canada, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from North Platte.

By MARY HUFFMAN

Winnipeg, Manitoba — As Doug Milander watched the Northwest Orient jet fade into the clouds this summer with his wife, Mary, on board, it was, he said, "almost too much to bear."

Her destination: Elm Creek, Neb. It was her first trip back to the United States since their decision to flee to Canada in violation of the United States Selective Service Act in August 1969.

She was only about five hours from her former home, but her husband found it difficult to imagine the freedom to come and go across that long unguarded U.S. Canadian border.

"It was really hard watching her leave," Milander said. "But she had to get it out of her system. She had really been looking forward to it."

$82 Phone Bill

Their phone bill during her month in Nebraska: $82.

Not less than a month later, Mrs. Dale Fechner also made a trip back to Nebraska — to her hometown of Omaha. Her husband stayed in Winnipeg.

Both men are draft dodgers. Their wives can come and go freely, but the dodgers themselves know if they cross the border it's a $10,000 fine or five years in prison. So they don't risk coming to Nebraska.

Of the Nebraska draft dodgers in Winnipeg who consented to interviews with a visiting American reporter, Milander, formerly of Norfolk, is the only one who has not been indicted — yet.

He Could Try

He could try to come back. But, he asks: Why use Canada when we needed it to escape from the States and then turn our backs on it when it's safe?

"I've never killed anyone yet. You defy your country and you are apathetic . . . I could head some draft dodging group here, but why? I'll just sit back and look out for myself."

Meanwhile, Milander's parents have been on the receiving end of repercussions to his exile. They said they would rather not talk about it. The other parents feel the same way. What can they say?

Milander said: "It was embarrassing to my parents. I was the first evader from Madison County."

Bothered By Reactions

In Albion, Neb., Dale Fechner's parents have been "bothered" by townspeople's reactions, Dale said.

"I test people out and ask them what they think of dodgers," Fechner said, "and I understand my father is starting to do the same. It's not so bad now as when I first left."

The Fechners are the only

WORK DONE . . .

State Music Educators Open Meet

Invite 800 students and 600 teachers to Lincoln for three days.

Then promise 650 beds in 400 homes in the city at a rate of $2 per person per day (bed and breakfast).

Next ask for volunteers to provide the beds, so the money can go to a foreign exchange program.

Request use of about half of a local high school building and the cooperation of its students and teachers and administrators and parents, so that school can go on at the same time.

Finally, invite an impressive list of guest lecturers, professionals and groups to help out, and then plan a grueling series of rehearsals and performances.

Total all that up, and more, and what it takes to host the Nebraska Music Educators Association annual convention and clinic becomes apparent.

The guests arrived Thursday, converging on Lincoln High School from all parts of the Cornhusker State.

But the real work was already done—the packets for each participate were ready, the homes and beds and hosts identified and notified, the exhibitors booths, and displays set up, the scheluling and finishing touches arranged—well, mostly that is, as was evident in mid-afternoon when Lincoln High Principal William Bogar was hustling to find 65 extra chairs for rehearsals.

Highlight of the three-day affair will be the final concert at 7:30 Saturday evening at Pershing Municipal Auditorium, where students selected in try-outs around the state will gather for orchestral, band and choral concerts under the direction of guest conductors.

Before then, however, the students will have participated in five rehearsals, second of which began at 8:30 Friday morning.

Only break comes Friday night with "an evening at Wesleyan," featuring a concert by the Pro Arte String Quartet and a dance at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Meanwhile, the music educators from schools and colleges in the state will be holding meetings at locations throughout the city, and new officers of the state association will be announced Friday night during a banquet at the East Hills Supper Club.

Beds and breakfasts for about 650 of the guests are being donated in support of the American Field Service student exchange program, which will realize about $2,700 from the venture.

Corporate Income Tax Increase To Be Asked

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's interim study committee on taxes voted Thursday to recommend to the 1972 session of the Legislature raising the corporate income tax to 25% of the personal income tax rate.

The corporate income tax is currently 20% of the state's personal income tax. At the current personal rate of 13% for 1972, this would mean the corporate tax would be 3.25%.

The recommendation was one of seven made by the five-man committee after a series of public hearings held throughout the state during the summer and fall months. However, the motions can only be recommended by the committee. They must be introduced and approved by the unicameral and the governor before they become law.

The committee also recommended a personal property tax exemption over a five-year period totaling 90%. The exemption would include farm and business equipment and inventory.

Beginning in 1973, the proposal would exempt 30% of an individual's personal property from taxation. For the next two years another 20% would be added each year to the exemption. This would bring the exemption to 70% after three years.

The rest of the exemption would be added in 10% allotments over the following two years, culminating in the final 90% exemption figure in 1977.

The $14.4 million revenue loss to the state for the first year of the exemption must be made up by increasing the sales and income tax rates. How much this would raise the rates the senators could not say.

Two similar personal property exemption bills were vetoed during the last session by Gov. J. James Exon. The first would have provided the same 90% exemption in only 3 years instead of 5.

The second, a compromise at 50% over 3 years, was also nixed by the governor during the final days of the session. Currently, Nebraskans have no form of a personal property tax exemption.

A third proposal the committee forwarded would abolish the current 2½-cent refund and the five-cent aviation fuel tax and replace it with separate rates on fuel on private and commercial aircraft.

The tax rates on aviation fuel for private aircraft would be four cents on a gallon, and the commercial interests would pay two cents per gallon.

Regarding the effort to find an equitable basis for taxing mobile homes, the committee headed by Jules Burbach of Crofton recommended a valuation procedure similar to that on autos. In other words, a kind of a "Blue Book" would be used to determine the value of different models. The motion also forwarded "a reasonable provision" for taxing household goods in mobile homes.

In other action, the senators took issue with Gov. J. James Exon on the matter of the elimination of the sales tax on food.

The five men voted unanimously in favor of "keeping the food tax credit concept as it is."

Gov. Exon and the Democratic Party are currently supporting an initiative petition drive to eliminate the sales tax and the credit on food purchases.

Other resolutions included:

—a constitutional amendment to replace the Tax Commissioner as a member of the Board of Equalization with a county official "to be selected in a manner to be determined by the Legislature."

—a resolution asking the Legislature to allow the committee to continue its tax equalization study.

Man Killed In 2-Car Crash

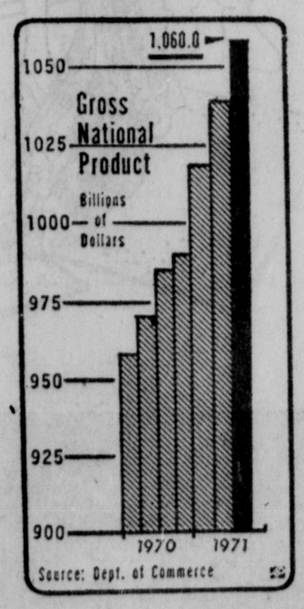
A headon crash on Nebraska Highway late Thursday evening claimed the life of one man and hospitalized another, Lincoln police reported.

Identity of the victims was not immediately available.

According to police reports, the vehicle driven by the man killed was eastbound on Nebraska Highway between 40th and 48th Streets when it was on collision with a westbound vehicle.

Doe Bounces In, Out Of House

Pompeii, Mich. (UPI) — A whitetail doe, apparently being tracked by hunters on the opening day of deer hunting, went out of her way to escape and joined the Homer Schroeder family for breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Schroeder said the doe broke through their dining room window, crashed into a stove, bounced off a wall, and ran out.



UP IT GOES

The gross national product has reached a seasonally adjusted rate of $1.06 trillion in the third quarter, a 7% economic advance in terms of current, inflated dollars. When adjusted for inflation using 1958 dollars, the gain was 3.9%. The GNP is the total of U.S. goods and services.

Senate Group OKs Retroactive Wages

Washington (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee Thursday approved 14 to 0 legislation to overrule the Pay Board and grant retroactively most pay raises lost in the wage freeze.

The committee added the measure to a bill to extend President Nixon's authority over the economy for a year past its present expiration date of April 30. The bill is scheduled for Senate debate next Monday.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said he was "delighted" by the committee's action that would instruct Nixon to permit payment of most of the hundreds of millions of dollars in wage hikes held up during the recent wage-price freeze.

The Pay Board's ruling against most retroactive pay is a chief cause of labor's bitter quarrel with new wage controls.

The Senate panel approved 14 to 0 an amendment to grant retroactive pay raises unless the President determines them to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the Pay Board's guidelines.

Earlier it rejected 9 to 6 a provision that would have applied a different standard for granting retroactive pay, making it automatic unless an employer could prove it to be an undue burden.

The Senate committee's counterpart in the House had earlier approved, by a one-vote margin, a similar amendment to allow retroactive pay in most cases. However, the House Banking Committee has put off final action on the overall bill until Nov. 30, and opponents of retroactive pay may yet reverse that vote.

The Senate committee also approved an amendment by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., to approve retroactive pay under contracts negotiated by state and local governments, a measure intended to apply to teachers.

The president of the National Education Association, Donald E. Morrison, promptly praised the action. "Naturally I'm pleased that the Senate committee came to grips with the problem," he said.

Corruption Rife In Political Processes, Says Gardner

Hot Springs, Ark. (AP) — John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, a national lobbying group, said Thursday that most of America's political processes had become a "vast game of barter and purchase" behind the scenes.

Speaking at the Young Democrats' National Convention, Gardner said this involved campaign contributions, appointments to high office, business favors and favorable legal decisions and location of defense installations.

"It is a game that is going on all the time at every level of government," he said.

Gardner is a former secretary of health, education and welfare.

He said many men and women in politics were honest and decent, but that it was difficult for them to survive, and getting harder.

He declared there had been a loss of public confidence in America's leadership and governmental and business institutions and disillusionment with the Republican and Democratic Parties. He said discontent was not limited to the black, poor and young.

Many Are 'Frustrated'

"The middle-level executive feels as frustrated and as far from power as the young rebel," Gardner said. "The suburban housewife feels as victimized as the ghetto resident. So does the blue collar worker."

He said these feelings "could constitute an explosive charge that could splinter our two major parties. It could lead us to follow the shallowest of demagogues. It could result in massive refusals to vote. It could lead to increasing violence or to severe repressive measures."

He said corruption was the most serious reason for the failure of political and governmental institutions.

"Everyone knows politics has its seamy side, but the ordinary citizen doesn't know how enormous that seamy side really is," Gardner said. "Nor does he know what a high percentage of his tax dollar goes to support it.

No End To Ingenuity

"Armed with the power and money we give them with our votes and our tax dollars, politicians are well-equipped to play their part in the cycle of favors and obligations. There isn't any end to the ways they can favor their friends and allies."

Gardner called for campaign spending controls, restrictions on lobbying and full disclosure of conflict of interest by each public official. He also urged enactment of federal "freedom of information" legislation so all public business would be conducted in public.

Gardner asked the Young Democrats to help "remake the political process" in the nation.

"If you don't, an enraged citizenry may remake it without your help — and the outcome may or may not be what wise and reasonable men may wish."

New York Times News Summary

Committee Rejects Limitation On War Money

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — By a vote of 14-to-10, the Senate Appropriations Committee rejected an amendment to the defense appropriations bill limiting its funds to withdrawing troops from Indochina. But the committee did cut $3.3 billion from the Pentagon appropriation and voted 14-to-13 to require the withdrawal of 60,000 American troops from Europe by next June. (More on Page 29.) Meanwhile, the administration, even before the vote to reduce the American troop level in Europe, asserted that such a unilateral move would take away a bargaining point in possible talks with the Soviet Union on mutual force reductions in Europe. The administration statement followed a surprise subcommittee vote Wednesday for the cutback.

Aid Funding Extended

Washington — Funding for the nation's foreign aid program was extended to Dec. 8 as a House-Senate conference committee agreed to continue the program at slightly less than the current spending rate in order to give Congress time to work settle differences over a regular authorization bill. The House has asked for a $3.4 billion program, the Senate for two programs totalling $2.67-billion.

Deal With Russians To Proceed

Washington — Licenses allowing American business to sell $500-million worth of heavy equipment to the Soviet Union for construction of a truck factory there were issued by the Commerce Department. Licenses for a similar amount had been granted earlier.

AFL-CIO Refuses To Vote

Relief In Jeopardy

United Nations, N.Y. — Increased military activity within East Pakistan, by the West Pakistanis and by the guerrilla forces of the East Pakistanis, has jeopardized the continuation of the U.N. relief operations there, the operation's head warned. Active opposition from "any quarter" would compel the operation to end, he said.

Pollution Shutdown Ordered

Birmingham, Ala. — After air pollution here climbed to a level considered dangerous to the public health, a federal judge ordered 23 area industries, including U.S. Steel, to cease all operations. The same stagnant air mass was said to be potentially dangerous to several areas, including the New York area.

Democrats Win Big Vote

Washington —Democrats in the Senate turned back, 49 to 46, a Republican attempt to kill their plan to help the major party presidential candidates next year with money checked off on income-tax returns. (More on Page 2.)

Millionaires Publicity-Shy

New York — the 60 millionaires who met in a private luncheon last month in an attempt to form a lobbying group for governmental and political reform were so upset over news stories about the luncheon that they have largely abandoned their effort, according to an organizer of the luncheon.

Democrats Win Politically Potent Vote

Washington (UPI) — Liberal and Southern Democrats set aside their differences Thursday and defeated Republican attempts to kill their plan to finance presidential election campaigns with money volunteered by taxpayers.

With their party's success in financing the effort to deny President Nixon a second term riding on the outcome, all the Democratic presidential hopefuls in the Senate were on hand for the vote on GOP amendments that would have scuttled the measure.

The Democrats said the initial test vote showed they had the strength to pass the legislation — and attach it to a bill Nixon could not veto without jeopardizing his economic program which may be vital to his own re-election hopes.

$47.1 Million Kitty

At issue was a plan to allow taxpayers to check a box on their 1971 tax returns and earmark $1 of their taxes, or $2 for a joint return, to a fund which would provide $20.4 million for each of the two major party presidential candidates and $6.3 million for a third-party candidate.

Presidential candidates could choose not to take the public funds and finance their campaigns from private contributions, the traditional method. But if a candidate took public money, he could not spend more than the $20.4 million.

This would put Nixon in a bind.

If he signed the bill, he would be guaranteeing the hard-pressed Democrats, still $9.3 million in debt from 1968, a fund with which to run against him. If he chose to rely on private funds, the Democrats would charge him with "buying the election." They said he already has budgeted $40 million for his 1972 campaign.

Nixon spent $29.5 million in 1968. Hubert H. Humphrey, his Democratic opponent, spent $12.6 million.

'Fraud' Cried

Angry but outnumbered Republicans called the plan a "fraud" and "a raid on the Treasury."

"This smells!" shouted Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., pointing a finger at the Democrats. "You're trying to legislate yourself back into office!"

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, also speaking in a shout, replied that "a rare bird indeed" is the elected official who is not influenced by the people who give him big sums of money.

The first crucial Senate vote came on an amendment by Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., to delete the heart of the proposal — the $1 tax checkoff. He was defeated, 49 to 46.

In a rare display of party unity, 49 Democrats and no Republicans voted no. Forty-three Republicans and only three Democrats — Harry F. Byrd Jr., Va., Sam J. Ervin, N.C., and John L. McClellan, Ark. — voted yes.

Staley Accuses Butz Of Agribusiness Bias

Washington (AP) — The head of the National Farmers Organization made a charge of agribusiness bias Wednesday against Earl L. Butz, nominated to be secretary of agriculture.

NFO President, Oren Lee Stanley, said even though Butz has resigned his directorships on large agriculture related firms "it is unlikely he will be able to resign his longtime agribusiness biases."

Testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee, which is considering Butz' nomination, Stanley said "there is no point in mincing words on what this confirmation vote means."

The Senate will select "between an historic commitment to opportunity for people on the land and a goal of mechanical efficiency that drives people out of rural areas, eliminates farm and small business enterprises, and destroys rural communities," Stanley said.

Stanley said naming Butz to the job would be like naming the president of General Motors Corp. as secretary of labor and appointing AFL-CIO President George Meany secretary of commerce.

Butz testified earlier in the day that he is for the family farmer.

"But I don't want to freeze him in concrete where he can't make an adequate living for his family," Butz said.

On numerous specific questions from committee members Butz declined to say what his policy might be, saying he is not ready to commit himself or the administration to a set course.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, agreed with Stanley and other Butz critics that some farm crop prices are too low but said he is satisfied Butz will work to improve the status of American farmers.

"I'm also aware we're in the throes of an election campaign" and some Butz opponents might be eyeing the possible political mileage involved in defeating a presidential nomination, Dole said.

Sooner Fires Blamed On Arsonists

. . . 27 Injured; Damaged Set At $200,000

World News

Norman, Okla. (UPI) — Arsonists, working at night, ignited a flurry of fires on the racially troubled University of Oklahoma campus early Thursday, injuring 27 persons.

Six of the injured were visiting bankers sleeping in a dormitory.

"We have been attacked by people under cover of darkness, intent on injuring, damaging and destroying," said University President Paul W. Sharp.

The fires were set a week after a group of black students gave a list of alleged racial "atrocities" on campus to the university regents. They also came one week before the campus plays host to the biggest college football game of the year between Oklahoma and Nebraska — the nation's No. 2 and No. 1 teams, respectively.

None of the injuries was serious — most coming from smoke inhalation. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

Norman police Capt. Joe Hyde said he thought all the fires were set by arsonists. "That's just too much coincidence to be spontaneous," he said.

Fires were reported at 4:30 a.m. at the Walker Tower dormitory and the Wilson Center cafeteria. An old Quonset hut was aflame an hour later and fire destroyed that structure and spread to two other barracks like buildings.

An arsonist was blamed for a small fire at the administration building last week.

The dormitory where students attending a seminar and the bankers were sleeping was evacuated quickly when the fire was reported. But smoke damage was heavy and many of those who suffered smoke inhalation wandered through the halls, unable to see.

"We were crawling on our hands and knees. You couldn't even see anything," said Leo Salmons, a banker from Hammond, Ind.

Curtis, Hruska On Losing Side

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska's two Republican senators, Carl T. Curtis and Roman L. Hruska, voted in favor of deleting the tax checkoff provision. The amendment lost, 49-46.

U.S. Is Blamed

Concepcion, Chile (AP) — Fidel Castro admitted that Cuba is having industrial production problems and claimed it was all the fault of the United States.

Red China Sets Off N-Blast

Washington (AP) — The United States announced Thursday that Communist China had set off a nuclear explosion in the atmosphere, the first nuclear test by that country since Oct. 14, 1970.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the test — conducted in the vicinity of Lop Nur, in western China, had an explosive yield equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, the same size as the primitive atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima by the United States.

Republican Fund-Raiser Picks Muskie

King, who said he has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for Nixon and other GOP candidates, said he is joining the Democratic Party and will support Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for president.

"If I were to sum up in one word my reason for supporting the senator from Maine as opposed to the President of the United States, that one word would be — character," King said.

"Mr. Muskie has it," King said, "Mr. Nixon does not.

King said a long string of events led to his split with Nixon and the Republicans, but he said the "last straw" was the tentative proposal by Nixon of Mildred Lillie and Herschel Friday for the Supreme Court. Neither was nominated after the American Bar Association withheld its endorsement.

Parting Hard When Wives Of Draft Dodgers Go Home

couple who have been inside the United States since their immigration. They moved to Canada before he was to be inducted, and went back to Nebraska a year ago August on vacation.

"We weren't really happy with the way things were. It seems like everything is backward in Nebraska," Fechner said.

Now the Fechners are looking forward to Canadian citizenship, for which they will apply after living in Winnipeg five years.

"We'll let Jeromy (their 2-year-old son) choose if he wants to be a Canadian citizen," he said.

Keep In Contact

All of the draft dodgers keep in contact with home more by telephone than by letter. It takes a letter about four or five days to get from Winnipeg to Nebraska.

Their parents visit at least once or twice a year. They are a Pony Express service to and from home to deliver messages and packages to all the exiles.

The last time John Dietz' parents went to visit, they had an additional reason for making the trip. They were looking for real estate near Winnipeg, with the possibility of retiring in Manitoba.

"We've noticed how Winnipeg is much like Lincoln, with rolling hills around the city," they said, relaxing in their Omaha home. "But we don't want to live right in the city of Winnipeg."

There is one drawback. Their son John, who was the first Nebraska draft dodger in Winnipeg, will be eligible for a Canadian passport in 2½ years. He could then visit Europe.

"We're not going to follow the boy all over the place," his father said.

Saving For Retirement

When Dietz picked Winnipeg on the map, he took into consideration the proximity for his parents, who would make the trip by car or bus. Now they are saving for retirement near Winnipeg.

Dietz' mother and father, Eugene, 62, and Ruth, 56, say they don't blame their son for not going to the war. Struggling to keep back the tears, Mrs. Dietz said she is both happy and sad her son is exiled in Canada.

"We're very much against the war, so why should he even go if he doesn't believe in it?" they asked.

They were eager for news about John. And they pointed proudly to a picture of John at his last job, at Manitoba Centennial Corp. It is displayed on the bookcase in the living room—the most prominent place.

"Typical Canadian"

"Doesn't he look like a Viking . . . a typical Canadian?" his father asked. His mother pulled out a scrapbook with news clippings and pictures of John at the University of Nebraska.

"We hated not to see him get his diploma," they said. Dietz left the country two months before graduation.

Both Dietz and his parents recalled how the FBI came to the graduation ceremony and asked friends if they had seen him around.

The draft dodgers themselves are more relaxed talking about their families than the other way around. They're sensitive, but not afraid to talk.

They joked about not ever being able to return, how they miss cornfed Nebraska beef, and they ask questions about the University:

"Is Professor Lee still there? . . . How has the campus changed? . . . Have they changed hours for girls in the dorm?"

Racial Situation

Dietz wanted an update on the racial situation in Omaha . . . and he didn't know Ernie Chambers was in the Legislature.

The Fechners were surprised to hear that Norbert Tiemann is no longer governor. "Who's this Exon?" they asked.

When they get together, especially with another Nebraskan, the conversation turns to "back home."

And there's the inevitable fear of a sickness or a death in the family.

"I've been lucky," said Dietz. "No relatives have really been sick."

"The FBI checks out funerals, you know," Dietz said.

Milander volunteered: "What bothers me most is that I can't go back for my parents' funerals."

Didn't Think About

This is one of the consequences the draft dodgers didn't really think about when they cut their ties with America. They were younger then, and so were their parents.

Johnson, who said his father cried when he fled, also said his parents have calmed down since he came to Winnipeg about a year and a half ago. But when he asked them if they would be interviewed, they said no.

"The real bummer," Johnson said, "is not being able to go back when your parents die. They devote their entire lives to you . . . and you won't even be there . . ."

Johnson has said just what was on their minds . . . they all agreed.

Not that they are going to sit there and brood about it . . . it just happens to be soemthing very close to them. And the parental visits are getting fewer.

Dodger Paul Norton's wife Sylvia of North Platte wrote from Toronto: "We are sorry Paul cannot visit the United States—especially as his parents are getting older and it gets harder for them to make the trip . . ."

Only Hope

Their only hope about ever returning, although they don't really think about it, is if an amnesty is granted.

"But we're established here now. Why pick up and start all over again?" asks Dale Fechner.

If there were an amnesty, the draft dodgers would not return, they say. However, they would jump at the chance for a visit with friends and family.

Presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has urged general amnesty for all those "who went into exile or to jail" to protest the Vietnam war.

Until that happens, the draft dodgers will continue to salute the Maple Leaf and continue to go on living and working in Winnipeg, Vancouver, Montreal, Waterloo. . .

Canadian Reaction

Which raises the question: How do Canadians react to the American immigrants? Do the Americans pose a threat to the job market?

The official Canadian line: "Canada welcomes people of good character and in good health, who have the education, training, skills (or qualifications) and personal attributes to settle there permanently and to share in the country's growth and prosperity."

On the other hand, "Most Canadians are slightly anti-American," said Ron Goodrich, draft resistance coordinator in Winnipeg. "I'm a Canadian myself. And when Canadians see Americans turn their back on their country, that's one step for their opinion . . . but it's not on a personal basis."

One Canadian said "It's not that they're taking jobs away . . . they're really helping our country with their talent."

Several Canadians said they don't pay that much attention to whether a person is a draft dodger or not, and the American draft is confusing to them.

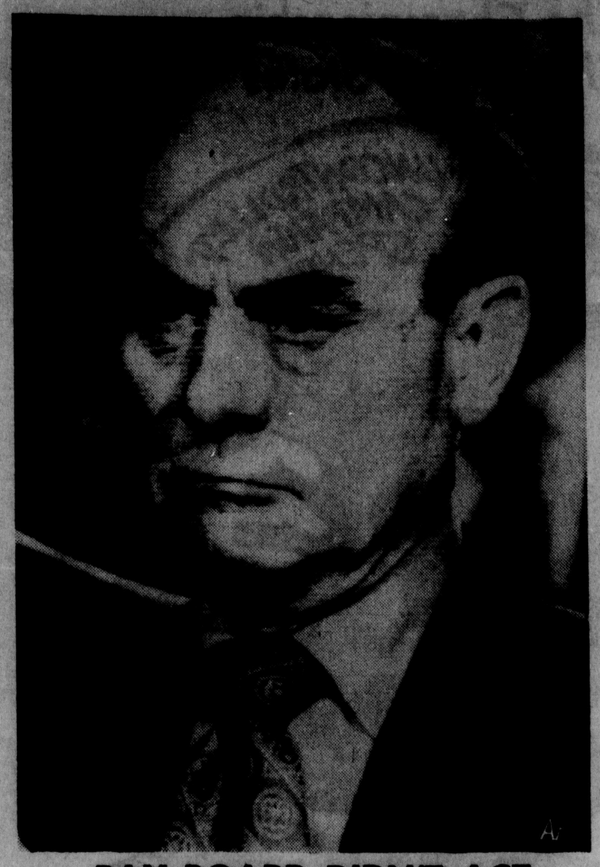
Becoming Passe

The subject of draft dodgers is becoming passe to the Canadians, because it is such a common thing. It's also becoming old hat to the draft dodgers themselves.

As far as the parents are concerned, it's hard to tell how they feel. Most of them would rather not talk about it.

As one father said: "They're our kids . . . and they'll always be our kids. That's all I can say."

That, in itself, says a lot.



PAY BOARD DIDN'T ACT

President W. A. "Tony" Boyle of the United Mine Workers emerged unsmiling from a meeting with the Pay Board Thursday. He, Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia and John Corcoran of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association argued in favor of the newly negotiated contract. Put into effect minutes before the freeze ended at midnight Saturday, the contract provides for pay raises of up to 35% over three years and 100% increase in management's pension fund contribution. The Pay Board adjourned without decision.

Suit Challenging Firing Of Kiernan Is Tentatively Scheduled For Dec. 1

By United Press International

The State Court of Industrial Relations has tentatively scheduled the suit challenging the firing of Richard Kiernan by State Engineer Thomas Doyle for trial Dec. 1.

Presiding Judge John Baylor of Lincoln said Thursday that was the date decided upon for the next sitting of the court, and the Kiernan case was one of three scheduled.

The final determination of whether the trial would actually be held on that date, Baylor said, would be decided by the attorneys.

"But we hope we can hear it at that time," the judge said.

Suit Thrown Out

The suit was thrown out on a technicality earlier this year. However, the court advised both parties there still appeared to be grounds for a suit and advised them on correct procedures to be followed in having it admitted.

The reason given by the court for its dismissal was the failure of the State Roads Department Employes Association, acting in Kiernan's behalf, to follow correct summons procedures.

Meanwhile, Lincoln attorney Douglas Marti, counsel for the Association and Kiernan, said: "We'd be ready (to go to trial) tomorrow."

Activities Cited

Kiernan was fired by Doyle allegedly for comments he made questioning the engineer's qualifications for his job. The employees association, however, contended the firing resulted from Kiernan's union activities.

Baylor said other suits scheduled for Dec. 1 involve education organizations.

One is a suit filed by the Nebraska Council of Educational Leaders against the State Education Department and the State Board of Education.

The council claims that after an election was held in December of this year, and despite its positive results, it was refused recognition as the collective bargaining agent for employes of the department's Divisions of Administrative Services and Vocational Education.

The other suit was filed by the Sidney Education Association against the Sidney Board of Education. It is also seeking recognition as a collective bargaining agent for teachers in the Sidney school system.

Nebraska Goals Committee Plans To Hold Meeting

State Economic Development Director Stanley Matzke said a meeting of the "Goals for Nemraska" committee would be held next Wednesday.

The committee was formed to draw up short and long term goals for the development of the state, Matzke said. The goals would include programs beginning at the local level, extending up through statewide efforts, he said.

Union Representation Case Said Settled Out Of Court

State Court of Industrial Relations Presiding Judge John Baylor reported Thursday a suit involving union representation of some city of Omaha employes has apparently been settled out of court.

The suit had been filed by the city of Omaha seeking a determination by the court as to which ranks of police and firemen should be covered in wage contracts.

The city contended that police sergeants and lieutenants and fire lieutenants and captains should be excluded from union contracts. The respective unions felt they should be covered.

The suit had been scheduled for trial before the industrial court on Nov. 17.

Baylor said he has been informed the matter was settled out of court, but he said no specifics on the settlement have been relayed to the industrial court.

He also said the Omaha City Council has not taken official action as yet on the settlement.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The three-part series on Nebraska draft-dogers in Canada, ending today in The Lincoln Star, settles nothing. So why, you might ask, would the newspaper run the depth-reporting piece by senior University of Nebraska journalism student Mary Huffman?

For one thing, the series is an account of people with unusual or uncommon circumstances in their lives and that fits at least one definition of news. Secondly, the series involves another element of the Vietnam war, the Asian conflict that could still prove to be President Nixon's Waterloo.

Thirdly, it focuses on what is an important question in the nation today — the question of amnesty for those who have fled the country or gone to jail to avoid wartime military service. Sen. George McGovern a Democratic presidential hopeful, has made a general amnesty a plank in his platform.

Thus, the series is a contribution to a better understanding of something that should concern all people. It really settles nothing because it probably will not change many minds.

Most people will remain either opposed to amnesty or in favor of it, sympathetic to the draft-dodgers or critical of them. For many, there is a kind of middle ground — an inability to support amnesty, and yet, a feeling of sorrow that any group of young people have found it necessary to abandon their native land and to separate themselves, perhaps permanently, from the rest of their family.

The whole question, while a highly personal one for those directly involved, is tied in with all aspects of the Vietnam war for the average citizen. As unpopular as that war is and as divisive as it has been in our nation, one finds it difficult to accept that conflict as a basis for refusal to serve the military.

One wonders, if the actions of the draft-dodgers were to be condoned through amnesty, what the ultimate impact upon the defense of the nation might be. Some see Vietnam as a special case in which the defense of the nation as it is commonly understood is not really threatened.

Some argue that Vietnam is not a typical war, not in a class even with Korea, much less World Wars I and II. It is not seen by everyone as a war in which the security of the nation is in any way at stake.

Thus, to flee from service because of Vietnam is no threat in the event of a real test of U.S. security. Presumably, the draft-dodgers of Vietnam would not be draft-dodgers in the case of unquestioned danger to the survival of this nation.

But this argument supports the concept of citizen choice that verges on anarchy. It tends to support the theory that all national interests, in the end, must submit themselves to individual tests on the part of each and every citizen.

The concept of majority rule is enhanced none by this argument. We have never lived nor patterned our institutions on extremes. Thus, our society contains some threats of what might be considered potential anarchy and some solid support of minority rights even in the face of majority opposition.

But the draft-dodging and amnesty question may represent too far or major a departure from the acceptable limits of individual rights and privileges. This is not to say that the dodgers are to be condemned nor to try to deny them in some way their right to take issue with their country as they have done.

But in exercising that right and taking that issue, the consequences fall heavily upon them. Is it better that we accept their non-conformity and make it the norm or better that we retain the principles and standards they have challenged?

There are no facts with which to answer the question, only thoughts and feelings and opinions gleaned from whatever your own storehouse of knowledge and understanding might be. Certainly, one can find no joy in personal problems or hardships of draft-dodgers, even though they voluntarily made their own decision in the matter.

At the same time, you wonder if we would have any military today if there was an amnesty and you wonder what would be the thinking of the millions of young men who have served the military during the years of Vietnam and, often times, with many misgivings. It is a hard decision to make but one we need to continue to explore until it ceases to exist or is solved.

Surplus City Property

In discussing the disposal of surplus city property Wednesday, the City-County Planning Commission, in response to a proposal by University Place interests, agreed that additional quality restaurant facilities were high on the priority list for redevelopment of that area and recommended that the city consider leasing the former University Place City Hall and fire station at 2601 No. 48th for that purpose.

The University Place Community Organization (UPCO) had been encouraged by Lincoln restaurant operator Larry Price's interest in leasing the former city hall building—on an initial five-year basis, it was indicated—as a restaurant with a "Gay Nineties" atmosphere.

Up for consideration by the commission was the question of how to dispose of city property rendered surplus after a new branch libraries and fire stations are built at other locations. The commission unanimously accepted the recommendation of the planning staff that the general policy of the city should be to hold such properties until adjacent lands could be accumulated to provide larger building sites for new businesses or be used as trading stock so that land might be more easily accumulated in any portion of a particular business district.

In view of that recommendation and unless another type of public use of the No. 48th property looms immediately on the horizon, it would seem consistent with the city's area redevelopment plans that a mutually profitable lease arrangement for the use of the former city hall and fire station in University Place as a restaurant be encouraged and permitted by the City Council.

The situation would not be unique. The city now leases other public property for commercial uses in abeyance of public use or otherwise disposing of it.

In general, the proposed short-term lease does not run contrary to any plans for the coordinated disposition of surplus city property and it appears that it would benefit the future development of the University Place area.

Taxpayers To Finance Election?

That "salute to the President" dinner extravaganza staged by the Republican's some nights ago must have provided some impetus for Senate Democrats to unite as they did Thursday in keeping alive Sen. John O. Pastore's plan for voluntary taxpayer financing of the 1972 presidential election.

The kick-off GOP fundraising affair netted an estimated $5 million for the Republican campaign fund next year. And with the money coming that easily, more must be readily in sight. The Democrats, on the other hand, are over $9 million in debt from 1968 and have no hopes of coming close to matching the Republican war chest.

It's little wonder, then, that the Pastore plan inspired party solidarity among the outs. Under the plan, a taxpayer could check a special box on his tax form to allow use of $1 of his taxes (or $2 in case of a joint return) to help pay the cost of presidential campaigning next year. It would provide $20.4 million for each major party and $6.3 million for George Wallace if he should decide to run as a third party candidate. A nominee could decide not to use the government funds and rely on private financing. But if he accepted federal money, he would have to agree not to use any funds from other sources.

The plan would be the solution, among other things, to the Democrats' financial problems. And it would force President Nixon to choose between campaigning on the same financial footing as the Democrats or face the charge of "going to the fat cats," as Republican Sen. Norris Cotton put it.

By a strict party line vote, Senate Democrats Thursday defeated, 49-46, a Republican challenge to the tax bill amendment. No Republicans joined the Democrats in the vote and only three Democrats strayed from their party on the issue.

Aside from the obvious benefits to the financially troubled Democrats, the public campaign financing plan has intrinsic merit to it, in that it removes the practice or suspicion of belonging to any special interest.

Perhaps a better campaign financing scheme will be offered, but this appears to be among the best so far.

Union On The Campus

Interests In Common

There may not be a massive cry for union organization among the faculty members at the University of Nebraska today, but it's becoming more and more apparent that the issues are there.

And if the issues are there, so is the potential.

That the issues exist (along with professors who are concerned about them) is no longer any question.

And it's just as true that it's not only those professors who are willing to accept a union label that are ready to do something about it.

This week, for example, officers of the local chapters of the American Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO union, and the American Association of University Professors, announced they had decided to form joint committees to deal with three issues of importance to faculty members.

That's new. And it's significant.

It's significant, in one aspect, that AAUP officers are willing to see those letters, in print, alongside AFT.

That alone is bound to turn off a few of the more staid members of the faculty.

It's also significant that leaders of both groups are meeting and then admitting that they found they "had a lot of common interest" and "agreed to cooperate."

Then they said they were forming joint committees on academic due process, salary inequities and fringe benefits (not salary levels, you'll note), and employment discrimination against women.

It's not particularly surprising that the AAUP and the AFT hold virtually the same positions on a number of issues—the AAUP has long been in the business of trying to assure academic freedoms (including academic due process) and it has shown more than a passing interest in seeking that salaries and fringe benefits are at acceptable levels.

But the AAUP has depended largely on persuasion to meet its goals, while the AFT is embracing collective bargaining.

That is the difference.

So, while it's not surprising to learn that the two groups have common interests and that they agree on a lot of issues, it is important that they are admitting that.

☆ ☆ ☆

The AAUP has been around a long time—nearly 60 years nationally.

Its conservative members here are likely to continue to hold to the agument that college teaching is a "profession" which ought not stoop to collective bargaining, especially for salaries.

Perhaps that's why the local AFTers are not talking salaries so much as they are academic issues — governance of the institution, right to due process and protection of academic freedoms.

Local AFT members are likely to be AAUP members who think it's time to consolidate enough faculty power to ensure success on the issues that have been talked about for some time.

The problem recently has been that the faculty has lost too many times.

Local AFT leaders readily admit that the chapter was formed last spring in direct response to the Rozman affair, when the regents turned their backs on a prestigious faculty committee which concluded the former political science teacher was not guilty of inappropriate actions.

That didn't set well, at all.

But Rozman has also been supported monetarily by the AAUP, and there are a good many faculty members who were (and still are) mightily upset by the regents' decision.

There are other things, too, like the Michael Davis case, the regents' success in amending a legislative bill that would have provided a procedure for hearings in disciplinary cases, a regents-ordered statement of faculty responsibilities that has not been acted upon a year after it was submitted, President Varner's statement on tenure (though I think the faculty overreacted on that one.)

The fact is that each time the regental hand reaches into the academic community (especially without consulting the professors), there's likely to be some reaction.

And the more of that kind of action from the top there is, the more the professors (even the conservative ones) will react.

So, in a way, the regents and some administrators are probably forcing the faculty into a more militant stance.

The Legislature, of course, does the same thing with stringent budgets and talk of "clamping down."

☆ ☆ ☆

The AAUP and other faculty groups have been negotiating with the regents and administrators for a long time. But thus far it's happened in small private meetings, with whispered reports around the campus of what happened.

AFT supporters believe that's not enough, so they are seeking support to negotiate as a group representing the entire faculty.

But they are also seeking enough support from others to put together a bit of faculty wallop now—a goal not uninteresting to AAUP types.

Whether this is the first apparent aspect of the coming unionism on the campus, I don't know. I'd guess it's not unrelated to that.

The issues that brought them together now are likely to remain—continued pressure from the public to "crackdown" on the campus, stringent budgets, bolder governing boards.

That could mean unionism on the campus is not far away.

What we're seeing now is a unity not apparent before, but that's surely a start to a union, of some type, in the future.

Early Report

Lincoln, Neb.

This is to express our concern with the recent hearings in connection with charges of police brutality in the case of Cleveland Randolph. We are concerned that such charges be aired thoroughly, openly and reported promptly with candor. While we do not counsel hasty action in an emotion-laden situation, to delay too long in reporting findings may tend to leave doubts in the public mind.

Therefore, we urge that the Human Rights Commission report its findings, even though inconclusive, as soon as possible.

Athletic Funds

Lincoln, Neb.

I recently read Don Bryant's letter titled "No Tax Funds."

Why aren't the gate receipts and gifts from the football games placed in the general fund at the University of Nebraska? I do not believe the gate receipts from the football games belong to the athletic department to spend as it pleases.

If Nebraska had a poor team and small gate receipts, the taxpayers of Nebraska would have to cough up the difference.

Did the athletic department pay for the astro-turf? Does it pay Coach Devaney's salary with money from the gate receipts?

Why should the cigarette tax be earmarked for new fieldhouse while the athletic department is earning so much money? Let's put all of the cigarette tax money into the state's general fund, and all of the athletic department's gate receipts, etc. into the University of Nebraska's general fund. That way it could hold the line on our annual real estate tax jumps in Nebraska.

OVERTAXED FOR SCHOOLS

Editor's Note: The stadium's new astro-turf was paid for out of athletic department receipts, as are all salaries for the department, including Coach Devaney's.

True Peace

Lincoln, Neb.

I noted with interest the question asked in the Action Line article of Nov. 11: "If Adam and Eve had two sons, Cain and Abel, where did the boys get their wives." I was rather dismayed with the answer given by Rev. Darrel Berg. He stated that the incident was a mythical situation involving mythical people. I hope that the readers realize this is merely conjecture on the part of Dr. Berg. I would differ very much with him. I believe the incident was an actual situation with actual people. For you see, I believe that the Bible is in its entirety "The Word of God." If the Bible states this incident, which it does, then it is so.

If I doubted any part of the Word of God, I would have to have doubts about all of the Bible, and would not be able to call it the Word of God. If I doubted the existence of Adam and their two sons, I would have to doubt whether there were a hereafter or not. Is there really a heaven where souls of men go? Is there really a hell where those who reject the Son of God go? How can one really know for sure? Our only sure source is the Bible. I have full confidence that there are such places, and because of what the Word of God tells me, I know that I am going there. No doubt in my mind whatsoever. What a peace man can have.

Defense Of Right

Lincoln, Neb.

Leafing through a book of poetry published by the Sterling Publishing House, Chicago, in 1884, I ran across the following poem. The author is mentioned only as a Mrs. Hogarth, but certain it is appropriate for today.

Yes, God is for the right,
However man goes wrong;
The race He gives not to the swift,
Nor battle to the strong.
It matters not how weak the cause
If holy in His sight;
'Twill be victorious soon or late,
For God will aid the right.
Our country's star of fate
By clouds is overcast,
And dark oppression, wrong and hate
Drive on to ruin fast;
Yet wherefore grieve? In His good time
He will arise in might,
And bid the angry conflict cease,
And triumph with the right.
So, brother, let us hope,
Though evil be the hour,
And we are grouped on ruin's brink,
Bereft of earthly power,
Our God will do the best for all,
For all, both dark and white;
And though the Union rise or fall,
He will defend the right.

Our Historical Ideals On Chopping Block

NEW YORK — With Thanksgiving only a few days off, it's time to brace ourselves for some "historian's" expose that Governor Bradford's celebration of feasting and prayer was actually a three-day orgy for savage Indians and not-so-Puritans.

They had hard cider back then, too, you know. Any good professional debunker could take it from there.

That seems to be the formula these days: Dig up a few obscure facts, add a lot of fancy speculation, and come up with a revelation that zaps our cherished historical goodies.

Take Christopher Columbus. There's an historian in Madrid who says the famed Italian explorer wasn't Italian, at all; he was a Basque. And a Basque pirate, besides. But he kept it secret because he didn't want to embarrass Ferdinand and Isabella by letting it get out he had once raided their galleons.

Other historians shrug that one off, but they seem to accept the new theory that it wasn't Mrs. O'Leary's cow that kicked over the lantern and started the Great Chicago Fire.

It's hard to give up the cow, but the new culprit is pretty colorful; one "Peg Leg" Sullivan, who sneaked into Mrs. O'Leary's barn to hoist a few, set off the fire when he drunkenly tried to light his pipe, almost went up in flames himself when his peg leg got stuck in a crack, and escaped by unhooking it and using a singed calf as a cane.

(I'm not kidding; that's now the official version of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.)

Then, of course, there's Paul Revere. Historians tell us now that Henry Wadsworth Longfellow may have been a great poet, but he was a lousy reporter.

Old Paul didn't ride all night shouting, "The British are coming" — for the simple reason that he wasn't on his horse more than two hours before the British captured him. (And what he really shouted was: "The Regulars are coming!")

It was a Dr. Samuel Prescott who finally got through to Concord to alert the Minutemen. But Prescott doesn't rhyme with "you shall hear," so what schoolboy ever had to memorize anything about HIM?

We've known for some time now that General Custer was a weirdo so-and-so who violated treaties and massacred Indian women and children. But the latest (from a psychiatrist, no less) is that Wyatt Earp didn't clean up the wild, wild West by killing outlaws. No matter what you've seen on TV, he says, the legendary marshal killed only one man in his life.

And a Scottish historian swears that noble schoolmarm Anna from "The King and I" was really a "religious bigot, a snob, one of those awful little English governesses, and a sex-starved widow." (Are you listening, Yul Brynner?)

It's all a bit depressing. Next thing you know they'll be telling us Abraham Lincoln didn't write the Gettysburg Address. At the last minute. On the back of an old envelope.

Opposition To Low-Income Public Housing Plan Stems From Fear Of Destroying Healthy Region

NEW YORK — A clash between New York City and federal housing officials, on the one hand, and some aroused residents of Queens Borough, on the other, has achieved the remarkable feat of bringing conservative Sen. James Buckley and liberal Democratic Rep. Ben Rosenthal into tacit allinace on behalf of the residents.

That is because the collision reflects some of the most profound forces that trouble the nation today—the fear of crime, the association of crime and violence with low-income blacks, the anger of individuals at overwhelming bureaucracy, the resulting demand for community "participation" and control, the sad but often understandable reluctance of comfortable people to risk disruption of their lives for broad social purposes they only vaguely understand.

The officials are about to begin construction of an 840-unit, $29.9 million, high-rise public housing development for low-income tenants in Forest Hills, a middle-income section of Queens. The Forest Hills Residents' Association is determined to stop the project, although a temporary restraining order to that effect was dismissed in state court a few weeks ago.

Secretary George Romney of H.U.D. has promised another review of the project, for which his department is putting up some of the money, but nobody in the city housiing authority seems unduly worried about that. From their vantage point, in any case, the resistance in Forest Hills is seen largely as "misguided fear."

Housing officials contend that the project, which is not displacing any other housing, actually will enhance the community. It will be well within population density limits, they say, only 15 per cent of the acreage will be used for buildings, with the rest going to park and playground use, and the majority of the tenants will be drawn from the Queens area — with 40 per cent of the units being reserved for elderly persons.

These officials cite other examples of the city's program to disperse public housing outside slum areas; Lattimer Gardens in Flushing, for example, is touted as a project that has not damaged but improved a community.

Jerry Birbach, the president of the Forest Hills Residents' Association, dismisses most of this as "just plain lying." Schools and transportation in the area already are overcrowded, he argues, and the community planning board has twice voted against the project. As for "Lindsay and Aurelio" — the mayor and his former deputy — Birbach remarks with special bitterness that repeated efforts have resulted in "no dialogue."

No wonder, he says, that "we're beginning to feel the only way to get community participation is to be militant."

But the real root of Birbach's opposition plainly is his conviction that "they're transplanting a malignant tumor to a healthy viable community." He and his group are not against racial integration, he says, but they are opposed to "economic integration" because they are convinced that "crime is bred in low-income areas."

Simeon Golar, the chairman of the housing authority, and other officials are convinced Birbach is the victim of false fears. But even if he is, it does not take a long conversation with him to grasp his resentment and frustration and the fear for—false or not—family, property and community that underlies the struggle.

These are serious matters, and not just to Birbach and the many other Americans everywhere who feel threatened by social change and overwhelmed by impersonal government. Housing authorities and other public agencies cannot for long or adequately do their work when it arouses such bitter opposition — and the record of unfunded programs, incomplete projects, and lengthy political struggles is there to prove it. Golar, for instance, points out that the notion that public housing is mostly for poor blacks is effectively delaying or preventing construction of thousands of units for poor whites.

Yet, the dispersal of public and other low-income housing into middle and even high-income areas is one of the few means available to break down the social and economic barriers that create ghettoes, with all their social ills.

Ex-Jesuit Says Repeal Of Abortion Laws Best

There is a "distinct difference" between reforming abortion laws and repealing them, and I am "definitely in favor of abortion repeal," Pete Anderson said at a rap session on abortion at the University of Nebraska Student Union Thursday.

Repealing the laws allows a woman to make the decision herself, whereas reform laws often create mechanisms which are more difficult to face than the original laws, he said. laws once passed, are extremely difficult to change.

Anderson added that reform

Anderson, who is presently youth director of the planned parenthood and world population organization in Omaha, was brought to Lincoln by the Nebraska Organization for the Repeal of Abortion Laws,-as-part of their program for "abortion information" week.

An ex-Jesuit with a degree in psychology, Anderson was the first conscientious objector in the nation to do alternate service for the planned parenthood group.

Anderson said that his Catholic background had "fallen by the wayside" in his decision to work with planned parenthood. Reconciling abortion within himself was "a little more difficult to work out," but in view of the tragedy of unwanted pregnancies and the increasing world population, he continued, it was necessary to adopt a more "utilitarian" philosophy.

Anderson was one of the three people who began the clergy consultation service of Missouri, a private non-profit organization for counseling and referral services for women with problem pregnancies. These services are presently widespread in Nebraska.

Anderson added that advising and counseling is a "touchy" legal situation in Nebraska.

Quoting statistics for Nebraska, Anderson estimated that the statewide clergy consultation services send 25 to 30 women a week out of state to obtain legal abortions. He estimated that this is only half the number of abortions taking place within the state weekly.

When asked about the responsibility of the male in unwanted pregnancies, Anderson responded that men cannot truly understand or totally empathize with women. Woman is "unique," he added, for she must be ultimately responsible for her own sexuality and her own pregnancy.

Corporation Will Assist Hunger Fight

A policy committee of the Lincoln Action Program will Monday begin organizing a corporation that will replace the Emergency Food and Medical Services Program.

Action Against Hunger — For Health, Inc., will be incorporated Friday but it will not be activated until federal funding for the Emergency Food and Medical Services program is stopped June 30, 1972.

The purpose of Monday's meeting will be to begin listing the functions and bylaws of the corporation. It is scheduled for 2 p.m. in room 427 of the Lincoln Center Building and it is open to the public.

The corporation's stated purpose is to help low income persons meet their food and medical needs. One system proposed is the starting of a food buying cooperative for the low-income community.

Steve Rosenblatt Re-Elected Head Of MS Society

Omaha (AP) — Steven Rosenblatt of Omaha was reelected chairman of the board of the Nebraska-Iowa Chapter, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, at the group's annual session in Omaha.

Other officers, all re-elected, are Frank Scott of Omaha, vice chairman; Warren Dunn, Omaha, treasurer, and Kay Bredensteiner, Omaha, secretary.

New board members are Dr. John C. Goldner, Omaha; Florence Hansen, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Ronald Schomberg, Norfolk.

Eugene Dorste Again Records Top Corn Yield

Falls City (UPI) — Despite a shortage of moisture and the threat of diseases, Eugene Dorste of Rulo produced a high 165.7 bushels to the acre to win the Richardson County 1971 corn yield contest.

Dorste, who also won in 1970, is defending state champion in the dryland division of the state contest.

No Danger Seen From Reservoirs

North Platte (AP) — The agencies involved in reservoir storage along the North Platte River, meeting at the Nebraska Conference on Hydrology in North Platte Thursday, reported that they would cooperate to make the best use of the highest reservoir storage of water on record without causing high water conditions in the river.

Session delegates also said they do not believe the water levels to be dangerously high, as the Riparian Association, Inc., of North Platte, has charged.

Stan Christiansen, Bridgeport, division engineer for the Nebraska Department of Water Resources, said, "The agencies involved agree that no danger exists or is likely to exist from the excellent storage carryover. However, cloud burst type storms such as occurred last year, mostly below the storage reservoirs, could again create a threat of high water in the river."

Ralph Knepper, hydraulic engineer for the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, said that the district's storage at Lake McConaughy is higher than usual for this time of year, with 1,762,000 acre feet of water currently in the lake. He said, planned releases of water through Kingsley Dam this fall and winter will be about 410,000 acre feet, or 165 per cent of the last 10 year average.

He said the increased release rate is an effort to use the water for generation of electricity, assure ample irrigation water and still cope with any flood control needs.

Inquest Set In Death Of Old Hunter

North Platte (AP)—T here will be a coroner's inquest into the death of Donald Blaesi, 72-year-old North Platte hunter, who died after being struck in the leg with a rifle bullet Monday.

Lincoln County Attorney Walter Mullikin said Thursday he was withholding autopsy information until it could be presented to a coroner's jury at the inquest.

He said an inquest date had not been set since Blaesi's hunting partner, Roy Christner, of North Platte still is hospitalized. Christner also was shot in the leg while the men were duck hunting west of North Platte.

Mullikin said earlier the rifle shots had been fired by a deer hunter, Darrell Welsh of North Platte, who said he thought he saw a deer and fired twice.

Truck Impounded Under Drug Law Sells For $620

Beatrice (AP) — The first sheriff's sale of a motor vehicle impounded in a marijuana case under a recent state law was held in Beatrice.

Marvin Kunc of Crab Orchard was successful bidder with a bid of $620 on a half-ton 1963 pickup truck which allegedly was used for the transportation of marijuana.

Of this amount $444 goes to the general fund of the county. The remainder went to costs.

The truck was registered to Nancy Cordiero, 19, of Colton, Calif., who pleaded guilty in Gage County Court Sept. 9 to possession of less than one pound of marijuana. She was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to seven days in jail.

Speech Planned By Mrs. Vyskocil

Mrs. Diane Vyskocil of the Nebraska Center for the Handicapped will speak Dec. 7 to a public meeting of the League of Human Dignity.

The program will be at 7:30 p.m. in the main floor auditorium of the Lincoln Center Building, 15th and N.

Iowa Court's Injunction Against Koscot Upheld

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — A permanent injunction prohibiting Koscot Interplanetary, Inc., from engaging in alleged consumer fraud sales practices has been upheld by the Iowa Supreme Court.

The decision handed down last week was hailed by Iowa Asst. Atty. Gen. Douglas Carlson as the first of its kind under the Iowa Consumer Fraud Act.

'Most Important'

Carlson called it "one of the most important consumer protection decisions handed down by any appellate court in the United States this year."

All members of the high court concurred in the opinion, written by Justice Maurice Rawlings, except Justice Clay LeGrand, who concurred in the result.

Atty. Gen. Richard Turner brought the injunction action against Koscot, of Orlando, Fla., and its Iowa distributor, located in Davenport, contending the firm's referral sales plan violated Iowa law.

'Buy Into Firm

Under the Koscot plan, individuals could "buy into" the firm either as a retailer, known as a beauty consultant, or at either of two wholesale levels.

Turner said Koscot in its advertising promised those who "bought" positions in the firm could earn up to $34,000 yearly by inducing other prospects to buy in too. But the attorney general said the written contract signed by those who buy in made no reference to payment for bringing in additional sales personnel.

Banned By Law

Justice Rawlings agreed that the sales plan is a referral or pyramid merchandising technique that is banned by Iowa law. He said it was "fundamentally a sugar coated merchandise sales plan."

In appealing the injunction to the Supreme Court, Koscot challenged constitutionality of the Iowa Consumer Fraud Act. It also contended the trial court had erred in holding its sales program violated the law.

Justice Rawlings, however, said Iowa law makes any use of referral sales techniques illegal even-when such techniques are specified in contracts with customers.

Invitation Called A Tribute To NU By Schwartzkopf

University of Nebraska Regent Edward Schwartzkopf Thursday termed a "tribute to the institution and the state," an invitation for a presentation next month in New York on NU's educational administrator development programs.

The invitation was extended by the New York College Association for Development of Educational Administrators, which selected the NU program as "exemplary among institutions of higher education," the Lincoln regent noted.

Dale Hayes, chairman of NU's educational administration department, will present the report Dec. 3 at Syracuse University.

"This is another indication of the quality of our educational programs to meet Nebraska's needs and the recognition which, these programs are receiving across the nation," said Schwartzkopf.

Trip Expanded?

Washington (UPI) — The White House said that Mrs. Richard M. Nixon may expand her trip to Africa in January to include one or two more countries, but that there had been no decision on whether she will accompany President Nixon to Communist China.

Court Upholds Rozman Firing; Professor Plans Appeal

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Former University of Nebraska Prof. Stephen Rozman said Thursday he intends to appeal a U.S. District Court ruling upholding a Board of Regents decision not to renew his contract.

"I'll appeal it," said Rozman after the decision was handed down by Judge Warren K. Urbom of Lincoln.

"I feel an obligation to carry it further, not only for my own well-being, but for the well-being of the university."

'Frightening'

Calling the decision a "frightening precedent," Rozman said he feared it "could destroy the university."

The regents voted last February not to renew Rozman's contract for 1972-73 after citing Rozman's participation in antiwar activities on the Lincoln campus in May 1970.

Rozman sued for reinstatement to his position and $100,000 in damages.

Urbom said in his ruling that the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution prohibits a university from failing to "reappoint a nontenured faculty member arbitrarily and capriciously or for constitutionally impermissible reasons."

Passed Perimeters

But the judge said he concluded that Rozman "passed beyond the perimeters of protected freedom of expression, assembly and petition and, therefore . . . the nonrenewal of his contract was permissible by the university."

"I offer no view as to the wisdom of the university's action, for to do so would surpass my realm of authority," Urbom wrote.

"That the Board of Regents did not act arbitrarily and capriciously follows necessarily from the finding that each of the factors related in the Board of Regent's resolution of nonreappointment was supported by substantial evidence in the possession" of the board when it made the decision, said Urbom.

Two Areas

"Two areas of activity of Dr. Rozman were outside the scope of constitutionally protected speech," he said.

"One was in the negotiating room (in the occupied Military and Naval Science Building the night of May 4-5, 1970), when he intruded into the responsibilities of the administrators for negotiating an evacuation of the building."

"The other," he said, "was in the (building's) 'pit,' when by his presence he contributed to a cancellation of a class and defied a directive of the administration to leave the building promptly."

Rozman has contended that he and other faculty members believed the directive was intended only for the students who remained in the building.

Thoroughly Persuaded

"I am thoroughly persuaded that Professor Rozman had a right to present his views by voice and physical presence about the Cambodian incursion and the Kent State tragedy," said Urbom.

"A time came in the negotiating room, however, when he abandoned temporarily the process of communicating about those subjects and assumed without invitation the role of attempting to break what he viewed to be an impasse."

"At that point Dr. Rozman was not merely expressing a view as to the rightness or wrongness of the merits of the controversy (over preparation of a stronger statement from NU administrators), but was clothing himself with a procedural function belonging to the administrators.

"That kind of intermeddling is not protected by the Constitution."

Cases Have Affirmed

Urbom said other cases have affirmed that "fitness for faculty status is not limited to performance in the classroom alone" but "rests upon a broad range of factors . . . including numerous personality and character traits."

Urbom also concluded that since the regents had agreed to allow a faculty committee to conduct hearings in the case, the board had obligated itself to "to proceed with at least minimal procedural safeguards."

But he said he concluded Rozman was afforded a proper hearing, even though he was not allowed the right of cross-examination, a right Urbom noted Rozman had waived.

'Peripheral Issues'

Urbom said "peripheral issues," including the assertion about a "sub rosa" meeting of the regents and character damage, were unfounded.

"The single informal meeting (the night before the regents voted the nonreappointment) between members of the Board of Regents and members of the Holtzclaw Committee (which conducted the hearings) was expressly anticipated by the agreement between Dr. Rozman and the Board of Regents before the Holtzclaw Committee was constituted, and the Board of Regents reached no agreement and took no official action at that meeting," Urbom said.

Rozman's attorney, Patrick Healey of Lincoln, said a motion for a retrial will be filed. And if that is turned down, he added, an appeal will be filed with the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Appropriations Group Starts Hearings

. . . PENTERMAN DISCLOSES '68 GUARD CALL-UP RESCINDED

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Thursday launched public hearings on 1972-73 budget requests and may begin to make decisions this week.

Shattering past legislative precedent, the committee opened its formal hearings more than six weeks before the 1972 Unicameral convenes.

Budget hearings in the past have always been held while the Legislature was in session, but the 60-day time limit imposed on the 1972 session prompted the committee to begin its work early.

4 State Agencies

Four state agencies presented their budget documents Thursday; three more are scheduled to appear before the senators Friday.

The committee will huddle in executive session Friday afternoon with Gus Lieske, Gov. J. James Exon's director of administrative services.

That, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings said, will give committee members "a preliminary look" at the governor's budgetary deliberations.

Exon will not present his budget proposal until the 1972 Legislature convenes in January.

Without Knowing

The committee's early start means senators for the first time are quizzing agency spokesmen on their budget requests without knowing how the governor has altered them.

Action on the first budget requests could come at a scheduled executive session of the committee Saturday, Marvel said. He is ready to accept motions making decisions, he said.

Appearing before the budget unit were the Military Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Revenue and the Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Surprise Disclosure

The all-day hearing was highlighted by Brig. Gen. Donald Penterman's surprising disclosure that the Nebraska National Guard received orders for mobilization in 1968 which only a few days later were rescinded.

"We had the orders in the safe," the deputy adjutant general told the committee.

But, he said, "internal security problems" in Nebraska at the time apparently prompted the Defense Department to rescind the call and turn instead to the Kansas National Guard for mobilization.

At the time, Penterman said, unrest and tension prevailed in Omaha's Near North Side and "other areas" of Nebraska.

Not Requested

"There was no request from us to make a change," Penterman told newsmen after the public hearing. "The adjustment was made by the federal government on its own decision."

Nebraska had been in "a period of tension" since 1966, Penterman recalled.

The orders would have affected about 90% of the personnel in the Guard, or about 3,500 men, Penterman said.

It was as a result of those circumstances that the Guard requested Gov. Norbert Tiemann to create a state guard cadre by executive order, he said.

Formed As Back-up

The 220-man volunteer cadre was formed to organize a state guard as aback-up to the National Guard in the event that the latter force were pressed into federal service.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters told the committee he has found that the reduction in field service men he had anticipated last winter is not practical.

They are needed for tax compliance and enforcement procedures, he said. As an example, Peters noted, his department is now minitoring 2,700 income tax returns in which the taxpayer admitted liability but did not pay his taxes.

Reinstituting Plan

Peters said he is also reinstituting a deferred plan to develop uniform standards and procedures for property tax reappraisal.

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said he needs four additional food inspectors to supplement the present 16-member staff.

That request was endorsed by a statement of support from the League of Women Voters of Nebraska.

November Checks Reflect Wage Hike

The Lincoln Public Schools Thursday prepared a special notice to teachers informing them their November paychecks would reflect salary hikes effective at the end of the freeze period.

But the notice also said a school decision on retroactive pay was being withheld pending "published decisions from the National (pay) Control Board."

"It is difficult to announce with certainty the amounts that can legally be paid," the notice said.

"In the meantime, payrolls do have to be computed if (pay) warrants are to be available on schedule.

"The November payroll is, therefore, being calculated now so that staff can get that portion of additional pay that it appears can legally be paid."

The notice conceded that "it is entirely possible that (a) later ruling may permit a different calculation."

The announcement said that as of Dec. 1 the monthly premium for health insurance will also go up, as will the contribution from the school district. Teachers won the hike in negotiations last spring.

The schools had been hoping for definite word this week on retroactive pay, but the Pay Board has yet to issue an official ruling.

The school announcement said the school district's decision was based on daily pay rates at last year's levels for the freeze period and at the higher levels for the period following the freeze.

As an example, a teacher with a 190-day contract who is on the fourth step of the bachelor's degree schedule will be paid a total of $7,428 this year rather than the $7,575 he would have received had the freeze not been imposed.

That teacher would have worked 59 days at the old rate, which amounted to a yearly pay of $7,100.

Upjohn Drops Plans to Build Plant in Omaha

Omaha (UPI) — The Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., announced it will not carry out previously announced plans to build a $10 million antibiotics plant here.

The company instead will build a larger plant in Puerto Rico, according to Bruce S. Lance, vice president for engineering. The Puerto Rico plant will cost about $30 million, he said.

"Exceptionally rapid growth in Upjohn's overseas markets and the need to expand beyond fermentation capabilities to a complete pharmaceutical plant" were cited by Lance as two of the reasons for the change in plans.

The 1972 show will be March 14-15 at the Omaha Civic Auditorium.

NU Ag College Size Ranking Declines

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture has experienced an increase in enrollment this fall. But it also has a 6.5% drop in freshmen enrollment and has slipped to a lower position in size ranking among the nation's land-grant colleges.

According to Dr. Franklin E. Eldridge, Associate Dean of the NU College of Agriculture, total undergraduate enrollment in the College this fall is 1,432, an increase of 23 students over last year.

Enrollment figures indicate an increase of 10 sophomores, five juniors and 55 seniors, but a decrease of 29 students in the freshman class.

According to Eldridge, the substantial increase of seniors is partially attributed to a greater number of transfer students coming from junior colleges to NU. He noted that this plan of education has been encouraged over the past few years.

However, the ag college administrator pointed to the decrease in freshman enrollment as a significant factor in the total enrollment picture. This decrease, he said, will possibly lead to smaller graduating classes in the future. In 1971, 265 students were graduated, the largest graduating class in the history of the college.

For the first time in many years, Eldridge said, the University of Nebraska ag college has slipped to a lower position in size ranking of the nation's land-grant colleges. NU now ranks 13th, a drop from their former ranking of 11th.

The associate dean commented that "this should be of concern to all Nebraskans, since agriculture is the principal industry in our state."

In indications he has received, Eldridge said he has seen no decrease in the degree of job opportunities for agricultural graduates. "The decrease in students is not in the best interest of the agricultural industry in the state and does reflect a weakening in this particular educational choice by incoming students."

At a recent meeting of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, reports showed that enrollment in the nation's land-grant colleges ol agriculture increased by 8.6 per cent. Current undergraduate enrollment in these colleges is 58,965, the highest ever.

Eldridge noted that according to the reports, the most sizeable increases have occurred in eastern portions of the U.S. He attributed part of this increase to an expanded interest in environmental quality and ecological concerns. He added that many of the eastern ag colleges also have more women enrolling in the agricultural courses of study.

The largest increase of enrollment in any of the land-grant colleges occurred at Pennsylvania State, followed by North Carolina State. Eldridge pointed out that both of these colleges moved from sizes less than the NU Ag College to enrollments larger than NU.

In standing among the Big 8 land-grant colleges, Nebraska ranks fourth, Eldridge said. Iowa State University, which is the largest land-grant college in the nation, leads the Big 8, followed by Missouri, Oklahoma State and Nebraska. Kansas State is in fifth place, but Eldridge pointed out that this year Kansas State experienced a 141 increase in ag college enrollment — a sizeable increase in comparison to Nebraska's.

Legislature's Committee On Power Recesses Current Hearing Session

Omaha (AP) — The legislative power study committee Thursday recessed its current hearings until Dec. 15.

The committee heard from a group of senior citizens who asked that power districts provide reduced rates to elderly persons on low incomes. The delegation represented the Omaha Senior Citizens Council.

Before adjourning, Chairman Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said he doubts a report can be readied in time for the next session of the legislature which convenes early in January.

Earlier, the committee visited informally with representatives of the Omaha Public Power District.

"We haven't got into anything of consequence yet," Carpenter said.

Charles A. Miller, the district's lobbyist, said he is paid $24,000 a year, and that his job is primarily to influence legislation affecting the district.

He said he did not contact any senators in regard to the resolution passed at the last session which created the power study group.

Carpenter asked Jack Marer, an Omaha attorney, to make a report to the committee concerning the conflict of interest investigation made on Hird Stryker, an OPPD attorney.

Marer headed a committee of the Nebraska Bar Association which found that Stryker is working within the legal profession's canon of ethics.

Carpenter's committee will ask about the legality of bargain utility rates offered employes of the Omaha Public Power District.

And the committee will also ask whether it is legal for a private ifrm, the Iowa Power-Light Co., to purchase half of the electricity to be generated at the nuclear power plant under construction at Brownville.

The plant is being constructed for the Nebraska Public Power District.

As for the employe discount, Carpenter said he didn't disagree with the policy but questioned its legality. OPPD General Manager Lynn Monroe said the long-standing policy is now considered "a fringe benefit and part of an employe's salary."

The committee also heard a recommendation from the Quality Environmental Council that the state law on radiation be stiffened and that a $100,000 budget be appropriated to make tests near nuclear power plants.

Two Men Killed In Collision Of UP Freight Train, Truck

Sidney (AP) — Two men were killed late Thursday afternoon in the collision of a westbound Union Pacific freight train and a Union Pacific truck.

They were the driver of the truck, M. L. Sharp, 39, of Ogallala, and L. V. Paddock, 61, of Brule, a passenger.

The accident occurred on a company road crossing in the railroad yard. The train, which was just starting a run to Wyoming with a load of mostly empty coal cars, was traveling about 25 miles per hour, according to a UP spokesman.

The truck was demolished and caught fire after the collision.

Because the accident occurred on private property, there was no determination whether the fatalities will be counted toward the 1971 Nebraska highway death toll.

Phyllis Raeichert Killed In Crash

Max (UPI) — A car-train accident on a county road crossing southeast of here Thursday afternoon claimed the life of Phyllis J. Raeichert, 37, of Benkelman.

Authorities said her northbound car was in collision with a west bound Burlington Northern freight train.

The mishap occurred at 1:56 p.m. CST.

Engineer of the train was Leroy F. Kennedy, 49, of McCook.

Omaha Woman Dies of Injuries From Crash

Omaha (AP) — Karen Juva, 22, Omaha, has died in a hospital of injuries suffered in a one-car accident Oct. 16.

Police said she died Wednesday. She was alone in the car when it struck a utility pole in south Omaha. Hospital officials said her condition had been generally critical since the accident.

Good morning:

There seems to be something of a stigma about tuning into KUON-TV, Channel 12, the educational television station. You know, the station without any commercials.

An objective analysis might show that there are two schools of thought on television. There are those who find the 'booby-tube' a way to tune out the problems of the world. Then there are those who simply don't watch.

In the first category fall a whole range of people, from educated housewives to professional and non-professional businessmen. In parlor gossip we find that many of these people who contribute so much during the work day prefer to tune out with the tube in their off hours.

In the second category are those who find television 'distasteful', and vow stolidly that they never watch television. It all sounds very elite and intellectual until you ask them how they liked a certain show, and they always happen to have just seen that show.

Now, somewhere in the middle of these two groups is educational television. Unfortunately the nomenclature from its early days has remained, although the head office has assumed a more appropriate name, the Public Broadcasting Service.

The whole problem, as we see it, is that we must overcome our conception of television as a cop-out vehicle. For not only does ETV serve the public, but the aspiring artist as well. In many of the performers who have not made it 'big' there lies a wealth of talent.

For example, on Wednesday evening this week, ETV produced "Macbeth" by the University Repertory Players. While there were parts that left something to be desired, the production as a whole was to be applauded.

So, for those who do admit to television watching, we suggest that the next time you consult your program guide your carefully digest the ETV programs. You are sure to find some wonderful ways to painlessly fill your off hours, and maybe even learn a thing or two.

Now, for your further entertainment:

LAST OF A TRADITION . . . When the Lincoln Community Playhouse opens its worn curtains tonight on the newest production, Peter Ustinov's "Halfway Up The Tree," it will also be the last opening night at this playhouse. The remaining productions of the season will be at the new theatre. But, don't let that keep you away from this comedy which promises to be of high calibre. It will play the 19, 20, and 26 through 28 of Nov., and Dec. 3 to 5, and 9 to 12.

WHO MADE A GOOF . . . Goofy, of course, the famous Walt Disney character who will star in the entirely new Disney On Parade which arrives in Lincoln on Nov. 30. For those who saw the show last year, no introduction is needed, except that this show will be more entertaining than ever. For those who missed it last year, you will be spellbound as Disney creations come to life. Adults will love it as much as their children do. The show will be in Lincoln through Dec. 5 and tickets are available at Pershing auditorium.

IN THE ART MARKET . . . a glorious three days for people shopping for original art will come to Lincoln on Sunday, Nov. 28 at the Gateway Shopping Center. Sponsored by Hadassah, the show will include a beautiful collection of oil paintings by Chicago's Arts International Gallery of Discoveries and a collection of graphics by Circle Gallery Ltd. of N.Y. The exhibit opens on Sunday—from 3 o'clock until 9—and will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 29 and 30.

ON YOUR TOES . . . for the National Ballet of Washington will be performing in Lincoln as the second Community Concert presentation. Directed by renowned balletomane Frederic Franklin, the company has received outstanding reviews from top ballet critics. The performance, for season ticket holders only, is at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21.

WORLD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA . . . with Lincoln's own Arnold Shatz of the Lincoln Symphony playing in the blend of 140 musical ambassadors from 60 nations, will be featured on ETV Channel 12 on Thursday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Conductor Arthur Fiedler conducts the 90 minute special which highlights the three U.S. concerts.

Stitchery Steals Show

In almost every artistic endeavor, there are many people behind the scenes who work almost as hard as the artist to ensure the success of a show.

At the Nebraska Wesleyan University Elder Art Gallery, the backstage workers are members of the NWU Art Council. Their function is to promote art at the school.

The stitichery show will be on exhibit at Elder Gallery through Dec. 17.

Mayflower Society

The 350th anniversary of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving dinner will be observed by the Nebraska Society of Mayflower Descendants on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21.

The anniversary dinner will be held at the Hilton Hotel in Omaha, and is scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock.

The Rev. Robert Alward, senior pastor of the Countryside-Briardale United Church of Christ will be the featured speaker at the affair. His topic will be "The Ship of Hope."

Officers will be elected following the luncheon address. E. Thomas Gumbert of Omaha is the current governor of the Nebraska Society.

Society Meeting

The National Society of Women Descendants of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, of Nebraska, will meet on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Hostess for the event will be Mrs. Nelley Knight, society president, and the program will be presented by Mrs. Joel E. McLafferty, who will review "The United States and China," by Fairbanks.

Initiation

When the members of Credit Women International gathered at the Elks Club on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, for their monthly dinner meeting, the evening's agenda promised an unusual, but interesting, few hours.

First, three new members were welcomed into the club. They are Mrs. Phillip Hauschild of BankAmericard, Mrs. Sherry Hempel of the Southeast Medical Center, and Mrs. Manfred Jalass of the Government Employees' Credit Union.

Then education chairman, Mrs. Clifford Prell, conducted the annual examination on the "Hands of Time" manual.

The evening was completed by discussion of the CWI future planning questionnaire.

a tour of the shops

This Thanksgiving will be like none other. The holiday takes on a new excitement for Nebraskans, for not only is it the day of the Great Turkey, but the day of the "game of the year" between Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Many families have planned their holiday celebration around the television broadcast, and the traditional dinner of the day is almost taking a back seat. However, it has not lost all of its importance, and housewives will still be cooking and baking well in advance for the festivities.

On shopping tour this week we decided to help our homemaker who must still concentrate on feeding the family. Any table, whether it is for a sit-down dinner or buffet, will be enhanced by an attractive centerpiece, so we visited Tyrrell's Floral and Gift Shop to see what they had in mind. We then stopped by Calandra's Card and Gift Shop for party ideas.

Many Lincoln families will be departing Nebraska shortly after the Thanksgiving holiday for the warm beaches of Hawaii, and still another Nebraska football game, so we visited Miller and Paine to scout the latest Hawaii wear. Our finds, we think, will be of interest—We'll talk about Hawaii in a moment—

AT TYRRELL'S FLORAL SHOP

The lovely colors of turning leaves, which so adeptly symbolize fall and have traditionally become a part of the Thanksgiving decor, are reproduced at Tyrrell's in centerpieces of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The bouquets are accented with sprigs of wheat, oak leaves and cattails.

A beautiful and unique arrangement, perfect for any Thanksgiving setting, is a bouquest of the chrysanthemums in a carved out pumpkin.

We were also told that if you have a favorite vase that you would like your bouquet arranged in, Tyrrell's will be happy to provide this service.

There are some homes, of course, where the color schemes of autumn would not blend with the decor. For these homes, table centerpieces can be designed in bouquets of roses, carnations or gladioli—all seasonal flowers for this time of the year.

Arrangements of dried flowers are also very popular for this time of the year. They are more practical than blooming bouquets in that their life span is a great deal longer. Combinations of wheat, wood roses, cattails and oak leaves in hues of reds, yellows and browns, add a nice finishing touch to a table.

In the gift shop at Tyrrell's there are some additional items for Thanksgiving decor. Special candles, one of a turkey and another of a pumpkin, will add an interesting note to the dining room. There are, too, a wide selection of other candles in all shapes and sizes which will blend in with your flower selection and accent it.

AT CALANDRA'S

Your every party need for holidays—ranging from invita-the holidays—ranging from invitations to tablecloths—may be found at Calandra's Card and Party Shop.

The Thanksgiving set features a pilgrim couple toting baskets of fruit and standing on a bed of leaves. This centerpiece may be a fun family project to assemble, and it is easily constructed with the scene showing on front and back. Made of tissue paper with the fall shades of brown, gold, and orange, the centerpiece has coordinating napkins, tableclothes, invitations, tallies, cups, plates, and place mats. By the way, party accessories in solid shades of orange, brown, or yellow will go well with this attractive display.

For those who wish to try something different and stay close to the seasonal decorations rather than the pilgrims, Calandra's has stocked another party set which features fall leaves. The striking decoration has a brown background with orange, yellow, and red leaves—and the set includes all of the necessaries to brighten up any table or party.

"Go Big Red' will be the theme of many a party and dinner come Thanksgiving Day — and Calandra's has many items to solve those decorating problems, too. The Big Red fan, complete with banner and 10-gallon hat, is depicted on coasters and cocktail napkins.

Solid red accessories and stationery tend to be the vogue these days—and the red candles and invitations seem to be the greatest sellers.

AT MILLER & PAINE

For Hawaii, USA, the attire is generally casual. Those fortunate persons who will be packing their bags for this glorious land will want to include some native wear.

Miller & Paine is offering the perfect attire for the trip with some muumuus in the Nebraska colors of red and white. For those who are not familiar with this Hawaiian garb, muumuus are loose fitting garments that serve extremely well in the warm climates. The ones at Miller's are available in both long and short lengths in a floral print.

There also is a selection of beautiful resort wear for the trip. The popular blazer jacket in easy-to-care-for light weight double knits with matching or coordinate skirts are being shown by many manufacturers. For the game day itself, there are blazer and skirt outfits in red with accents of white in small star designs on the sleeve hemline and the collar.

Those who are tennis or golf enthusiasts will be interested in the double knit short dress, which features a white bodice that reaches to hip lengths, and a short skirt effect in either red or blue.

Anniversary

The Trinity Lutheran School will celebrate its 90th anniversary on Friday evening, Nov. 19, when the Parent-Teacher League will meet at the school.

The program will be a historical walk through picture and prose of the Trinity educational units and the program will be presented by Ivan Sunderman.

MISS MARY SCHEELE

Campus circles will have an interest in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Scheele of Waco, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary, to Lt. Hal M. Cummins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Corwin D. Cummins of Ord.

The wedding is planned for February.

Miss Scheele is a junior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Xi Delta and where she is majoring in art.

Lt. Cummins is a graduate of the University, from where he also received his Master's degree in education; and is a member of Phi Alpha Theta and Mu Epsilon Nu honoraries. Lt. Cummins now is serving with the United States Air Force and is stationed at Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Ga.

AROUND THE TOWN

In spite of the fact that every Nebraskan has but one thought uppermost in his mind these days, we must point out that Thanksgiving Day has numerous other attributes that make it a great holiday.

Take the talk around town this morning, for instance — It revolves around Thanksgiving Day and the game to be sure, but there are other topics of conversation — guests, parties and, of course, weddings.

Our grapevine tells us that in the average home Thanksgiving dinner will not be served until after the game — and that all of the smallfry have been warned that any interference with television viewing during game hours will not be tolerated. But on with the news—

* * *

Last Friday, Nov. 12, there was a wedding in Baton Rouge, La. — that of Miss Suanne Stiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stiner of Lincoln, and Robert S. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Graham of Baton Rouge.

This weekend Mr. and Mrs. Graham will be arriving in Lincoln to spend Thanksgiving week as the house guests of Mrs. Graham's parents, and on hand to share the greeting will be Miss Kay Stiner who arrives on Saturday for the Thanksgiving recess. Miss Stiner is attending the University of Arizona at Tucson.

And there is more—

Arriving in time for Thanksgiving will be Mr. Graham's parents who will join their son and daughter-in-law as honored guests when Mr. and Mrs. Stiner entertain at a reception on Friday evening, Nov. 26, at the Lincoln Country Club.

We can't close the books on the Stiner family, however, until we tell you that there is to be a birthday celebration — The celebrant will be Miss Kay Stiner.

* * *

On with the guest list—

Coming from Denver, Colo., to spend the Thanksgiving weekend in Lincoln are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bowman (Shirley Sidles) and their three children, Beverly, David and young Thomas Schoeff Bowman — better known in family circles as Tommy.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman and their children will be the house guests of Mrs. Bowman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sidles.

* * *

Thanksgiving Day will certainly be a family day at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Hillyer. Arriving from Wheaton, Ill., for Thanksgiving and the weekend will be Dr. and Mrs. Hillyer's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hillyer and their two daughters, Christine and Lisa. Joining the family circle will be another Hillyer son, Capt. Robert Hillyer, who will come from Ft. Carson, Colo.

Joining Dr. and Mrs. Hillyer and their family for television viewing and dinner will be Dr. and Mrs. Donald Purvis and members of their family.

Buffalo, Wyo., enters the Thanksgiving picture by way of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meldrum who will be the Thanksgiving weekend guests of Mrs. Meldrum's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stebbins.

* * *

Just because the Nebraska-Oklahoma game isn't at Memorial Stadium in Lincoln is no reason for not having a pre-game party. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Joyce are doing just that — On Wednesday evening, Nov. 24, Mr. and Mrs. Joyce will be host and hostess at a cocktail supper at their home.

* * *

Up to this moment we seemed to have completely ignored the current week which also has its bright spots.

One of these is the Thanksgiving dinner-dance for the members of the 100 Club. Planning the party, which will be held at Hotel Lincoln, is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tyler, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. John Bottorff, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Spitsnogle, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Copple, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ganz and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Swanson.

Abby: go back to your husband—now

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 33 years, whom I have always adored, was unfaithful to me. I caught him, and there was no way out for him. He begged me to forgive him, said the woman meant nothing to him and he would never see her again, but I was so hurt and numb and heartsick I went to my son and daughter-in-law's home (where I am now living) and told them all about what had happened.

I have thought everything over, and realize that since this has never happened before, my husband deserves another chance. But my son has forbidden his father to come near me, them, or the children. children.

I spoke with my minister and he agrees I should go back to my husband. How can I? My son tells me he will have no respect for me if I go back. So now I must make a choice. Can you advise me!

TORN

DEAR TORN: Go back to your husband. And tell your son that one who cannot forgive destroys the bridge over which he one day may need to pass.

DEAR ABBY: There are bachelors living in this apartment building. They are not hippies, they are churchgoing men, yet there seems to be plenty of free love going on. They bring girls here day and night without any apparent shame, changing girls every few weeks. Even the children know something shady is going on.

With all this hanky-panky going on I can understand why the young people have become so disgusted with the older generation. I think these men should be asked to move. I would like your opinion.

OVER THIRTY

DEAR OVER: What people do behind their own closed doors is not the business of neighbors. As long as they do not disturb their neighbors, I see no reason for them to be asked to move. Besides, you would have a hard time proving that your suspicions were correct.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is pushing 40, has suddenly become very jealous of me for no legitimate reason.

I do daywork for different people. Every Friday I work for two very nice gentlemen who live together and are so wrappedup in each other they couldn't care less about me or any other woman.

Yesterday my husband came to pick me up at their place and they stood outside and blew me kisses, saying, "Good-bye, Doll. See you next Friday!"

Abby, believe me, I am in no danger with these fellows, but my husband doesn't believe me. He reads your column every day and believes you. Please help me and tell him not to be jealous.

SAFE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAFE: If you're telling it like it is, and I believe you are, your husband has no reason to be jealous.

Bridge: quiz day

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1♥	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠KQ85 ♥742 ♦964 ♣A93
2. ♠AQ972 ♥J6 ♦873 ♣KJ4
3. ♠KJ984 ♥K95 ♦A962 ♣7
4. ♠AQ853 ♥J8 ♦KQ105 ♣J6
5. ♠KQ965 ♥J ♦63 ♣AQ842

1. Two hearts. All you can do at the moment is show a preference for partner's first suit. North's strength is unknown — he may have either a minimum opening bid or extra values not yet disclosed.

Two hearts shows willingness to ston at a part score, and thus indicate that the first response was based on fairly minimum values. But if partner were now to bid three hearts you should carry on to four, for you would be in the happy position of having somewhat greater values than your first two bids had shown.

2. Three clubs. This invites partner to go on to game with more than a minimum opening, but he is of course not forced to bid again. In this sequence, three clubs generally indicates 10 to 12 points.

3. Three hearts. It would be wrong to bid only two hearts, which would indicate a much weaker hand. Counting the value of the heart fit, the distribution and the 11 high-card points, you have the equivaletnt of an opening bid facing an opening bid — which means game. Accordingly you jump-raise rather than give partner a simple preference in hearts.

4. Three notrump. It is clear that with 13 high-card points opposite an opening bid you must undertake game, and it is likewise clear that the best chance for game lies in notrump. There is not much point to bidding two diamonds, even though this would constitute a forcing bid. It would suggest a distributional hand rather than the notrump type of hand you have.

5. Four Clubs. Game is highly likely, and even a slam is not out of the question. The distributional factors easily justify t' jump raise (forcing), although it is true that there are only 12 high-card points. While it must be granted that three notrump could prove to be a better contract, there is no way of reaching a notrump game without sacrificing the advantages of the jump raise.

Just in time for your Christmas sewing projects!

Transportation Board Favors Reduced Fares For Elderly

The Lincoln Transportation System Board Thursday gave approval to the principle of a proposal concerning reduced bus fares for the elderly and recommended supporting funds be made available from another source for expedience.

City Attorney Richard Wood said that a resolution to that effect would be drawn and presented the Council Monday.

According to Jim Zietlow, coordinator of the Lincoln Areawide Project on Aging to finance discounted bus rides for senior citizens, said the proposal would reduce the present 30-cent fare to 10 cents.

Of the 20-cent reduction, funds from the Commission on Aging would finance three-fourths, or 15 cents, while the city would make up the additional five-cent subsidy.

Representatives from the Lincoln Recreation Dept. and Community Action for the Elderly spoke out in favor of the proposal noting that it would help the senior citizens live more independently if they could be furnished reduced-rate transportation, as well as the health factor of getting them out of "four walls."

The board agreed that a second project proposed by Zietlow whereby the handicapped and elderly outside of Lincoln would be furnished door-to-door transportation, was worthwhile.

After considerable discussion on how much would be "hard cash" output by the city in addition to the in-kind services the city would furnish, the board approved the project conditionally upon a workable budget.

They noted that even though the city's share was to be in in-kind services and the county's would be in "hard cash", there would be some "hard cash" involved on the city side because of insurance costs.

The Lancaster County Board several weeks ago allocated $4,500 for county participation in the joint project.

In other business, City Finance Director James Mallon reported that the net loss for operation of the Lincoln Transportation System for the month of September was $23,155.

The figures showed that operating revenues totaled $38,049 while $18,526 was spent for maintenance of the buses.

City Transportation System Manager Jerald Rae reported that he anticipates increased passenger totals in the next two months bringing in substantially more revenue.

Proposed Water System Extension Requires Revenue Bond Election

Nebraska City (AP) — An injunction hearing involving the City of Syracuse wound up in Otoe County District Court Thursday with an agreement which obviated a ruling by District Judge Walter Smith of Plattsmouth.

On Nov. 9, Judge Smith had issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting the city from using utility revenue to bring in additional water from the Cook area south of Syracuse.

The order had been obtained by Glen Davidson and others.

Both parties to the action agreed Thursday that no municipal funds will be used for the water system extension unless a revenue bond election is held to approve the necessary $400,000 bond issue.

Mayor Ervin Kehlbeck said later the bond issue proposal will be put before the voters in the May 9, 1972 election.

The Syracuse board of public works had proposed the expansion program and on Nov 1, the city council disbanded the board of public works.

Group Will Study Coed Visitation

University of Nebraska Board of Regents Chairman Robert Raun of Minden Thursday announced a committee to study coed visitation on the NU campuses.

The Regents had earlier this month directed that such a committee be named.

Horse Comeback

Chicago — The number of riding horses in the United States doubled during the 1960s, sources in the horse trade estimate, and now stands at about 7 million.

'Peace And Freedom' Party Petition Is Filed

The "Peace and Freedom" Party filed its petition forms Thursday for recognition on election ballots, according to Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann.

Although the petition filing is the first under a 1969 law regarding new parties, it was one of a dozen inquiries Beermann said his office has received lately. Under the law, new political parties can only gain official recognition and get on the ballot through the petition method.

Previously, a state convention was all that was required for a party to be put on the ballot.

Among the other groups which have told Beermann they would seek recognition are the "God in Politics" Party, the "Progressive Emblem" Party and the "NEWP" Party (which, its supporters say, stands for new party.)

"I don't have any idea of how many of these parties will actually file and circulate petitions for recognition," Beermann said.

But he said, "It is keeping us busy."

The "Peace and Freedom" Party, Beermann, said originated in California and in 1968, Eldridge Cleaver was the party's first presidential candidate.

The petition was filed by University of Nebraska English Professor Robert Hirschfield of Lincoln.

The party has until Feb. 9 to get 4,620 signatures of registered voters with a distribution factor of 1% of the vote for governor in the last election in 19 counties.

Two Moot Court Teams From NU Win Matches

Omaha — Two moot court teams from the University of Nebraska Law College won all their matches Thursday in regional moot court competition in Omaha.

The competition brings together top teams from law schools in several midwestern states.

Thursday's matches were against the University of Missouri at Kansas City, Washburn University, North Dakota, Creighton, Washington University in St. Louis.

One Nebraska team includes law students Richard Koph and Douglas Kluender, while the other includes James Snowden, David Domina and Kenneth Noha.

The regional competition continues through Saturday.

Exon Is Against Nomination Of Earl Butz

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday objected to the nomination of Earl Butz as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture on the basis of his record during the 1950s.

In a telegram to the Senate Agriculture Committee, Exon said, "The key reason for my objection to Dr. Butz has been his past record under former Secretary Benson when the nation's farmers suffered their other worst cost-price ratio in the nation's history."

"We are in deep economic distress in the farm belt. I am concerned that this fact is not fully appreciated or at least placed in its proper perspective in Washington. An indication that the U.S. Senate is concerned and intends corrective action would be evidenced by your declining to act favorably on this nomination."

Butz, who has been nominated by President Nixon to replace resigning Secretary Clifford Hardin, is a Purdue University dean and a former assistant secretary of agriculture Ezra Taft Benson during the 1950s.

Critics have called Benson "one of the chief architects" of the Benson policies which "forced hundreds of farmers off the land."

U.S. Steps Up Support To Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — With the military situation becoming critical in Cambodia, U.S. warplanes have stepped up their support of Cambodian troops, official American sources reported Thursday.

Reports circulated in Saigon that the South Vietnamese government was considering a Cambodian request for infantry and heavy weapons for the defense of Phnom Penh. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported near the western outskirts of the Cambodian capital.

Dispatches from Phnom Penh reported U.S. Cobra helicopter gunships have been thrown into the battle ranging from 10 to 12 miles west of the capital.

The U.S. sources said the Cambodians have been getting substantially more American air support in the last 10 days, and one source declared: "They asked the United States for more air support because they were in a pinch."

The U.S. Command announced that last week five Americans were reported killed in action in Vietnam — the sixth consecutive week of fewer than eight combat deaths.

The weekly casualty summaries listed relatively low numbers of U.S. wounded. Twenty-one Americans were reported wounded, compared to 13 the previous week — the only two weeks this year when fewer than 25 U.S. troops were wounded. Ten Americans were killed by nonhostile action such as accidents and disease. South Vietnamese battle fatalities were put at 219, compared to 198 the week before. The Saigon command listed enemy dead for last week as 1,063.

Tough U.S. Peace Talk Stand Is Continued With 23 Words

©The New York Times

Paris — William J. Porter, the chief American negotiator at the Vietnam peace talks here, maintained the tough stance he has shown over the last few weeks by saying almost nothing.

Porter greeted Xuan Thuy, the representative of North Vietnam who returned to the conference after a two-month absence, with a 23-ward statement that implied that it was up to Thuy if the talks were to get anywhere. Porter said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: We have repeatedly made our position clear, we are awaiting a constructive reply and, therefore, have nothing further to say."

Thuy and his Viet cong colleague, Nguyen Van Tien, had little to say either. Pham Dang Lam, the Saigon representative took his cue from Porter and limited his remarks to seven minutes.

Soccer Pool Winners Split $1.25 Million

London (AP) — A garage mechanic and a factory worker shared a world record soccer pools prize of over $1.25 million.

Michael Turton, a garage mechanic who lives near Rugby in central England, received the pound equivalent of $634,295 for his skill at forecasting the results of last Saturday's soccer matches throughout Britain.

John Heald, whose job up to now has been repairing mine cars, in Mexborough Yorkshire, won $619,147 for showing equal skill. For Heald, 63, the win means he will retire. He has been in poor health.

Turton, 37, plans a round the world trip for himself and his family, starting off with a safari in South Africa.

"What a great feeling knowing we need not work again," he said. "We have worked 80 hours a week for 10 years and now we will be able to pack it in."

Pools prizes are paid to those entrants who have predicted eight matches in which both teams have scored or tied.

Turton's share of the jackpot was slightly larger than Heald's because he won a greater number of dividends, paid on a points basis.

District Winners In Wool Contest Are Selected

Seward — Four teenage winners were chosen here in the District 6 Make It Yourself With Wool Contest. These girls will represent this district in the state contest at Scottsbluff Dec. 10-11.

The winners are Patty Hughes of Seward, who will represent the junior division, and Jean Bartels of Tobias and Chere O'Neel of Friend, both University of Nebraska students, and Cynthia Winch of Roca, Norris High School student, senior division representatives. Janet Heunink of Hickman and Anita Wright of Wymore were named alternates.

Kathi Huenink of Hickman was named sub-deb winner, and Mrs. Delores Bartels of Tobias, adult division winner.

Thone Says Now Is Time To File Job Applications

"If you want a summer job with a federal agency, the time to apply is now," reports Nebraska Congressman Charles Thone.

The federal government will have about 15,000 summer jobs available through the U.S. Civil Service Commission but expects to receive about 10 times that many applications, Thone said.

Tests will be given in five cities of Nebraska's First Congressional District for filling summer jobs such as Postal Service clerks and carriers and for clerical jobs in Civil Service grades one through four. The test cities are Lincoln, Norfolk, Beatrice and Falls City.

Attleboro, Mass. (AP) — Stolen: one leopard.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry, and theorized the cat thief had keys.

Last 2 Moon Landings In Budgetary Jeopardy

The New York Times

Pasadena, Calif. — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is understood to be under heavy pressure from the Nixon administration to cut its next budget so sharply that it migh have to cancel the remaining two Apollo moon landings.

Sources close to the space program report that the Office of Management and Budget has asked the space agency for a substantial cut in its budget request for fiscal year 1973, which begins next July 1. The requested reduction is said to be "quite a few hundred million dollars" below the current $3.3 billion budget.

NASA is fighting hard this week to convince the administration's budgetmakers to restore all or part of the proposed cuts. The fate of Apollos 16 and 17, scheduled for March and December 1972, may hang in the balance.

NASA officials generally declined to discuss their budget problems. NASA's budget has dwindled each year since its $5.9-billion peak in 1966, but there had been some hope of a modest "turn-around" with the next budget.

Some officials denied that the two Apollo missions were in jeopardy. Dale D. Myers, associate administrator for manned spaceflight, said "Apollos 16 and 17 look firm," but conceded that they could "be in trouble" if there is a significant cut in spending.

But other sources said that NASA, at the administration's request, had drawn up alternate plans that include elimination of one or both of the moon-landing missions, as well as the curtailment, cancellation or delay of other projects.

An Apollo scientist said it would be "absurd" to cancel the two flights because the rockets and spacecraft for the missions have already been paid for and the savings, largely from launching and operational expenses, would be "minimal" compared to the prior investment.

Each Apollo mission costs about $450 million.

One scientist contended that after spending $24 billion on the project, it would be "a national disaster" to end it before the last two missions, in which, he asserted, "the scientific results will be greater than in all the previous missions put together."

CSL Hears Committee Reports

The Council on Studnet Life (CSL) at the University of Nebraska Thursday heard and discussed committee reports on student publications, use of student fees and university health services.

Because of recent complaints about the use of mandatory student fees to finance the university newspaper, the publications committee has begun to investigate making the Daily Nebraskan independent of the fees, committee chairman Dr. James T. Horner said.

He said it would require the purchase of printing facilities at a cost of around $150,000. The newspaper's printing is now done by a Lincoln printer and has, this semester, already cost more than $9,000.

The student fees committee reported that preliminary investigation has indicated that more research needs to be done. However, it did submit a list of proposals that will not be released until the CSL acts upon it.

After hearing a report concerning establishment of a committee to study university health services, CSL approved the formation of a joint committee (consisting of students, faculty and service personnel) to decide upon the scope of such a study.

It will report to CSL at the next meeting Dec. 2.

East Lincoln Unit Outlines Goals For '72

The East Lincoln Business and Professional Association Thursday outlined its goals for 1972.

President of the association Charles Pallesen said a six-point program for the coming year was approved.

It includes working for:

—the widening of 70th Street between O and A.

—ensuring that the University of Nebraska — Lincoln gets allocations for operation and expansion proportionate to its size (as opposed to what Pallesen said may be over-sized allocations for the University of Nebraska — Omaha);

—the building of an Interstate spur to sevre East Lincoln, similar to the I-180 spur for the downtown area;

—a comprehensive study of police protection in East Lincoln;

—better bus service in East Lincoln, including north-south transportation and shuttle service between Gateway shopping center and the downtown area;

—expansion of the association.

Board Will Hear Final Report On Mental Program

The board of directors of the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council will meet at noon Tuesday to hear a final report by a special mental health planning committee.

The committee has been drafting a "model" mental program for the city and county in a project that started early in the year.

Other items on the health council's agenda include action on a Waverly nursing home proposal and progress reports on a proposal for an area health education center and a funding application for the council's work.

The meeting is set for the Cengas building at 1201 N.

State Manpower Planning Council Is Appointed

Gov. J. J. Exon announced Thursday appointments to the newly formed State Manpower Planning Council.

Exon, in announcing the appointments, said the council would meet in the next three or four weeks. Its goal, he said, is to draw up a comprehensve state manpower plan.

Appointed to the unit were Jerry Kromberg, Lincoln, chairman; Clem Aguilar, Lincoln; Bruce Bundy, Hastings; Gerald Chizek, Omaha; George Dworak, Loup City; Alfred Gilpen, Macy; Lawrence Graham, Lincoln; Cecil Stanley, Lincoln; Glen Kreuscher, Lincoln; Michael La Montia, Omaha; Stanley Matzke, Lincoln; Dale McCoy, Ralston; Dale Simpson, Utica; and Glen Soukup, Lincoln.

Bowl Deals Remove Suspense

According to the rules, bowl bids are neither to be extended nor accepted prior to 6 p.m. Saturday, but also as nearly everyone knows it doesn't work that way.

Every football fan with sight good enough to read or hearing good enough to listen knows who's going to be calling whom at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Every telephone operator in Miami, who also happens to be a football fan, knows that Saturday evening she might be the one to place the calls to Lincoln, Neb., and to Tuscaloosa, Ala., where Nebraska's Bob Devaney and Alabama's Bear Bryant will just happen to be sitting by their telephones to say "Yes."

It's also no secret that calls will go out from New Orleans to Norman, Okla., and Auburn, Ala., sites of the University of Oklahoma and Auburn University.

And as soon as Penn State trots off the field after blasting Pitt, coach Joe Paterno will be handed a Cotton Bowl contract and all Texas has to do to be the other team is to beat Texas A&M on Thanksgiving Day.

Ironically, the bowl that may be most up in the air is one that supposedly was all set a couple of weeks ago with Stanford and Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

All of a sudden it's possible that Stanford, a loser to such powers as Duke, Washington State and San Jose State, might not be in it after all.

If California defeats Stanford Saturday and gets a favorable court decision against its NCAA-imposed probation, the Golden Bears would be in the Rose Bowl.

The excitement of what might happen at 6 p.m. Saturday has been dulled, much the same way that national elections have been dulled by those computerized gadgets that give you the winner with only a small percentage of the votes in.

Another week like last week and we may consider borrowing one of those computers. The 39-18 mark for a .694 percentage dropped the season log to 371-148-5 for a .713 percentage.

This week:

The Big Eight

COLORADO 35, Air Force 14 . . . Last year the Buffs didn't want a bowl game, this year they do.

IOWA STATE 34, Oklahoma State 20 . . . The Cyclones also are eyeing a bowl trip, but it hinges on a victory over the Cowboys.

KANSAS STATE 28, Memphis State 14 . . . The Wildcats aren't going to a bowl and Memphis State is, but even an also-ran in the Big Eight ought to be able to beat the Missouri Valley champion.

KANSAS 21, Missouri 14 . . . So what if the Jayhawks don't have a defense; the Tigers don't have an offense.

The Top Ten

Statistics Say It's Best Defense Vs. Best Offense

Kansas City, Mo. — Oklahoma has its Big Eight Conference offensive records, and Nebraska has its league defensive titles.

Now only a pair of conference games and a couple of non-league tests remain before the "Big Eight Bowl," that classic confrontation in Norman, Oklahoma, Thanksgiving Day, when the best the two have to offer is matched.

The pony power of the Oklahoma backfield filed an NCAA and two Big Eight marks last week, when it zoomed to 4,333 rushing and 5,069 total yards for the year.

Thus, with two games still to go, the Sooners have wiped out two long-standing marks the 3,910 rushing (which was the high in collegiate football history until the development of Oklahoma wishbone competency) and 4,817 totally, which were held by another Oklahoma team, the 1956 national champions.

To get yet another mark held by that last Oklahoma collegiate titlist, the Sooners will have to score 62 points in their final brace of games.

Nebraska, no slouch, either, offensively, holding a relatively pat hand which could well have broken the seasonal total-offense mark had not the Sooners burst forth, will end up winning at least three of the four Conference defensive crowns — rushing, total, and scoring.

The Black Shirts dropped their rushing-stopping average to 70.5 for the year last week. It would take over 900 ground lengths the last two games to wipe out the lead held now.

A similar kind of insurmountable lead exists in both the total-defense and scoring-defense chases — 1,400 is what it would take in yards and 82 in points (or 18 more than the season's total surrendered). Somewhat closer is the contest for passing-defense supremacy. True, the Huskers top all, showing a 101.2 average, but conceivably Iowa State, with a 116.9 average, could overtake Nebraska.

BOWL PICTURE FORMS

. . . NU, OU, CU Slated For Bids

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame declared itself out of the post-season game of musical chairs Thursday as pieces began falling into place — unofficially — in the major college football bowls.

Under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, promoters aren't permitted to contact teams until 6 p.m. Saturday, local time, in the area the team is playing.

Nevertheless, phones have been jangling all over the country for a week, and some of the big bowls are reportedly set.

According to best inside information, they stack up this way:

ROSE BOWL Jan. 1 — Michigan 10-0 vs. Stanford 7-3.

ORANGE BOWL Jan. 1 — Nebraska 10-0 vs. Alabama 10-0.

SUGAR BOWL Jan. 1 — Oklahoma 9-0 vs. Auburn 9-0.

COTTON BOWL Jan. 1 — Texas 7-2 vs. Penn State 9-0.

GATOR BOWL Dec. 31 — Georgia 9-1 vs. North Carolina 8-2.

BLUEBONNET BOWL Dec. 31 — Colorado 8-2 vs. Houston 7-2.

FIESTA BOWL Dec. 27 — Arizona State 8-1 vs Florida State 6-3.

LIBERTY BOWL Dec. 20 — Arkansas 7-2-1 vs. Tennessee 6-2.

TANGERINE BOWL — Toledo 10-0 vs. Richmond 4-5 or William & Mary 5-5.

PEACH BOWL — Air Force 6-3 vs. Mississippi 8-2.

Announcement that the Fighting Irish, who for years maintained a firm no-bowl attitude, would sit this one out came from Coach Ara Parseghian in South Bend, Ind.

The coach said he took a sounding of the players and they voted against bowl participation. The Irish this year failed to measure up to expectations, losing to Southern California 28-14 and squeaking past several other teams which they were supposed to overpower.

The Irish also have a tough game coming up Saturday night in Baton Rouge, La., against Louisiana State. Notre Dame lost to Texas in the Cotton Bowl, Jan. 1, 1970 but came back to beat the previously unbeaten Longhorns Jan. 1, 1971.

Meanwhile, Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State, the best team in the East, maintained a closed mouth on his team's bowl plans.

"The only thing we are concerned about now is Pitt," Paterno said, referring to the game Saturday in Pittsburgh. The Nittany Lions are ranked No. 6 in The Associated Press poll.

Another announcement out of Jacksonville, Fla., said that Georgia, No. 8 in the AP poll, is one of the preferred teams for the Gator Bowl Dec. 31, with Gator scouts looking at Saturday's games for a rival. Tennesse and North Carolina are the most likely teams to be contacted.

As usual the four big bowls — Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Rose — will command the most attention, bringing into action six teams unbeaten at the present time.

Thus, the national championship may hinge on the Jan. 1 contests, as was the case last year when Nebraska, 17-12 winner over Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl, won the title when Notre Dame beat defending champion Texas in the Cotton Bowl and Ohio State fell before Stanford in the Orange Bowl.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska, the country's winningest football coach has been biding his time for another shot at Alabama since the Crimson Tide beat his Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl 39-28 in 1966 and repeated in the Sugar Bowl in 1967 by 34-7.

Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama, with one of his best squads, has a fondness for the Orange Bowl.

The national title could be decided in the Orange and Sugar Bowls, with Michigan, now No. 3 in the AP poll, in position to stake a claim with a triumph in the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska and Oklahoma, now ranked Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, clash in Norman, Okla., on Thanksgiving Day. Auburn and Alabama, rivals of long standing, match their perfect marks in a game at Birmingham the following Saturday, Nov. 27.

Michigan closes its Big Ten campaign Saturday against Ohio State at Ann Arbor. Stanford climaxes the regular season in "The Big Game" against California. The California Bears, by winning, could usurp Stanford's place in the Rose Bowl but such an eventuality appears unlikely.

The Bears would have to get a favorable court decision on the suit protesting the probation on them by the NCAA and would need a favorable vote from the Pacific-8 directors.

Ex-Husker Coach Joins Hurricanes

Miami (UPI) —Pete Elliott, former head football coach at Nebraska, California and Illinois, Thursday was appointed assistant athletic director at the University of Miami.

Elliott will assist athletic director Ernie McCoy, who came to the Hurricanes last year from Penn State and is a family friend of the Elliotts.

Elliott resigned as Illinois coach because of alleged involvement in a slush fund set up to help athletes.

He has been in private business the past few years.

Pressbox Filled For OU-NU Tilt

The sold out sign that was hung up on Oklahoma's Owen Field long ago for the Nebraska-Oklahoma game has now also been hung up on the pressbox that sits atop the stadium.

Oklahoma sports information director Johnny Keith is turning down all requests now being received for pressbox or sidelines space.

Keith says the Thanksgiving Day game will be covered by 97 writers from 65 newspapers, plus two magazines and both the Associated Press and United Press International wire services, NCAA Films, Tel-Ra, six Oklahoma and Nebraska TV stations, seven radio stations from the two states and numerous photographers.

—COACHING HELPS—

Many Factors Keys To Cutting Miscues

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

One of the characteristics of Nebraska's top-ranked football team this season has been its ability to put together long drives, an accomplishment that requires a minimum of mistakes.

"We have been running the same offense consistently," NU head coach Bob Devaney began in trying to explain the Huskers' ability to play nearly perfect ball much of the time this season.

"I wouldn't say it's a simple offense," he added, "But there isn't much multiple ball handling and that helps cut down on fumbles.

"And our quarterbacks have gotten good protection from the line and with good protection you're not apt to throw as many interceptions.

"And our line hasn't made many mistakes on running plays which keep some defensive man from busting through and hitting a ball carrier just as he's getting the ball."

But Devaney also points out that in that regard, the Huskers may not yet have faced a defense as good as Oklahoma's that they will meet on Thanksgiving Day.

"We're going to be facing the best defense we've seen this year," he said, "Not to mention the best offense."

The Husker coach points to experience as another factor in keeping mistakes to a minimum.

"Jeff Kinney is in his third year," Devaney notes. "So is Jerry Tagge. Gary Dixon played two years of junior college ball before coming here and Johnny Rodgers is in his second year.

"Having that experience helps. The same is true of our receivers as of our running backs. Jerry List is starting for a second year and he was red shirted a year. Woody Cox had junior college experience before coming to Nebraska."

Still another factor, Devaney says, is the work of the assistant coaches.

"Our coaches don't just teach plays," he pointed out. "They also teach techniques.

"They work hard to make sure the ball carrier gets the ball in the right (proper) hand and that he knows when to bull his way and when he should run to daylight.

"Those are very fundamental things, but they're very important things and we work hard on them."

Devaney said offensive tackle Carl Johnson, who suffered a knee injury in the win over Kansas State last week, remains very doubtful as a performer in the contest with the Sooners.

"I think Carl Johnson is very doubtful despite his optimism," Devaney said.

But he said Willie Harper, who is hampered with a slight shoulder injury, and Johnny Rodgers, suffering from a cold, should be ready.

"The problem with Harper is that he's missing work that he should be getting," Devaney said, referring to the Huskers' defensive preparations for the wishbone-T.

Both Harper and Rodgers were in sweat clothes Thursday.

Kickers In Top 10

Placekickers John Carroll of Oklahoma and Rich Sanger of Nebraska both rank in the top 10 in scoring by kicking this week, according to NCAA national statistics.

Carroll, averaging seven points per game, ranks third behind co-leaders Dana Coin of Michigan and Alberto Vitiello of Penn State, both averaging 7.1 points.

Sanger is 10th with a 6.1 average.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers ranks sixth in punt returning, averaging 15.9 yards per runback, and is 14th in pass receiving, averaging 4.5 catches per game.

Weight, Height Highlight Class C All-State Team

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

A quartet of interior linemen who average 217 pounds and an entire lineup which averages over 6-2 in height are the outstanding features of the 1971 Lincoln Star Class C high school all-state football team.

Plainview High tackle Bob Lingenfelter leads the way in both of the measurement departments, spreading 270 pounds over his 6-8 frame.

But nobody on the Class C mythical eleven is a midget. Grant center Alan Haenfler and Hastings St. Cecilia guard Dave Boeding are the "shorties" of the team at an even six feet.

Haenfler and 6-1½ Gretna back Ted Cox, not exactly small at 170 pounds, are the lightweights. From there on, in both height and weight, everything goes up until reaching the mammouth Lingenfelter.

In addition to the Plainview giant and Boeding, at 190 pounds, the interior line is completed by Randy Shada of Anselmo-Merna at 6-1 and 210, plus Bridgeport's Bob Benton, a 6-1½, 198-pound strongman.

The all-state ends are a pair of rangy, pass-catching bruisers. Both tip the scales at 200 pounds. Gibbon's Glen Lavington is 6-3, while Craig Wegner of North Loup-Scotia is an inch taller.

The explosive backfield combines speed and size. In addition to Cox there is David City's Bob Martin, a choice last fall after his junior season, at 6-1 and 188 pounds, Geneva's Dan Sorge (6-3, 185) and Randy Ennis of Valley, 6-2 and 205.

Another unusual feature of the Class C dream team is the fact that three of the members have a closer-than-normal relationship with their coach.

Grant center Haenfler and Gretna back Cox each plays for his father, while Shada, the Anselmo-Merna tackle, is coached by his brother.

Regarding the situation, each of the coaches echoed the sentiments of Gretna mentor Duane Cox who said, "Since I began coaching I have tried to treat every athlete the way I would like another coach to treat my own sons. So, they are no different than any other squad member.

"I also make it a point to leave the poor practice or game at school and not to overexpose or subject them to additional frustration at home over dinner. So far it has worked out well and I enjoy the assignment tremendously."

When opposing coaches sent in their all-state ballots, the votes for the linemen were full of phrases like, "Great blocker," "Outstanding speed and lateral movement" and "Big, tough, has desire."

Typical is Lingenfleter, who despite his size, has been timed in :05.1 for the 40-yard dash, recovered four fumbles, blocked three punts and as a tackle-eligible caught seven passes for 69 yards, including a pair of touchdowns.

Shada could handle the team's punting chores. He averaged 44 yards per boot on the season, with a 79-yarder on one attempt.

And the backfield is loaded with talent too. Cox, the only junior this year, completed one-half of his 142 passes for 1,135 yards. In addition he rushed for 598 more and was a defensive standout.

As the only repeater from a season ago, Martin was even more sensational in his final campaign. He carried 214 times for 1,387 yards, piling up 3,893 yards in his three-year career. This fall Martin tallied 24 touchdowns.

Sorge is another back with over 1,000 yards in total offense this fall. During his Geneva career he ran or passed for 38 touchdowns while leading the team defensively.

Ennis is another complete ball player. Like the others he was tough on defense. In addition, the bruising fullback rushed for 955 yards this fall and caught 15 passes to run his total to 1,165. Ennis tallied 17 touchdowns, kicked 12 extra points and a couple of field goals to score 124 points.

Wadkins, Hooper Lead Azalea Open Tourney

. . . ROOKIE FIRES SEVEN-UNDER-PAR 64

Wilmington, N.C. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, a brash and cocky 21-year-old rookie, fired a brilliant, seven-under-par 64 and tied Herb Hooper for the first round lead in the $35,000 Thursday.

Azalea Open Golf Tournament

Wadkins, a former national Amateur champion, and Hooper held a one-stroke lead over Buck Adams, a veteran club pro from Pinehurst, N.C., who had a 65.

Earl Fennell, a balding 39-year-old, and Len Thompson, another rookie and one-time teammate of Wadkins' at Wake Forest, were next at 66, five under par on the 6,575-yard Cape Fear Country club course.

Wadkins dropped out of Wake Forest earlier this year to turn pro while the 24-year-old Thompson, playing in his first pro event, was graduated from the same school two years ago.

A group of seven followed at 67, headed by amateur Jay Simons, another Wake Forest student. The others were rookie Allen Miller, Jim Dent, Paul Bondeson, Paul Moran, Ted Hayes, and Tommy Sanderson.

Tom Weiskopf, the only one of this year's top 25 money winners competing in this relatively low money event, only managed to match par 71 in the warm, sunny weather. Most of the rest of the field was made up of second-line pros, those fighting for 1972 exemptions, and rookies.

Bluejay Cagers Ready For Intrasquad Game

Omaha — Creighton University's 1971-72 Bluejays put their wares on public display for the first time Friday in an 8 p.m. battle against a tough freshman crew at the Omaha Civic Auditorium.

This is one of those years when a varsity victory cannot be taken for granted.

Coach Eddie Sutton has no seniors and only two veterans on his varsity team. That inexperience plus lack of great height poses problems for Sutton and his staff. Add to the picture a frosh team that is tougher than even the Jay staff had hoped, and the Friday battle becomes a toss-up.

Al Lewis, lightening quick 6-3 guard, is the only returning regular for the varsity. He will be joined by 6-7 center Gene Ellefson as the only ones who saw varsity action last season.

A fine group of sophomores gives Creighton followers some hopes for an enjoyable varsity season. Sophs seeing action in the early going should be 6-6 Gene Harmon, 6-5 Ted Wuebben, 6-7 Ralph Bobik, and 5-11 Bimbo Pietro.

J. B. LeBlance, a 6-8 transfer from junior college ranks, 6-1 Richie Smith, 5-11 Marc Mirsky, and 6-5 Wayne Heinrich are the rest of the varsity, and all should see considerable action.

Frosh coach Jocko Ilcisin will call on a ranging crew of 6-8 Doug Brookins, 6-8 Wayne Groves, 6-5 Tom Anderson, 6-5 Dave Terek, and 6-5 Charles Butler to start. Ilcisin also has Butler to start. Ilcisin also has these prospects ready: John Forrey (6-1), Claude Brinson (6-3), Gerald Francis (6-1), Mike Scahill (5-10), and Dennis McDermott (5-11).

Paul Bryant Best Coach

Atlanta (UPI) — Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant, winner of more college football games than any other active coach and third on the all-time list, Thursday was named Southeastern Conference Coach of the Year by United Press International.

Bryant, whose current team has a 10-0 record and is ranked No. 4 nationally, won by a substantial margin over runnerup Vince Dooley of Georgia in balloting by sportswriters and sportscasters in the seven-state SEC region.

Bryant had appeared to be fading after two sub-par (6-4, 6-5) seasons but "getting back down in the trenches" regained his touch this fall and now has only the Nov. 27 game with fifth-ranked, equally unbeaten Auburn standing between him and his fourth perfect season in 11 years.

Waverly Takes Volleyball Meet

Waverly — The Waverly High School girls' volleyball team defeated Norris, 13-15, 15-12, 15-6 to earn first place at the Waverly Invitational Volleyball Tournament here Thursday night.

In the consolation match, Centennial topped Elmwood, 7-15, 15-4, 15-10 to gain third.

Other competing teams included Auburn, Tecumseh, Yutan and Palmyra.

All-Tournament Team

Janet Behrends, Norris; Les Wefer, Centennial; Pat Heine, Centennial; Lana Maroif, Waverly; Debbie Hestermann, Waverly; Pam Oehlerking, Waverly; Paula Walberg, Elmwood.

Oklahoma Works On Passing Game

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Second-ranked Oklahoma rushed through a chilly but spirited practice Thursday. The Sooners will host No. 1-ranked Nebraska in a nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game.

Coach Chuck Fairbanks said that films were taken of Thursday's practice to be used for the next few days in teaching against Nebraska.

The Sooners spent a long time working on passing and protection for the passer. Fairbanks rated Nebraska as one of the best pass-rush teams in the nation.

Usual Retirement Age No Factor As Durocher Rehired By Cubs

Chicago (AP) — Doughty Leo Durocher, who reached the usual retirement age of 65 last summer, was rehired Thursday as manager for 1972 by the Chicago Cubs.

It gave "Leo the Lip" the last laugh in a flurry of recent rumors that he would be abandoned by Cub owner Phil Wrigley.

The foremost rumor centered on one of Leo's cronies of the old New York Giants, Whitey Lockman.

Even Ernie Banks, "Mr. Cub," hobbled the last few seasons with a bad knee, was mentioned prominently in a rumor which Wrigley quelled last month, announcing that Banks was too nice a guy for the job as manager.

"Ernie has such a beautiful reputation in baseball, it would be a shame to ruin it by making him a manager," said the 76-year-old chewing-gum magnate.

Durocher failed to bring the Cubs a pennant in six years as pilot, compiling a 430-379 record in that time. Last year, the team folded to a share of third place in the National League East with 83-79.

The oust Durocher cry became so loud that Wrigley, on Sept. 3, used a large paid advertisement in Chicago newspapers to tell fans and critics that the "dump Durocher" clique might as well give up.

Wrigley, at the same time, warned that any Cub players balking under Durocher's leadership would be found in "happier homes" this winter.

Devaney, NU Receive Gift

By The Associated Press

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney Thursday accepted from Gov. J. J. Exon a large "Big Red" football made from carnations as a gift from the state of Colorado.

The presentation from Exon to Devaney and Cornhusker co-captains Jim Anderson and Jerry Tagge was made during a short ceremony at the governor's mansion.

The 1,000 carnations, most of them red with a few white ones, were a gift from Colorado Gov. John Love and the Colorado Flower Growers Association and were prepared in the form of a four-foot high and three-foot wide styrofoam football by the Nebraska Florists Association.

Devaney and the two co-captains decided to put it on display in the student union at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

When Exon commented that the football, which was red with the letter "N" on the sides in white flowers, didn't have a "No. 1" on it, Devaney's reply was "We'll take care of that."

Exon called the gift a "very fine gesture" and said it represented Colorado's claim to be one of the carnation capitols of the world.

"People all over the state are sold on this team, not because of your record, but because of the fine young men who play on the team," Exon said.

"Whether the Cornhuskers win or lose to Oklahoma next week" "you're still tops as far as we're concerned," Exon said.

Redskins' Allen Hoping To Continue Mastery Of Cowboys

By United Press International

Washington coach George Allen must retain his whammy over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in order for the Redskins to keep the Eastern Division lead in the National Football Conference.

An Allen-coached team has never lost to Dallas. Allen met the Cowboys just twice in five years as Los Angeles Rams coach and beat Dallas both times. Earlier this season the 'Skins edged the Cowboys, 20-16, to take the division lead. They haven't been displaced since that Oct. 3 game.

Despite their half game lead and being host Sunday, Washington is a three-point underdog. Injuries to runinng backs Larry Brown and Charley Harraway put the Redskins in an offensive bind since they made up the bulk of Washington's running game. They are listed as doubtful starters, as is safety Richie Petitbon.

Allen hasn't had too much success lately with his quarterbacks and probably will alternate Sonny Jurgensen and Billy Kilmer in the driver's slot. Jurgensen showed some style in his first game since a preseason injury when he completed four of six passes in the one-point loss to Chicago last Sunday.

Coach Tom Landry used Roger Staubach to get Dallas moving the last two weekends and probably will go with him again, especially after his 176-yard passing and 90-yard running effort against Philadelphia last Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Miami is a 3-point pick over Baltimore, Minnesota is favored by 7 over New Orleans, San Francisco and Los Angeles are rated a toss-up, Cleveland is picked by 8 over New England, Pittsburgh by 4 over the New York Giants, the New York Jets by 7 over Buffalo, St. Louis by 7 over Philadelphia, Kansas City by 14 over Denver, Oakland by 14 over San Diego and Detroit vs. Chicago rated even.

Green Bay plays at Atlanta in the Monday night nationally televised game, with the Falcons 8 point picks.

Miami and Baltimore meet in the first of two clashes within a three-week stretch that may decide the Eastern Division title. Bob Griese came off a sick bed to pass Miami past Pittsburgh last weekend. All three Griese scoring strikes were to Paul Warfield. Baltimore managed a one-point win over the Jets after blocking an extra-point try and a field goal attempt.

Minnesota runs up against a New Orleans club that has been beating the brass off the top teams in the league. The Saints trounced Dallas, San Francisco and Los Angeles and held Oakland to a tie. The Vikings are the stingiest team in the National Football League with a 72-point yield. They have shut out three opponents this season, including Green Bay by 3-0 last Sunday.

Roman Gabriel tied a Ram record with 11 consecutive pass completions against Detroit as he hit on 17 of 22 passes for 179 yards and two touchdowns. John Brodie connected on 20 of 28 for San Francisco in the loss to New Orleans. He picked up 203 aerial yards and threw two TD passes.

Cleveland is in one of its worst slumps with four straight losses and hopes to use the Patriots as a springboard to victory. But the Browns hook up with an improved New England club that boasts two straight wins and a rookie All-American making headlines. Jim Plunkett had his best day against Buffalo with four TD passes last weekend.

Oakland is unbeaten in its last eight games after its season high 41-21 win over Houston. The Raiders also are primed for San Diego's John Hadl after setting a club interception record of 143 yards on four thefts.

Kansas City, a half game back of Houston in the AFC's Western Division, beat Denver, 16-3, earlier this year. The Broncs will have Steve Ramsey at quarterback in place of injured Don Horn, out for the season with a shoulder separation.

Blin Promises Ali Stronger Contest

Houston (UPI) — Jurgen Blin, a 28-year-old heavyweight from Hamburg, Germany, agreed Thursday to a 12-round fight in Zurich, Switzerland, Dec. 18 with Muhammad Ali and promised to give Ali a tougher battle than Buster Mathis.

Ali knocked Mathis down four times and won a unanimous 12-round decision in the Astrodome Wednesday night. It was Ali's 33rd victory in 34 fights.

Blin, a handsome, square-shouldered blond, has won 28 fights, lost eight and fought six draws.

Ali-Mathis Fight Nets High Gate

Houston (UPI) — The Muhammad Ali-Buster Mathis fight had a net gate of $400,000 Robert Arum of New York said Thursday.

Arum president of Top Rank, Inc., which handled the ancillary rights, said the net revenue for the telecast was $250,000, and the total live gate was $150,000.

Of the $400,000, Ali was guaranteed $300,000, and Mathis 15 per cent—or $60,000. That left a $40,000 profit.

Pentagon Newsroom Searched

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department acknowledged Thursday its security agents continued to conduct nighttime forays on the Pentagon press room with a rummage through newsroom desks, but it said this was a mistake and will not be repeated.

A spokesman said Daniel Z. Henkin, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, "was very distressed to know this happened." The spokesman said Henkin was told by the security people this "was an inadvertent check" and "will not happen again."

Reporters were given a similar assurance by Henkin several months ago but on arriving for work Wednesday cards were found on the desks of correspondents for Time magazine and the New York Daily News which said:

"An inspection of this office area by the Pentagon Counter-Intelligence Force revealed no violations of security regulations."

The Pentagon spokesman, Brig. Gen. Daniel James, said the Counter-Intelligence Force regularly checks all Pentagon offices to make sure safes are locked and no classified materials are left out overnight.

But reporters noted the press room is an unclassified area and they do not hold security clearances. They complained these after-hours inspections gave the Pentagon an opportunity to go through their notes and learn the names of contacts.

James said the counter-intelligence agents apparently failed to realize they were in the press room.

"If they can't figure out it's the press room," one reporter told James, "what kind of intelligence people are they?"

Money Panel Votes To Cut Forces In Europe

Washington (AP) — Carving $3.3 billion from President Nixon's defense budget, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved by one vote Thursday bringing 50,000 American troops home from Europe.

Chairman Alan Ellender, D-La., dismissed as "hogwash" a protest from Defense Secretary Melvin Laird that enforcing a 250,000-man limit on U.S. forces in Europe would irresponsibly damage the American defense position.

The committee approved 1972 defense spending of $70.2 billion, a figure that is $800 million less than the House-passed total and $3.3 billion less than the administration wanted.

Spy Cash Cut

The committee rejected, 14 to 10, another in a long series of moves to use the power of purse to force withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina and, among a number of other specific cuts, it voted to trim spending for military intelligence by $68.4 million. The House voted earlier to trim intelligence funds by an additional $181 million.

Ellender said the cuts will not affect national security in any manner and added: "We are confident the military can operate effectively with this huge sum."

Ellender noted the Nixon administration says the war is practically over in Vietnam and that the nation will not get involved in any more Vietnam-type conflicts.

"Therefore this is an opportune time to cut back unnecessary military spending," Ellender said, suggesting the savings be used to step up domestic programs in education, poverty and pollution.

14-13 Vote

Ellender said the recommendation troop cut in Europe, which was approved on a narrow 14-13 committee vote, also will not affect U.S. security.

"We simply do not need 300,000 American troops there any more," Ellender said. "Our allies must take on a larger share of the defense burden in Europe."

Ellender said the cuts were made even though the money needed for salaries and wages now accounts for 52% of the total Pentagon budget as compared to only 42% in 1968 when there were a million additional men and women in the armed forces.

The European withdrawal amendment has been sponsored unsuccessfully for years by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

In its present form it cuts off spending after June 15, 1972, for any troops in Europe in excess of 250,000.

Rehnquist's Associations Questioned

Washington (UPI) — Chairman James O. Eastland of the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday agreed to delay a vote and ask the FBI to determine if Supreme Court nominee William H. Rehnquist was ever a member of a right-wing political action group in Arizona.

The committee, which must approve the nominations of Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. before they are sent to the Senate floor for confirmation put off a vote until Tuesday.

Sen. Birch Bayh told reporters following an hour-long closed meeting that Eastland had agreed at his request to ask the FBI to question persons in Arizona about Rehnquist's alleged association with Arizonans for America, which Bayh described as a possible "precursor" of the John Birch Society.

The Justice Department said in a statement Wednesday that Rehnquist had never been a member of Arizonans for America.

Gain Evaporates In Stock Market

New York (AP) — Stock market prices sank as an early lead evaporated in Thursday's moderate trading.

The 3:30 p.m. EST Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 6.79 to 815.35. At one point it was ahead more than 3 points.

"The action we saw here today is a indicative of a market expressing its disappointment that some of its expectations that 1972 would be a strong year for corporate profits may not be borne out," said Monte Gordon, an analyst at Bache & Co.

Other analysts noted most investors were staying away from the market because of concern about Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic policies and the international monetary situation. They noted because of this the bargain hunting which prompted the early upswing dried up.

Gordon noted the market experienced its disappointment with corporate profit expectations Thursday in its negative response to mortgage investment issues.

An official of Continental Mortgage Investors said his company expected its earnings to fall short of year ago levels. The official blamed the decline on the great proliferation of new real estate investment-trust organizations. Analysts noted investors feared the earnings slowdown would be industry wide.

Mortgage investment stocks declined sharply in response to the prediction, occupying a large percentage of the most-active issues on the American Stock Exchange and also dropping on the New York Stock Exchange.

There were 92 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the New York Stock Exchange compared with 97 Wednesday. The biggest was 124,600 shares of S. W. Woolworth at 46, off 1.

The New York Stock Exchange Index of some 1,300 common stocks fell .39 to 50.78. Big Board volume was 13.02 million shares compared with 12.84 million shares Wednesday.

There were 491 advances and 878 declines out of 1,683 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 9 new yearly highs and 92 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 2.1 to 298.6, with industrials off 2.9, rails off 2.0, and utilities off .3.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dipped .72 to 92.13.

Metals, motors, mail order-retail were mixed. Rubber issues and aircrafts were up. All other stock categories were off.

Volume leader on the Big Board was C I Mortgage, off 2½ at 23.

American Stock Exchange prices also lost ground. The Am e x price-change index slipped .18 to 23.92. Volume was 3.93 million shares compared with 2.84 million shares Wednesday. There were 269 advances and 570 declines out of 1,124 issues traded.

Corporate bonds were mixed, and governments were generally unchanged.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Time Is Ripe To Ponder Future Economic Trends

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Merryle Rukeyser

Since fluctuations in basic economic trends are not as mercurial as changes in the mood at the Stock Exchange, the time is ripe for consolidated thinking about the shape of things to come.

Less Mercurial Changes

Eventually inconsistencies are ironed out. With "conservative" union spokesman joined with the radical left and drug culture youth in sneering at profits, there has been disenchantment with common stocks. This has been accompanied by evidence of lack of glamor for mutual funds with a load, with redemptions for several months exceeding new purchases.

But in the face of this trend, the Federal Wage Board has put a ceiling on increases of labor payments at 5½%. This limit, however, is almost double the normal increase in productivity, and is admittedly somewhat inflationary. The board evidently felt that this 5½% ceiling was the lowest which organized labor would accept. And the correctness of this assumption was evidenced by the fact that the five union leaders on the board voted against this yardstick.

The board defends the rule on the ground that it is in line with President Nixon's desire to cut in half the rate of inflation. But, if this expectation should be fulfilled, a mild inflation of around 3% a year is certainly not to be ignored.

Such depreciation of money adversely affects conventional thrift in fixed dollars, including savings accounts and high grade bonds and mortgages, and has the practical effect of reducing the wages of capital for what economists call the "pains of abstinence."

Though down somewhat from the peak, bond yields are still high by historic standards. Part of the high yield is the price investors exact as compensation for the expected depreciation of the dollars in which principal will be returned at maturity and in which interest will be paid during the interim.

Further Sweeteners

Increasingly smart institutional investors seek further sweeteners in warrants to buy stock at favorable prices and conversion privileges.

If there is to be a scientific approach, then public policy which accepts even a modicum of chronic inflation spells out the desirabolityof a search for inflation hedges. Whether these take the place of diamonds, precious metals, art works, land or common stocks, the need for surviving conancially, despite money tinkering, persists.

To the extent that bond prices rise while stock prices decline, the disparity in relative yields is narrowed. But for stocks to regain their place in investment portfolios, it is desirable to clarify the political climate. Obviously some corporations, with a large labor input and the need of buying raw materials, may be hurt rather than helped by inflation. Discerning investors, recognizing this, concentrated on growth stocks which seemed destined to expand profits faster than the dollar will depreciate.

Would Like Clues

Psychologically, investors would like some clues as to whether the current collective hysteria against profits is a passing phemnomenon. Obviously, industrial management, with its large purse, would become more enterprising in clarifying the social benefits of the American competitive, profit-and-loss system. Such enlightenment should increase popular demand to scrap the Falangistic Phase II stabilization apparatus, and return to an open market.

The market will be able to operate better when the Congress elects to update the labor-management legislation and take from private associations—the unions—the flat and monopolistic power to dictate inflationary costs three years into the future. The failure of two of the strongest and most sophisticated companies—General Electric and General Motors—to bargain equally with the artificially supported unions was manifest when each failed to avoid inflationary costs by taking long strikes.

Price-to-earnings ratios of stocks have tumbled as corporate earnings have been rising while stocks were dropping in price. In the realm of risk taking, analytical investors will try to take advantage of current aberrations to improve the balance in their investment portfolios.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Union Station Selection Is A Surprise

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad expressed surprise Thursday that its Omaha Union Station has been listed as a national historical site.

A spokesman said the railroad was puzzled over the selection, since the station was built as recently as 1931 and there were many other stations with more historical value.

The station was listed as a historical site Wednesday by the National Park Service. It has been out of use since May 1 when the railroad dropped its passenger train service.

The station was nominated by the Nebraska State Historical Society because it is a "significant structure," director Marvin Kivett said.

AFL-CIO STATES TERMS

WORK DONE . . .

State Music Educators Open Meet

Invite 800 students and 600 teachers to Lincoln for three days

Then promise 650 beds in 400 homes in the city at a rate of $2 per person per day (bed and breakfast).

Next ask for volunteers to provide the beds, so the money can go to a foreign exchange program.

Request use of about half of a local high school building and the cooperation of its students and teachers and administrators and parents, so that school can go on at the same time

Finally, invite an impressive list of guest lecturers, professionals and groups to help out, and then plan a grueling series of rehearsals and performances

Total all that up, and more, and what it takes to host the Nebraska Music Educators Association annual convention and clinic becomes apparent.

The guests arrived Thursday, converging on Lincoln High School from all parts of the Cornhusker State.

But the real work was already done—the packets for each participate were ready, the homes and beds and hosts identified and notified, the exhibitors booths, and displays set up the scheduling and finishing touches arranged—well, mostly that is, as was evident in mid-afternoon when Lincoln High Principal William Bogar was hustling to find 65 extra chairs for rehearsals.

Highlight of the three-day affair will be the final concert at 7:30 Saturday evening at Pershing Municipal Auditorium, where students selected in try-outs around the state will gather for orchestral, band and choral concerts under the direction of guest conductors.

Before then, however, the students will have participated in five rehearsals, second of which began at 8:30 Friday morning

Only break comes Friday night with "an evening at Wesleyan," featuring a concert by the Pro Arte String Quartet and a dance at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Meanwhile, the music educators from schools and colleges in the state will be holding meetings at locations throughout the city, and new officers of the state association will be announced Friday night during a banquet at the East Hills Supper Club.

Beds and breakfasts for about 650 of the guests are being donated in support of the American Field Service student exchange program, which will realize about $2,700 from the venture.

Corporate Income Tax Increase To Be Asked

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's interim study committee on taxes voted Thursday to recommend to the 1972 session of the Legislature raising the corporate income tax to 25% of the personal income tax rate

The corporate income tax is currently 20% of the state's personal income tax. At the current personal rate of 13% for 1972, this would mean the corporate tax would be 3.25%.

The recommendation was one of seven made by the five-man committee after a series of public hearings held throughout the state during the summer and fall months. However, the motions can only be recommended by the committee. They must be introduced and approved by the unicameral and the governor before they become law.

The committee also recommended a personal property tax exemption over a five-year period totaling 90%. The exemption would include farm and business equipment and inventory.

Beginning in 1973, the proposal would exempt 30% of an individual's personal property from taxation. For the next two years another 20% would be added each year to the exemption. This would bring the exemption to 70% after three years.

The rest of the exemption would be added in 10% allotments over the following two years, culminating in the final 90% exemption figure in 1977.

The $14.4 million revenue loss to the state for the first year of the exemption must be made up by increasing the sales and income tax rates. How much this would raise the rates the senators could not say.

Two similar personal property exemption bills were vetoed during the last session by Gov. J. James Exon. The first would have provided the same 90% exemption in only 3 years instead of 5.

The second, a compromise at 50% over 3 years, was also nixed by the governor during the final days of the session. Currently, Nebraskans have no form of a personal property tax exemption.

A third proposal the committee forwarded would abolish the current 2½-cent refund and the five-cent aviation fuel tax and replace it with separate rates on fuel on private and commercial aircraft.

The tax rates on aviation fuel for private aircraft would be four cents on a gallon, and the commercial interests would pay two cents per gallon.

Regarding the effort to find an equitable basis for taxing mobile homes, the committee headed by Jules Burbach of Crofton recommended a valuation procedure similar to that on autos. In other words, a kind of a "Blue Book" would be used to determine the value of different models The motion also forwarded "a reasonable provision" for taxing household goods in mobile homes.

In other action, the senators took issue with Gov J. James Exon on the matter of the elimination of the sales tax on food.

The five men voted unanimously in favor of "keeping the food tax credit concept as it is."

Gov. Exon and the Democratic Party are currently supporting an initiative petition drive to eliminate the sales tax and the credit on food purchases.

Other resolutions included:

—a constitutional amendment to replace the Tax Commissioner as a member of the Board of Equalization with a county official "to be selected in a manner to be determined by the Legislature."

—a resolution asking the Legislature to allow the committee to continue its tax equalization study.

It Won't Vote On Pay Board

. . . Meany Speech Slashing

©The New York Times

Bal Harbour, Fla. — The AFL-CIO voted Thursday to remain on the Pay Board — but to stop immediately cooperating with the board's activities.

"If the President doesn't like the terms we lay down here, let him kick us off," AFL-CIO President George Meany told a cheering convention of the federation.

Starting Thursday, the three AFL-CIO representatives on the tripartite Pay Board will refuse to cast their votes on most matters before the board. The federation will also not tell its member organizations to abide by the board's decisions, a measure that could lead to strikes and labor unrest. The other labor members of the Pay Board — the Teamsters and the United Auto Workers — had no immediate comment on the action.

20 To 1 Odds

The federation's vote came shortly after Meany made a slashing speech offering 20 to 1 odds against the success of President Nixon's economic policies and scathingly attacking Nixon, his administration and individual members of the Pay Board.

Meany described the Pay Board as a "stacked deck." He accused it first of trying to goad labor into walking out and then trying to divide the five labor members by offering them separate "under the table deals."

Later, the federation's executive council issued the recommendation to the convention that its representatives remain on the Pay Board "only so long as a reasonable hope exists of securing recognition of the validity of contracts and achieving justice for working people generally — including most particularly those with low or substandard incomes and those without the protection of strong bargaining representatives."

Meany said, "We are going to say that we are not going to cooperate. Those are our terms for staying on. We say there is little hope, but we still hold on to the idea that maybe somebody will see the light."

Little Voting

A spokesman for Meany said later the noncooperation of the AFL-CIO representatives on the board will take a form of a refusal to participate in board votes. The only exception would be if the labor ballot could cause a victory favorable to a union's demand for justice, case by case.

Meany, in describing the "birth of Phase 2" of Nixon's economic program, said: "Obstetricians, I think, would refer to it as a breach presentation."

He also recalled that when the Pay Board was being formed, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, called and asked him to get information on Judge George Boldt, who, Hodgson reported, was being considered as chairman of the board.

Three days later, according to Meany, Hodgson again called him up and told him to forget about Boldt as chairman He quoted Hodgson as saying Boldt "is totally and completely unfit for this job. .

"Thursday night, I was informed by Hodgson," Meany continued, "that Boldt was going to be chairman."

'Hatchet Man'

Meany also had sharp words for Arnold R. Weber, the former executive director of the Cost of Living Council who is now one of the five public members of the Pay Board. He described Weber as the government's "hatchet man" and "the fellow that has been doing all the dirty work."

Meany described Neil Jacoby, an economist who is also a public member of the Pay Board, as a "conservative" "who helped fashion two recessions." Another public member, William Kaples, president of Kenyon College, was described as "a nice guy" but one who represented the business viewpoint. Kermit Gordon, the fifth public member, was identified simply as being "onetime director of the budget."

Finally, Meany turned to Nixon, saying this was the first time in American history that a president had "ever set out to control the economic life of the nation in peacetime."

"It is no disrespect to the President to say that "on the basis of his track record, we don't have very much confidence."

Nixon is scheduled to speak to the convention here Friday.

Draft Dodgers' Partings Hard

The following story, last of three about Nebraska draft dodgers now living in Canada, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from North Platte.

By MARY HUFFMAN

Winnipeg, Manitoba — As Doug Milander watched the Northwest Orient jet fade into the clouds this summer with his wife, Mary, on board, it was, he said, "almost too much to bear"

Her destination: Elm Creek, Neb. It was her first trip back to the United States since their decision to flee to Canada in violation of the United States Selective Service Act in August 1969.

She was only about five hours from her former home, but her husband found it difficult to imagine the freedom to come and go across that long unguarded U.S. Canadian border.

"It was really hard watching her leave," Milander said "But she had to get it out of her system. She had really been looking forward to it."

$82 Phone Bill

Their phone bill during her month in Nebraska: $82.

Not less than a month later, Mrs. Dale Fechner also made a trip back to Nebraska — to her hometown of Omaha. Her husband stayed in Winnipeg.

Both men are draft dodgers. Their wives can come and go freely, but the dodgers themselves know if they cross the border it's a $10,000 fine or five years in prison. So they don't risk coming to Nebraska.

Of the Nebraska draft dodgers in Winnipeg who consented to interviews with a visiting American reporter, Milander, formerly of Norfolk, is the only one who has not been indicted — yet.

He Could Try

He could try to come back. But, he asks: Why use Canada when we needed it to escape from the States and then turn our backs on it when it's safe?

"I've never killed anyone yet. You defy your country and you are apathetic . . . I could head some draft dodging group here, but why? I'll just sit back and look out for myself."

Meanwhile, Milander's parents have been on the receiving end of repercussions to his exile. They said they would rather not talk about it. The other parents feel the same way. What can they say?

Milander said: "It was embarrassing to my parents. I was the first evader from Madison County"

Bothered By Reactions

In Albion, Neb, Dale Fechner's parents have been "bothered" by townspeople's reactions, Dale said.

"I test people out and ask them what they think of dodgers," Fechner said. "and I understand my father is starting to do the same. It's not so bad now as when I first left"

The Fechners are the only

Senate Group OKs Retroactive Wages

Washington (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee Thursday approved 14 to 0 legislation to overrule the Pay Board and grant retroactively most pay raises lost in the wage freeze

The committee added the measure to a bill to extend President Nixon's authority over the economy for a year past its present expiration date of April 30 The bill is scheduled for Senate debate next Monday.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said he was "delighted" by the committee's action that would instruct Nixon to permit payment of most of the hundreds of millions of dollars in wage hikes held up during the recent wage-price freeze.

The Pay Board's ruling against most retroactive pay is a chief cause of labor's bitter quarrel with new wage controls

The Senate panel approved 14 to 0 an amendment to grant retroactive pay raises unless the President determines them to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the Pay Board's guidelines.

Earlier it rejected 9 to 6 a provision that would have applied a different standard for granting retroactive pay, making it automatic unless an employer could prove it to be an undue burden.

The Senate committee's counterpart in the House had earlier approved, by a one-vote margin, a similar amendment to allow retroactive pay in most cases. However, the House Banking Committee has put off final action on the overall bill until Nov 30, and opponents of retroactive pay may yet reverse that vote

The Senate committee also approved an amendment by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., to approve retroactive pay under contracts negotiated by state and local governments, a measure intended to apply to teachers.

The president of the National Education Association, Donald E Morrison, promptly praised the action "Naturally I'm pleased that the Senate committee came to grips with the problem," he said.

Corruption Rife In Political Processes, Says Gardner

Hot Springs, Ark. (AP) — John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, a national lobbying group, said Thursday that most of America's political processes had become a "vast game of barter and purchase" behind the scenes.

Speaking at the Young Democrats' National Convention, Gardner said this involved campaign contributions, appointments to high office, business favors and favorable legal decisions and location of defense installations.

"It is a game that is going on all the time at every level of government," he said.

Gardner is a former secretary of health, education and welfare.

He said many men and women in politics were honest and decent, but that it was difficult for them to survive, and getting harder.

He declared there had been a loss of public confidence in America's leadership and governmental and business institutions and disillusionment with the Republican and Democratic Parties. He said discontent was not limited to the black, poor and young.

Many Are 'Frustrated'

"The middle-level executive feels as frustrated and as far from power as the young rebel," Gardner said. "The suburban housewife feels as victimized as the ghetto resident. So does the blue collar worker."

He said these feelings "could constitute an explosive charge that could splinter our two major parties. It could lead us to follow the shallowest of demagogues. It could result in massive refusals to vote. It could lead to increasing violence or to severe repressive measures."

He said corruption was the most serious reason for the failure of political and governmental institutions.

"Everyone knows politics has its seamy side, but the ordinary citizen doesn't know how enormous that seamy side really is," Gardner said. "Nor does he know what a high percentage of his tax dollar goes to support it.

No End To Ingenuity

"Armed with the power and money we give them with our votes and our tax dollars, politicians are well-equipped to play their part in the cycle of favors and obligations. There isn't any end to the ways they can favor their friends and allies."

Gardner called for campaign spending controls, restrictions on lobbying and full disclosure of conflict of interest by each public official. He also urged enactment of federal "freedom of information" legislation so all public business would be conducted in public.

Gardner asked the Young Democrats to help "remake the political process" in the nation.

"If you don't, an enraged citizenry may remake it without your help — and the outcome may or may not be what wise and reasonable men may wish."

Parting Hard When Wives Of Draft Dodgers Go Home

couple who have been inside the United States since their immigration. They moved to Canada before he was to be inducted, and went back to Nebraska a year ago August on vacation.

"We weren't really happy with the way things were. It seems like everything is backward in Nebraska," Fechner said.

Now the Fechners are looking forward to Canadian citizenship, for which they will apply after living in Winnipeg five years

"We'll let Jeromy (their 2-year-old son) choose if he wants to be a Canadian citizen," he said.

Keep In Contact

All of the draft dodgers keep in contact with home more by telephone than by letter It takes a letter about four or five days to get from Winnipeg to Nebraska

Their parents visit at least once or twice a year They are a Pony Express service to and from home to deliver messages and packages to all the exiles

The last time John Dietz' parents went to visit, they had an additional reason for making the trip. They were looking for real estate near Winnipeg, with the possibility of retiring in Manitoba.

"We've noticed how Winnipeg is much like Lincoln, with rolling hills around the city," they said, relaxing in their Omaha home. "But we don't want to live right in the city of Winnipeg"

There is one drawback Their son John, who was the first Nebraska draft dodger in Winnipeg, will be eligible for a Canadian passport in 2½ years He could then visit Europe

"We're not going to follow the boy all over the place," his father said

Saving For Retirement

When Dietz picked Winnipeg on the map he took into consideration the proximity for his parents who would make the trip by car or bus Now they are saving for retirement near Winnipeg

Dietz' mother and father, Eugene, 62, and Ruth, 56, say they don't blame their son for not going to the war. Struggling to keep back the tears, Mrs. Dietz said she is both happy and sad her son is exiled in Canada.

"We're very much against the war, so why should he even go if he doesn't believe in it?" they asked

They were eager for news about John. And they pointed proudly to a picture of John at his last job, at Manitoba Centennial Corp. It is displayed on the bookcase in the living room—the most prominent place.

"Typical Canadian"

"Doesn't he look like a Viking . . . a typical Canadian?" his father asked. His mother pulled out a scrapbook with news clippings and pictures of John at the University of Nebraska.

"We hated not to see him get his diploma," they said Dietz left the country two months before graduation.

Both Dietz and his parents recalled how the FBI came to the graduation ceremony and asked friends if they had seen him around.

The draft dodgers themselves are more relaxed talking about their families than the other way around They're sensitive, but not afraid to talk

They joked about not ever being able to return, how they miss cornfed Nebraska beef, and they ask questions about the University

"Is Professor Lee still there? . . . How has the campus changed? Have they changed hours for girls in the dorm?"

Racial Situation

Dietz wanted an update on the racial situation in Omaha . . . and he didn't know Ernie Chambers was in the Legislature

The Fechners were surprised to hear that Norbert Tiemann is no longer governor. "Who's this Exon?" they asked.

When they get together, especially with another Nebraskan, the conversation turns to "back home"

And there's the inevitable fear of a sickness or a death in the family

"I've been lucky," said Dietz "No relatives have really been sick"

"The FBI checks out funerals, you know," Dietz said

Milander volunteered "What bothers me most is that I can't go back for my parents' funerals"

Didn't Think About

This is one of the consequences the draft dodgers didn't really think about when they cut their ties with America They were younger then and so were their parents

Johnson who said his father cried when he fled also said his parents have calmed down since he came to Winnipeg about a year and a half ago But when he asked them if they would be interviewed, they said no

"The real bummer," Johnson said, "is not being able to go back when your parents die. They devote their entire lives to you . . . and you won't even be there . . ."

Johnson has said just what was on their minds . . . they all agreed.

Not that they are going to sit there and brood about it . . . it just happens to be soemthing very close to them. And the parental visits are getting fewer.

Dodger Paul Norton's wife Sylvia of North Platte wrote from Toronto: "We are sorry Paul cannot visit the United States—especially as his parents are getting older and it gets harder for them to make the trip . . ."

Only Hope

Their only hope about ever returning, although they don't really think about it, is if an amnesty is granted.

"But we're established here now. Why pick up and start all over again?" asks Dale Fechner

If there were an amnesty, the draft dodgers would not return, they say. However, they would jump at the chance for a visit with friends and family.

Presidential candidate Sen George McGovern, D-S D , has urged general amnesty for all those "who went into exile or to jail" to protest the Vietnam war

Until that happens, the draft dodgers will continue to salute the Maple Leaf and continue to go on living and working in Winnipeg, Vancouver, Montreal, Waterloo.

Canadian Reaction

Which raises the question How do Canadians react to the American immigrants? Do the Americans pose a threat to the job market?

The official Canadian line "Canada welcomes people of good character and in good health who have the education, training, skills (or qualifications) and personal attributes to settle there permanently and to share in the country's growth and prosperity"

On the other hand, "Most Canadians are slightly anti-American," said Ron Goodrich, draft resistance coordinator in Winnipeg. "I'm a Canadian myself. And when Canadians see Americans turn their back on their country, that's one star for their opinion . . . but it's not on a personal basis."

One Canadian said "It's not that they're taking jobs away . . . they're really helping our country with their talent"

Several Canadians said they don't pay that much attention to whether a person is a draft dodger or not, and the American draft is confusing to them

Becoming Passe

The subject of draft dodgers is becoming passe to the Canadians, because it is such a common thing It's also becoming old hat to the draft dodgers themselves

As far as the parents are concerned, it's hard to tell how they feel. Most of them would rather not talk about it.

As one father said "They're our kids and they'll always be our kids That's all I can say"

That, in itself, says a lot.

PAY BOARD DIDN'T ACT

President W A "Tony" Boyle of the United Mine Workers emerged unsmiling from a meeting with the Pay Board Thursday. He, Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia and John Corcoran of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association argued in favor of the newly negotiated contract Put into effect minutes before the freeze ended at midnight Saturday, the contract provides for pay raises of up to 35% over three years and 100% increase in management's pension fund contribution The Pay Board adjourned without decision

Suit Challenging Firing Of Kiernan Is Tentatively Scheduled For Dec. 1

By United Press International

The State Court of Industrial Relations has tentatively scheduled the suit challenging the firing of Richard Kiernan by State Engineer Thomas Doyle for trial Dec. 1.

Presiding Judge John Baylor of Lincoln said Thursday that was the date decided upon for the next sitting of the court, and the Kiernan case was one of three scheduled.

The final determination of whether the trial would actually be held on that date, Baylor said, would be decided by the attorneys.

"But we hope we can hear it at that time," the judge said.

Suit Thrown Out

The suit was thrown out on a technicality earlier this year. However, the court advised both parties there still appeared to be grounds for a suit and advised them on correct procedures to be followed in having it admitted.

The reason given by the court for its dismissal was the failure of the State Roads Department Employes Association, acting in Kiernan's behalf, to follow correct summons procedures.

Meanwhile, Lincoln attorney Douglas Marti, counsel for the Association and Kiernan, said: "We'd be ready (to go to trial) tomorrow."

Baylor noted the deadline for filing written briefs on the second filing is next Tuesday.

Activities Cited

Kiernan was fired by Doyle allegedly for comments he made questioning the engineer's qualifications for his job. The employees association, however, contended the firing resulted from Kiernan's union activities.

Baylor said other suits scheduled for Dec. 1 involve education organizations.

One is a suit filed by the Nebraska Council of Educational Leaders against the State Education Department and the State Board of Education.

The council claims that after an election was held in December of this year, and despite its positive results, it was refused recognition as the collective bargaining agent for employes of the department's Divisions of Administrative Services and Vocational Education.

The other suit was filed by the Sidney Education Association against the Sidney Board of Education. It is also seeking recognition as a collective bargaining agent for teachers in the Sidney school system.

Nebraska Goals Committee Plans To Hold Meeting

State Economic Development Director Stanley Matzke said a meeting of the "Goals for Nemraska" committee would be held next Wednesday

The committee was formed to draw up short and long term goals for the development of the state, Matzke said The goals would include programs beginning at the local level, extending up through statewide efforts, he said

Union Representation Case Said Settled Out Of Court

State Court of Industrial Relations Presiding Judge John Baylor reported Thursday a suit involving union representation of some city of Omaha employes has apparently been settled out of court

The suit had been filed by the city of Omaha seeking a determination by the court as to which ranks of police and firemen should be covered in wage contracts.

The city contended that police sergeants and lieutenants and fire lieutenants and captains should be excluded from union contracts. The respective unions felt they should be covered

The suit had been scheduled for trial before the industrial court on Nov 17

Baylor said he has been informed the matter was settled out of court, but he said no specifics on the settlement have been relayed to the industrial court.

He also said the Omaha City Council has not taken official action as yet on the settlement

New York Times News Summary

Committee Rejects Limitation On War Mo

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — By a vote of 14-to-10, the Senate Appropriations Committee rejected an amendment to the defense appropriations bill limiting its funds to withdrawing troops from Indochina. But the committee did cut $3.3 billion from the Pentagon appropriation and voted 14-to-13 to require the withdrawal of 60,000 American troops from Europe by next June. (More on Page 29.) Meanwhile, the administration, even before the vote to reduce the American troop level in Europe, asserted that such a unilateral move would take away a bargaining point in possible talks with the Soviet Union on mutual force reductions in Europe. The administration statement followed a surprise subcommittee vote Wednesday for the cutback.

Aid Funding Extended

Washington — Funding for the nation's foreign aid program was extended to Dec. 8 as a House-Senate conference committee agreed to continue the program at slightly less than the current spending rate in order to give Congress time to work settle differences over a regular authorization bill. The House has asked for a $3.4 billion program, the Senate for two programs totalling $2.67-billion.

Deal With Russians To Proceed

Washington — Licenses allowing American business to sell $500-million worth of heavy equipment to the Soviet Union for construction of a truck factory there were issued by the Commerce Department. Licenses for a similar amount had been granted earlier.

AFL-CIO Refuses To Vote

Relief In Jeopardy

United Nations, N.Y. — Increased military activity within East Pakistan, by the West Pakistanis and by the guerrilla forces of the East Pakistanis, has jeopardized the continuation of the U.N. relief operations there, the operation's head warned. Active opposition from "any quarter" would compel the operation to end, he said.

Pollution Shutdown Ordered

Birmingham, Ala. — After air pollution here climbed to a level considered dangerous to the public health, a federal judge ordered 23 area industries, including U.S. Steel, to cease all operations. The same stagnant air mass was said to be potentially dangerous to several areas, including the New York area.

Democrats Win Politically Potent Vote

Washington (UPI) — Liberal and Southern Democrats set aside their differences Thursday and defeated Republican attempts to kill their plan to finance presidential election campaigns with money volunteered by taxpayers.

With their party's success in financing the effort to deny President Nixon a second term riding on the outcome, all the Democratic presidential hopefuls in the Senate were on hand for the vote on GOP amendments that would have scuttled the measure.

The Democrats said the initial test vote showed they had the strength to pass the legislation — and attach it to a bill Nixon could not veto without jeopardizing his economic program which may be vital to his own re-election hopes.

$47.1 Million Kitty

At issue was a plan to allow taxpayers to check a box on their 1971 tax returns and earmark $1 of their taxes, or $2 for a joint return, to a fund which would provide $20.4 million for each of the two major party presidential candidates and $6.3 million for a third-party candidate.

Presidential candidates could choose not to take the public funds and finance their campaigns from private contributions, the traditional method. But if a candidate took public money, he could not spend more than the $20.4 million.

This would put Nixon in a bind.

If he signed the bill, he would be guaranteeing the hard-pressed Democrats, still $9.3 million in debt from 1968, a fund with which to run against him. If he chose to rely on private funds, the Democrats would charge him with "buying the election." They said he already has budgeted $40 million for his 1972 campaign.

Nixon spent $29.5 million in 1968. Hubert H. Humphrey, his Democratic opponent, spent $12.6 million.

'Fraud' Cried

Angry but outnumbered Republicans called the plan a "fraud" and "a raid on the Treasury."

"This smells!" shouted Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., pointing a finger at the Democrats. "You're trying to legislate yourself back into office!"

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, also speaking in a shout, replied that "a rare bird indeed" is the elected official who is not influenced by the people who give him big sums of money.

The first crucial Senate vote came on an amendment by Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., to delete the heart of the proposal — the $1 tax checkoff. He was defeated, 49 to 46.

In a rare display of party unity, 49 Democrats and no Republicans voted no. Forty-three Republicans and only three Democrats — Harry F. Byrd Jr., Va., Sam J. Ervin, N.C., and John L. McClellan, Ark. — voted yes.

BUTZ . . . returns for more questioning.

Staley Accuses Of Agribusines

Washington (AP) — The head of the National Farmers Organization made a charge of agribusiness bias Wednesday against Earl L. Butz, nominated to be secretary of agriculture.

NFO President, Oren Lee Stanley, said even though Butz has resigned his directorships on large agriculture related firms "it is unlikely he will be able to resign his longtime agribusiness biases."

Testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee, which is considering Butz' nomination, Stanley said "there is no point in mincing words on what this confirmation vote means."

The Senate will select "between an historic commitment to opportunity for people on the land and a goal of mechanical efficiency that drives people out of rural areas, eliminates farm and small business enterprises, and destroys rural communities," Stanley said.

Stanley said naming Butz to the job would be like naming the president of General Motors

Sooner Fires Blamed On Arsonists

. . . 27 Injured; Damaged Set At $200,000

Norman, Okla. (UPI) — Arsonists, working at night, ignited a flurry of fires on the racially troubled University of Oklahoma campus early Thursday, injuring 27 persons.

Six of the injured were visiting bankers sleeping in a dormitory.

"We have been attacked by people under cover of darkness, intent on injuring, damaging and destroying," said University President Paul W. Sharp.

The fires were set a week after a group of black students gave a list of alleged racial "atrocities" on campus to the university regents. They also came one week before the campus plays host to the biggest college football game of the year between Oklahoma and Nebraska — the nation's No. 2 and No. 1 teams, respectively.

None of the injuries was serious — most coming from smoke inhalation. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

Norman police Capt. Joe Hyde said he thought all the fires were set by arsonists. "That's just too much coincidence to be spontaneous," he said.

Fires were reported at 4:30 a.m. at the Walker Tower dormitory and the Wilson Center cafeteria. An old Quonset hut was aflame an hour later and fire destroyed that structure and spread to two other barracks like buildings.

An arsonist was blamed for a small fire at the administration building last week.

The dormitory where students attending a seminar and the bankers were sleeping was evacuated quickly when the fire was reported. But smoke damage was heavy and many of those who suffered smoke inhalation wandered through the halls, unable to see.

"We were crawling on our hands and knees. You couldn't even see anything," said Leo Salmons, a banker from Hammond, Ind.

Curtis, Hruska On Losing Side

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska's two Republican senators, Carl T. Curtis and Roman L. Hruska, voted in favor of deleting the tax checkoff provision. The amendment lost, 49-46.

U.S. Is Blamed

Concepcion, Chile (AP) — Fidel Castro admitted that Cuba is having industrial production problems and claimed it was all the fault of the United States.

Red China Sets Off N-Blast

Washington (AP) — The United States announced Thursday that Communist China had set off a nuclear explosion in the atmosphere, the first nuclear test by that country since Oct. 14, 1970.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the test — conducted in the vicinity of Lop Nur, in western China, had an explosive yield equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, the same size as the primitive atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima by the United States.

Republican Fund-Raiser Picks Muskie

King, who said he has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for Nixon and other GOP candidates, said he is joining the Democratic Party and will support Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for president.

"If I were to sum up in one word my reason for supporting the senator from Maine as opposed to the President of the United States, that one word would be — character," King said.

"Mr. Muskie has it," King said, "Mr. Nixon does not.

King said a long string of events led to his split with Nixon and the Republicans, but he said the "last straw" was the tentative proposal by Nixon of Mildred Lillie and Herschel Friday for the Supreme Court. Neither was nominated after the American Bar Association withheld its endorsement.

Ex-Jesuit Says Repeal Of Abortion Laws Best

There is a "distinct difference" between reforming abortion laws and repealing them, and I am "definitely in favor of abortion repeal," Pete Anderson said at a rap session on abortion at the University of Nebraska Student Union Thursday.

Repealing the laws allows a woman to make the decision herself, whereas reform laws often create mechanisms which are more difficult to face than the original laws, he said. laws once passed, are extremely difficult to change.

Anderson added that reform

Anderson, who is presently youth director of the planned parenthood and world population organization in Omaha, was brought to Lincoln by the Nebraska Organization for the Repeal of Abortion Laws,-as-part of their program for "abortion information" week.

An ex-Jesuit with a degree in psychology, Anderson was the first conscientious objector in the nation to do alternate service for the planned parenthood group.

Anderson said that his Catholic background had "fallen by the wayside" in his decision to work with planned parenthood. Reconciling abortion within himself was "a little more difficult to work out," but in view of the tragedy of unwanted pregnancies and the increasing world population, he continued, it was necessary to adopt a more "utilitarian" philosophy.

Anderson was one of the three people who began the clergy consultation service of Missouri, a private non-profit organization for counseling and referral services for women with problem pregnancies. These services are presently widespread in Nebraska.

Anderson added that advising and counseling is a "touchy" legal situation in Nebraska.

Quoting statistics for Nebraska, Anderson estimated that the statewide clergy consultation services send 25 to 30 women a week out of state to obtain legal abortions. He estimated that this is only half the number of abortions taking place within the state weekly.

When asked about the responsibility of the male in unwanted pregnancies, Anderson responded that men cannot truly understand or totally empathize with women. Woman is "unique," he added, for she must be ultimately responsible for her own sexuality and her own pregnancy.

Corporation Will Assist Hunger Fight

A policy committee of the Lincoln Action Program will Monday begin organizing a corporation that will replace the Emergency Food and Medical Services Program.

Action Against Hunger — For Health, Inc., will be incorporated Friday but it will not be activated until federal funding for the Emergency Food and Medical Services program is stopped June 30, 1972.

The purpose of Monday's meeting will be to begin listing the functions and bylaws of the corporation. It is scheduled for 2 p.m. in room 427 of the Lincoln Center Building and it is open to the public.

The corporation's stated purpose is to help low income persons meet their food and medical needs. One system proposed is the starting of a food buying cooperative for the low-income community.

Dorste, who also won in 1970, is defending state champion in the dryland division of the state contest.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The three-part series on Nebraska draft-dogers in Canada, ending today in The Lincoln Star, settles nothing. So why, you might ask, would the newspaper run the depth-reporting piece by senior University of Nebraska journalism student Mary Huffman?

For one thing, the series is an account of people with unusual or uncommon circumstances in their lives and that fits at least one definition of news. Secondly, the series involves another element of the Vietnam war, the Asian conflict that could still prove to be President Nixon's Waterloo.

Thirdly, it focuses on what is an important question in the nation today — the question of amnesty for those who have fled the country or gone to jail to avoid wartime military service. Sen George McGovern a Democratic presidential hopeful, has made a general amnesty a plank in his platform.

Thus, the series is a contribution to a better understanding of something that should concern all people. It really settles nothing because it probably will not change many minds.

Most people will remain either opposed to amnesty or in favor of it, sympathetic to the draft-dodgers or critical of them. For many, there is a kind of middle ground — an inability to support amnesty, and yet, a feeling of sorrow that any group of young people have found it necessary to abandon their native land and to separate themselves, perhaps permanently, from the rest of their family.

The whole question, while a highly personal one for those directly involved, is tied in with all aspects of the Vietnam war for the average citizen. As unpopular as that war is and as divisive as it has been in our nation, one finds it difficult to accept that conflict as a basis for refusal to serve the military.

One wonders, if the actions of the draft-dodgers were to be condoned through amnesty, what the ultimate impact upon the defense of the nation might be. Some see Vietnam as a special case in which the defense of the nation as it is commonly understood is not really threatened.

★

Some argue that Vietnam is not a typical war, not in a class even with Korea, much less World Wars I and II. It is not seen by everyone as a war in which the security of the nation is in any way at stake.

Thus, to flee from service because of Vietnam is no threat in the event of a real test of U.S. security. Presumably, the draft-dodgers of Vietnam would not be draft-dodgers in the case of unquestioned danger to the survival of this nation.

But this argument supports the concept of citizen choice that verges on anarchy. It tends to support the theory that all national interests, in the end, must submit themselves to individual tests on the part of each and every citizen.

The concept of majority rule is enhanced none by this argument. We have never lived nor patterned our institutions on extremes. Thus, our society contains some threats of what might be considered potential anarchy and some solid support of minority rights even in the face of majority opposition.

But the draft-dodging and amnesty question may represent too far or major a departure from the acceptable limits of individual rights and privileges. This is not to say that the dodgers are to be condemned nor to try to deny them in some way their right to take issue with their country as they have done.

But in exercising that right and taking that issue, the consequences fall heavily upon them. Is it better that we accept their non-conformity and make it the norm or better that we retain the principles and standards they have challenged?

There are no facts with which to answer the question, only thoughts and feelings and opinions gleaned from whatever your own storehouse of knowledge and understanding might be. Certainly, one can find no joy in personal problems or hardships of draft-dodgers, even though they voluntarily made their own decision in the matter.

At the same time, you wonder if we would have any military today if there was an amnesty and you wonder what would be the thinking of the millions of young men who have served the military during the years of Vietnam and, often times, with many misgivings. It is a hard decision to make but one we need to continue to explore until it ceases to exist or is solved.

Surplus City Property

In discussing the disposal of surplus city property Wednesday, the City-County Planning Commission, in response to a proposal by University Place interests, agreed that additional quality restaurant facilities were high on the priority list for redevelopment of that area and recommended that the city consider leasing the former University Place City Hall and fire station at 2601 No. 48th for that purpose.

The University Place Community Organization (UPCO) had been encouraged by Lincoln restaurant operator Larry Price's interest in leasing the former city hall building—on an initial five-year basis, it was indicated—as a restaurant with a "Gay Nineties" atmosphere.

Up for consideration by the commission was the question of how to dispose of city property rendered surplus after a new branch libraries and fire stations are built at other locations. The commission unanimously accepted the recommendation of the planning staff that the general policy of the city should be to hold such properties until adjacent lands could be accumulated to provide larger building sites for new businesses or be used as trading stock so that land might be more easily accumulated in any portion of a particular business district.

In view of that recommendation and unless another type of public use of the No. 48th property looms immediately on the horizon, it would seem consistent with the city's area redevelopment plans that a mutually profitable lease arrangement for the use of the former city hall and fire station in University Place as a restaurant be encouraged and permitted by the City Council.

The situation would not be unique. The city now leases other public property for commercial uses in abeyance of public use or otherwise disposing of it.

In general, the proposed short-term lease does not run contrary to any plans for the coordinated disposition of surplus city property and it appears that it would benefit the future development of the University Place area.

Taxpayers To Finance Election?

That "salute to the President" dinner extravaganza staged by the Republican's some nights ago must have provided some impetus for Senate Democrats to unite as they did Thursday in keeping alive Sen. John O. Pastore's plan for voluntary taxpayer financing of the 1972 presidential election.

The kick-off GOP fundraising affair netted an estimated $5 million for the Republican campaign fund next year. And with the money coming that easily, more must be readily in sight. The Democrats, on the other hand, are over $9 million in debt from 1968 and have no hopes of coming close to matching the Republican war chest.

It's little wonder, then, that the Pastore plan inspired party solidarity among the outs. Under the plan, a taxpayer could check a special box on his tax form to allow use of $1 of his taxes (or $2 in case of a joint return) to help pay the cost of presidential campaigning next year. It would provide $20.4 million for each major party and $6 3 million for George Wallace if he should decide to run as a third party candidate. A nominee could decide not to use the government funds and rely on private financing. But if he accepted federal money, he would have to agree not to use any funds from other sources.

The plan would be the solution, among other things, to the Democrats' financial problems. And it would force President Nixon to choose between campaigning on the same financial footing as the Democrats or face the charge of "going to the fat cats," as Republican Sen. Norris Cotton put it.

By a strict party line vote, Senate Democrats Thursday defeated, 49-46, a Republican challenge to the tax bill amendment. No Republicans joined the Democrats in the vote and only three Democrats strayed from their party on the issue.

Aside from the obvious benefits to the financially troubled Democrats, the public campaign financing plan has intrinsic merit to it, in that it removes the practice or suspicion of belonging to any special interest.

Perhaps a better campaign financing scheme will be offered, but this appears to be among the best so far.

MILAN WALL
Union On The Campus

There may not be a massive cry for union organization among the faculty members at the University of Nebraska today, but it's becoming more and more apparent that the issues are there.

And if the issues are there, so is the potential.

That the issues exist (along with professors who are concerned about them) is no longer any question.

And it's just as true that it's not only those professors who are willing to accept a union label that are ready to do something about it.

This week, for example, officers of the local chapters of the American Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO union, and the American Association of University Professors, announced they had decided to form joint committees to deal with three issues of importance to faculty members.

That's new. And it's significant.

It's significant, in one aspect, that AAUP officers are willing to see those letters, in print, alongside AFT.

That alone is bound to turn off a few of the more staid members of the faculty.

It's also significant that leaders of both groups are meeting and then admitting that they found they "had a lot of common interest" and "agreed to cooperate."

Then they said they were forming joint committees on academic due process, salary inequities and fringe benefits (not salary levels, you'll note), and employment discrimination against women.

It's not particularly surprising that the AAUP and the AFT hold virtually the same positions on a number of issues—the AAUP has long been in the business of trying to assure academic freedoms (including academic due process) and it has shown more than a passing interest in seeking that salaries and fringe benefits are at acceptable levels.

But the AAUP has depended largely on persuasion to meet its goals, while the AFT is embracing collective bargaining.

Milan Wall

Interests In Common

That is the difference.

So, while it's not surprising to learn that the two groups have common interests and that they agree on a lot of issues, it is important that they are admitting that.

☆ ☆ ☆

The AAUP has been around a long time—nearly 60 years nationally.

Its conservative members here are likely to continue to hold to the agument that college teaching is a "profession" which ought not stoop to collective bargaining, especially for salaries.

Perhaps that's why the local AFTers are not talking salaries so much as they are academic issues — governance of the institution, right to due process and protection of academic freedoms.

Local AFT members are likely to be AAUP members who think it's time to consolidate enough faculty power to ensure success on the issues that have been talked about for some time.

The problem recently has been that the faculty has lost too many times.

Local AFT leaders readily admit that the chapter was formed last spring in direct response to the Rozman affair, when the regents turned their backs on a prestigious faculty committee which concluded the former political science teacher was not guilty of inappropriate actions.

That didn't set well, at all.

But Rozman has also been supported monetarily by the AAUP, and there are a good many faculty members who were (and still are) mightily upset by the regents' decision.

There are other things, too, like the Michael Davis case, the regents' success in amending a legislative bill that would have provided a procedure for hearings in disciplinary cases, a regents-ordered statement of faculty responsibilities that has not been acted upon a year after it was submitted, President Varner's statement on tenure (though I think the faculty overreacted on that one.)

The fact is that each time the regental hand reaches into the academic community (especially without consulting the professors), there's likely to be some reaction.

And the more of that kind of action from the top there is, the more the professors (even the conservative ones) will react.

So, in a way, the regents and some administrators are probably forcing the faculty into a more militant stance.

The Legislature, of course, does the same thing with stringent budgets and talk of "clamping down."

☆ ☆ ☆

The AAUP and other faculty groups have been negotiating with the regents and administrators for a long time. But thus far it's happened in small private meetings, with whispered reports around the campus of what happened.

AFT supporters believe that's not enough, so they are seeking support to negotiate as a group representing the entire faculty.

But they are also seeking enough support from others to put together a bit of faculty wallop now—a goal not uninteresting to AAUP types.

Whether this is the first apparent aspect of the coming unionism on the campus, I don't know. I'd guess it's not unrelated to that.

The issues that brought them together now are likely to remain—continued pressure from the public to "crackdown" on the campus, stringent budgets, bolder governing boards.

That could mean unionism on the campus is not far away.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Early Report

Lincoln, Neb.

This is to express our concern with the recent hearings in connection with charges of police brutality in the case of Cleveland Randolph. We are concerned that such charges be aired thoroughly, openly and reported promptly with candor. While we do not counsel hasty action in an emotion-laden situation, to delay too long in reporting findings may tend to leave doubts in the public mind.

Therefore, we urge that the Human Rights Commission report its findings, even though inconclusive, as soon as possible.

Athletic Funds

Lincoln, Neb.

I recently read Don Bryant's letter titled "No Tax Funds."

Why aren't the gate receipts and gifts from the football games placed in the general fund at the University of Nebraska? I do not believe the gate receipts from the football games belong to the athletic department to spend as it pleases.

If Nebraska had a poor team and small gate receipts, the taxpayers of Nebraska would have to cough up the difference.

Did the athletic department pay for the astro-turf? Does it pay Coach Devaney's salary with money from the gate receipts?

Why should the cigarette tax be earmarked for new fieldhouse while the athletic department is earning so much money? Let's put all of the cigarette tax money into the state's general fund, and all of the athletic department's gate receipts, etc. into the University of Nebraska's general fund. That way it could hold the line on our annual real estate tax jumps in Nebraska.

Editor's Note: The stadium's new astro-turf was paid for out of athletic department receipts, as are all salaries for the department, including Coach Devaney's.

True Peace

Lincoln, Neb.

I noted with interest the question asked in the Action Line article of Nov. 11: "If Adam and Eve had two sons, Cain and Abel, where did the boys get their wives." I was rather dismayed with the answer given by Rev. Darrel Berg. He stated that the incident was a mythical situation involving mythical people I hope that the readers realize this is merely conjecture on the part of Dr Berg I would differ very much with him. I believe the incident was an actual situation with actual people. For you see, I believe that the Bible is in its entirety "The Word of God." If the Bible states this incident, which it does, then it is so.

If I doubted any part of the Word of God, I would have to have doubts about all of the Bible, and would not be able to call it the Word of God. If I doubted the existence of Adam and their two sons, I would have to doubt whether there were a hereafter or not. Is there really a heaven where souls of men go? Is there really a hell where those who reject the Son of God go? How can one really know for sure? Our only sure source is the Bible. I have full confidence that there are such places, and because of what the Word of God tells me, I know that I am going there. No doubt in my mind whatsoever. What a peace man can have.

Defense Of Right

Lincoln, Neb.

Leafing through a book of poetry published by the Sterling Publishing House, Chicago, in 1884, I ran across the following poem. The author is mentioned only as a Mrs. Hogarth, but certain it is appropriate for today.

Yes, God is for the right,
However man goes wrong;
The race He gives not to the swift,
Nor battle to the strong.
It matters not how weak the cause
If holy in His sight;
'Twill be victorious soon or late,
For God will aid the right.
Our country's star of fate
By clouds is overcast,
And dark oppression, wrong and hate
Drive on to ruin fast:
Yet wherefore grieve? In His good time
He will arise in might,
And bid the angry conflict cease,
And triumph with the right.
So, Brother, let us hope,
Though evil be the hour,
And we are grouped on ruin's brink,
Bereft of earthly power,
Our God will do the best for all,
For all, both dark and white;
And though the Union rise or fall,
He will defend the right.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE
Our Historical Ideals On Chopping Block

NEW YORK — With Thanksgiving only a few days off, it's time to brace ourselves for some "historian's" expose that Governor Bradford's celebration of feasting and prayer was actually a three-day orgy for savage Indians and not-so-Puritans.

They had hard cider back then, too, you know. Any good professional debunker could take it from there.

That seems to be the formula these days: Dig up a few obscure facts, add a lot of fancy speculation, and come up with a revelation that zaps our cherished historical goodies.

Take Christopher Columbus. There's an historian in Madrid who says the famed Italian explorer wasn't Italian, at all; he was a Basque. And a Basque pirate, besides. But he kept it secret because he didn't want to embarrass Ferdinand and Isabella by letting it get out he had once raided their galleons.

☆ ☆ ☆

Other historians shrug that one off, but they seem to accept the new theory that it wasn't Mrs. O'Leary's cow that kicked over the lantern and started the Great Chicago Fire.

It's hard to give up the cow, but the new culprit is pretty colorful; one "Peg Leg" Sullivan, who sneaked into Mrs. O'Leary's barn to hoist a few, set off the fire when he drunkenly tried to light his pipe, almost went up in flames himself when his peg leg got stuck in a crack, and escaped by unhooking it and using a singed calf as a cane.

(I'm not kidding; that's now the official version of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.)

Then, of course, there's Paul Revere. Historians tell us now that Henry Wadsworth Longfellow may have been a great poet, but he was a lousy reporter.

Old Paul didn't ride all night shouting, "The British are coming" — for the simple reason that he wasn't on his horse more than two hours before the British captured him. (And what he really shouted was: "The Regulars are coming!")

It was a Dr. Samuel Prescott who finally got through to Concord to alert the Minutemen. But Prescott doesn't rhyme with "you shall hear," so what schoolboy ever had to memorize anything about HIM?

We've known for some time now that General Custer was a weirdo so-and-so who violated treaties and massacred Indian women and children. But the latest (from a psychiatrist, no less) is that Wyatt Earp didn't clean up the wild, wild West by killing outlaws. No matter what you've seen on TV, he says, the legendary marshal killed only one man in his life.

And a Scottish historian swears that noble schoolmarm Anna from "The King and I" was really a "religious bigot, a snob, one of those awful little English governesses, and a sex-starved widow." (Are you listening, Yul Brynner?)

It's all a bit depressing. Next thing you know they'll be telling us Abraham Lincoln didn't write the Gettysburg Address. At the last minute. On the back of an old envelope.

TOM WICKER
Opposition To Low-Income Public Housing Plan Stems From Fear Of Destroying Healthy Region

NEW YORK — A clash between New York City and federal housing officials, on the one hand, and some aroused residents of Queens Borough, on the other, has achieved the remarkable feat of bringing conservative Sen. James Buckley and liberal Democratic Rep. Ben Rosenthal into tacit allinace on behalf of the residents.

That is because the collision reflects some of the most profound forces that trouble the nation today—the fear of crime, the association of crime and violence with low-income blacks, the anger of individuals at overwhelming bureaucracy, the resulting demand for community "participation" and control, the sad but often understandable reluctance of comfortable people to risk disruption of their lives for broad social purposes they only vaguely understand.

☆ ☆ ☆

The officials are about to begin construction of an 840-unit, $29.9 million, high-rise public housing development for low-income tenants in Forest Hills, a middle-income section of Queens. The Forest Hills Residents' Association is determined to stop the project, although a temporary restraining order to that effect was dismissed in state court a few weeks ago.

Secretary George Romney of H.U.D. has promised another review of the project, for which his department is putting up some of the money, but nobody in the city housiing authority seems unduly worried about that. From their vantage point, in any case, the resistance in Forest Hills is seen largely as "misguided fear."

Housing officials contend that the project, which is not displacing any other housing, actually will enhance the community. It will be well within population density limits, they say, only 15 per cent of the acreage will be used for buildings, with the rest going to park and playground use, and the majority of the tenants will be drawn from the Queens area — with 40 per cent of the units being reserved for elderly persons.

☆ ☆ ☆

These officials cite other examples of the city's program to disperse public housing outside slum areas; Lattimer Gardens in Flushing, for example, is touted as a project that has not damaged but improved a community.

Jerry Birbach, the president of the Forest Hills Residents' Association, dismisses most of this as "just plain lying." Schools and transportation in the area already are overcrowded, he argues, and the community planning board has twice voted against the project. As for "Lindsay and Aurelio" — the mayor and his former deputy — Birbach remarks with special bitterness that repeated efforts have resulted in "no dialogue."

No wonder, he says, that "we're beginning to feel the only way to get community participation is to be militant."

But the real root of Birbach's opposition plainly is his conviction that "they're transplanting a malignant tumor to a healthy viable community." He and his group are not against racial integration, he says, but they are opposed to "economic integration" because they are convinced that "crime is bred in low-income areas."

Simeon Golar, the chairman of the housing authority, and other officials are convinced Birbach is the victim of false fears. But even if he is, it does not take a long conversation with him to grasp his resentment and frustration and the fear for—false or not—family, property and community that underlies the struggle.

These are serious matters, and not just to Birbach and the many other Americans everywhere who feel threatened by social change and overwhelmed by impersonal government. Housing authorities and other public agencies cannot for long or adequately do their work when it arouses such bitter opposition — and the record of unfunded programs, incomplete projects, and lengthy political struggles is there to prove it. Golar, for instance, points out that the notion that public housing is mostly for poor blacks is effectively delaying or preventing construction of thousands of units for poor whites.

Yet, the dispersal of public and other low-income housing into middle and even high-income areas is one of the few means available to break down the social and economic barriers that create ghettoes, with all their social ills.

I was sitting in the Poudre d'Or in the Rue Hachet when a black poodle came in, seated himself, tucked a napkin around his neck, and ordered a steak marchand du vin.

Not exactly, but almost. The waiter tucked the napkin around his neck. Tied it neatly behind his black woolly ears. The dog did not have to order — he is a regular customer; they know his tastes.

The dog sat on a chair, gravely watching the waiter prepare the steak. Not marchand du vin. More like a steak Diane — without the garlic.

The waiter put the little steak in a pottery dish over the side table flame. He put herb butter on it and began turning it from side to side.

When it was done, he cut it into poddle-bite chunks.

The dog ate it from the plate quite neatly. When he had taken the last bite, his owner took a piece of French bread and wiped the plane clean. He fed the bread to the poodle.

Adieu Paris! The Air France flight from Paris to Los Angeles, non-stop, leaves France at 3:15. It is a long walk. There are 52 gates. Our jet was parked at 51. (Don't tell me I lead a sedentary life, Doctor.)

Once aboard, the stewardess pours you a glass of champagne while the plane is still on the ground. They keep this up en route. And you can hear yourself slosh inside when the captain makes a turn.

French champagne is an important export for French. With a captive audience for 14 hours, they can give you an expensive habit.

☆ ☆ ☆

The dog in the Poudre d'Or was not an unusual case. Many, many French have dogs. And all of them take them into restaurants.

They are not always fed at the table. But they can be fed there if they are well-mannered. The proprietors of restaurants are delighted to see the dogs. Sometimes the chef will come from the kitchen with a special goodie.

In French restaurants, dogs are treated like American mamas treat visiting babies in the supermarket: The French admire the dogs. They coo at them. They pat them on the head.

It's a long flight, the polar route—which of course is really shorter. But you are up there for 14 hours and 40 minutes. It can be longer if you are running into headwinds.

To pass the time, the pretty French stewardesses feed you: Caviar and chilled vodka. A trout in a light cheese sauce. Several entrees. (I took the duck Bigarade.) There's a choice of several wines.

There is fruit and cheese. A number of desserts.

Brandy and coffee.

Then they turned on the movie. Stuffed like a goose, I fell fast asleep — missing one of the best French movies of the year.

After the poodle left, the waiter said to me: "He comes in here every day, that one. We prepare him the same dish. Perhaps you would think he would like one day to change. Perhaps a piece of veal.

"But he is only a dog, not a gourmet. Occasionally as an hors d'oeuvre I bring him a small piece of raw calf's liver. But day to day, he prefers the steak cooked in butter."

☆ ☆ ☆

When I woke it was still daylight. On this East-West polar flight we chase the sun all day long. And in the afternoon, as you come over the Greenland ice cap and almost to the Pole, the peculiar position of the plane makes the afternoon sun rise in the West.

Instead of sinking, it gets higher in the sky. With all that champagne in you, it makes you wonder.

Iowa Court's Injunction Against Koscot Upheld

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — A permanent injunction prohibiting Koscot Interplanetary, Inc., from engaging in alleged consumer fraud sales practices has been upheld by the Iowa Supreme Court.

The decision handed down last week was hailed by Iowa Asst. Atty. Gen. Douglas Carlson as the first of its kind under the Iowa Consumer Fraud Act.

'Most Important'

Carlson called it "one of the most important consumer protection decisions handed down by any appellate court in the United States this year."

All members of the high court concurred in the opinion, written by Justice Maurice Rawlings, except Justice Clay LeGrand, who concurred in the result.

Atty. Gen. Richard Turner brought the injunction action against Koscot, of Orlando, Fla., and its Iowa distributor, located in Davenport, contending the firm's referral sales plan violated Iowa law.

'Buy Into Firm

Under the Koscot plan, individuals could "buy into" the firm either as a retailer, known as a beauty consultant, or at either of two wholesale levels.

Turner said Koscot in its advertising promised those who "bought" positions in the firm could earn up to $34,000 yearly by inducing other prospects to buy in too. But the attorney general said the written contract signed by those who buy in made no reference to payment for bringing in additional sales personnel.

Banned By Law

Justice Rawlings agreed that the sales plan is a referral or pyramid merchandising technique that is banned by Iowa law. He said it was "fundamentally a sugar coated merchandise sales plan."

In appealing the injunction to the Supreme Court, Koscot challenged constitutionality of the Iowa Consumer Fraud Act. It also contended the trial court had erred in holding its sales program violated the law.

Justice Rawlings, however, said Iowa law makes any use of referral sales techniques illegal even when such techniques are specified in contracts with customers.

Invitation Called A Tribute To NU By Schwartzkopf

University of Nebraska Regent Edward Schwartzkopf Thursday termed a "tribute to the institution and the state," an invitation for a presentation next month in New York on NU's educational administrator development programs.

The invitation was extended by the New York College Association for Development of Educational Administrators, which selected the NU program as "exemplary among institutions of higher education," the Lincoln regent noted.

Dale Hayes, chairman of NU's educational administration department, will present the report Dec. 3 at Syracuse University.

"This is another indication of the quality of our educational programs to meet Nebraska's needs and the recognition which these programs are receiving across the nation," said Schwartzkopf.

Trip Expanded?

Washington (UPI) — The White House said that Mrs. Richard M. Nixon may expand her trip to Africa in January to include one or two more countries, but that there had been no decision on whether she will accompany President Nixon to Communist China.

No Danger Seen From Reservoirs

North Platte (AP) — The agencies involved in reservoir storage along the North Platte River, meeting at the Nebraska Conference on Hydrology in North Platte Thursday, reported that they would cooperate to make the best use of the highest reservoir storage of water on record without causing high water conditions in the river.

Session delegates also said they do not believe the water levels to be dangerously high, as the Riparian Association, Inc., of North Platte, has charged.

Stan Christiansen, Bridgeport, division engineer for the Nebraska Department of Water Resources, said, "The agencies involved agree that no danger exists or is likely to exist from the excellent storage carryover. However, cloud burst type storms such as occurred last year, mostly below the storage reservoirs, could again create a threat of high water in the river."

Ralph Knepper, hydraulic engineer for the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, said that the district's storage at Lake McConaughy is higher than usual for this time of year, with 1,762,000 acre feet of water currently in the lake. He said, planned releases of water through Kingsley Dam this fall and winter will be about 410,000 acre feet, or 165 per cent of the last 10 year average.

He said the increased release rate is an effort to use the water for generation of electricity, assure ample irrigation water and still cope with any flood control needs.

Inquest Set In Death Of Old Hunter

North Platte (AP)—There will be a coroner's inquest into the death of Donald Blaesi, 72-year-old North Platte hunter, who died after being struck in the leg with a rifle bullet Monday.

Lincoln County Attorney Walter Mullikin said Thursday he was withholding autopsy information until it could be presented to a coroner's jury at the inquest.

He said an inquest date had not been set since Blaesi's hunting partner, Roy Christner, of North Platte still is hospitalized. Christner also was shot in the leg while the men were duck hunting west of North Platte.

Mullikin said earlier the rifle shots had been fired by a deer hunter, Darrell Welsh of North Platte, who said he thought he saw a deer and fired twice.

Truck Impounded Under Drug Law Sells For $620

Beatrice (AP) — The first sheriff's sale of a motor vehicle impounded in a marijuana case under a recent state law was held in Beatrice.

Marvin Kunc of Crab Orchard was successful bidder with a bid of $620 on a half-ton 1963 pickup truck which allegedly was used for the transportation of marijuana.

Of this amount $444 goes to the general fund of the county. The remainder went to costs.

The truck was registered to Nancy Cordiero, 19, of Colton, Calif., who pleaded guilty in Gage County Court Sept. 9 to possession of less than one pound of marijuana. She was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to seven days in jail.

Speech Planned By Mrs. Vyskocil

Mrs. Diane Vyskocil of the Nebraska Center for the Handicapped will speak Dec. 7 to a public meeting of the League of Human Dignity.

The program will be at 7:30 p.m. in the main floor auditorium of the Lincoln Center Building, 15th and N.

Court Upholds Rozman Firing; Professor Plans Appeal

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Former University of Nebraska Prof. Stephen Rozman said Thursday he intends to appeal a U.S. District Court ruling upholding a Board of Regents decision not to renew his contract.

"I'll appeal it," said Rozman after the decision was handed down by Judge Warren K. Urbom of Lincoln.

"I feel an obligation to carry it further, not only for my own well-being, but for the well-being of the university."

'Frightening'

Calling the decision a "frightening precedent," Rozman said he feared it "could destroy the university."

The regents voted last February not to renew Rozman's contract for 1972-73 after citing Rozman's participation in antiwar activities on the Lincoln campus in May 1970.

Rozman sued for reinstatement to his position and $100,000 in damages.

Urbom said in his ruling that the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution prohibits a university from failing to "reappoint a nontenured faculty member arbitrarily and capriciously or for constitutionally impermissible reasons."

Passed Perimeters

But the judge said he concluded that Rozman "passed beyond the perimeters of protected freedom of expression, assembly and petition and, therefore . . . the nonrenewal of his contract was permissible by the university."

"I offer no view as to the wisdom of the university's action, for to do so would surpass my realm of authority," Urbom wrote.

"That the Board of Regents did not act arbitrarily and capriciously follows necessarily from the finding that each of the factors related in the Board of Regent's resolution of nonreappointment was supported by substantial evidence in the possession" of the board when it made the decision, said Urbom.

Two Areas

"Two areas of activity of Dr. Rozman were outside the scope of constitutionally protected speech," he said.

"One was in the negotiating room (in the occupied Military and Naval Science Building the night of May 4-5, 1970), when he intruded into the responsibilities of the administrators for negotiating an evacuation of the building."

"The other," he said, "was in the (building's) 'pit,' when by his presence he contributed to a cancellation of a class and defied a directive of the administration to leave the building promptly."

Rozman has contended that he and other faculty members believed the directive was intended only for the students who remained in the building.

Thoroughly Persuaded

"I am thoroughly persuaded that Professor Rozman had a right to present his views by voice and physical presence about the Cambodian incursion and the Kent State tragedy," said Urbom.

"A time came in the negotiating room, however, when he abandoned temporarily the process of communicating about those subjects and assumed without invitation the role of attempting to break what he viewed to be an impasse."

"At that point Dr. Rozman was not merely expressing a view as to the rightness or wrongness of the merits of the controversy (over preparation of a stronger statement from NU administrators), but was clothing himself with a procedural function belonging to the administrators.

"That kind of intermeddling is not protected by the Constitution."

Cases Have Affirmed

Urbom said other cases have affirmed that "fitness for faculty status is not limited to performance in the classroom alone" but "rests upon a broad range of factors . . . including numerous personality and character traits."

Urbom also concluded that since the regents had agreed to allow a faculty committee to conduct hearings in the case, the board had obligated itself to "to proceed with at least minimal procedural safeguards."

But he said he concluded Rozman was afforded a proper hearing, even though he was not allowed the right of cross-examination, a right Urbom noted Rozman had waived.

'Peripheral Issues'

Urbom said "peripheral issues," including the assertion about a "sub rosa" meeting of the regents and character damage, were unfounded.

"The single informal meeting (the night before the regents voted the nonreappointment) between members of the Board of Regents and members of the Holtzclaw Committee (which conducted the hearings) was expressly anticipated by the agreement between Dr. Rozman and the Board of Regents before the Holtzclaw Committee was constituted, and the Board of Regents reached no agreement and took no official action at that meeting," Urbom said.

Rozman's attorney, Patrick Healey of Lincoln, said a motion for a retrial will be filed. And if that is turned down, he added, an appeal will be filed with the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Appropriations Group Starts Hearings

. . . PENTERMAN DISCLOSES '68 GUARD CALL-UP RESCINDED

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Thursday launched public hearings on 1972-73 budget requests and may begin to make decisions this week.

Shattering past legislative precedent, the committee opened its formal hearings more than six weeks before the 1972 Unicameral convenes.

Budget hearings in the past have always been held while the Legislature was in session, but the 60-day time limit imposed on the 1972 session prompted the committee to begin its work early.

4 State Agencies

Four state agencies presented their budget documents Thursday; three more are scheduled to appear before the senators Friday.

The committee will huddle in executive session Friday afternoon with Gus Lieske, Gov. J. James Exon's director of administrative services.

That, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings said, will give committee members "a preliminary look" at the governor's budgetary deliberations.

Exon will not present his budget proposal until the 1972 Legislature convenes in January.

Without Knowing

The committee's early start means senators for the first time are quizzing agency spokesmen on their budget requests without knowing how the governor has altered them.

Action on the first budget requests could come at a scheduled executive session of the committee Saturday, Marvel said. He is ready to accept motions making decisions, he said.

Appearing before the budget unit were the Military Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Revenue and the Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Surprise Disclosure

The all-day hearing was highlighted by Brig. Gen. Donald Penterman's surprising disclosure that the Nebraska National Guard received orders for mobilization in 1968 which only a few days later were rescinded.

"We had the orders in the safe," the deputy adjutant general told the committee.

But, he said, "internal security problems" in Nebraska at the time apparently prompted the Defense Department to rescind the call and turn instead to the Kansas National Guard for mobilization.

At the time, Penterman said, unrest and tension prevailed in Omaha's Near North Side and "other areas" of Nebraska.

Not Requested

"There was no request from us to make a change," Penterman told newsmen after the public hearing. "The adjustment was made by the federal government on its own decision."

Nebraska had been in "a period of tension" since 1966, Penterman recalled.

The orders would have affected about 90% of the personnel in the Guard, or about 3,500 men, Penterman said.

It was as a result of those circumstances that the Guard requested Gov. Norbert Tiemann to create a state guard cadre by executive order, he said.

Formed As Back-up

The 220-man volunteer cadre was formed to organize a state guard as aback-up to the National Guard in the event that the latter force were pressed into federal service.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters told the committee he has found that the reduction in field service men he had anticipated last winter is not practical.

They are needed for tax compliance and enforcement procedures, he said. As an example, Peters noted, his department is now minitoring 2,700 income tax returns in which the taxpayer admitted liability but did not pay his taxes.

Reinstituting Plan

Peters said he is also reinstituting a deferred plan to develop uniform standards and procedures for property tax reappraisal.

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said he needs four additional food inspectors to supplement the present 16-member staff.

That request was endorsed by a statement of support from the League of Women Voters of Nebraska.

November Checks Reflect Wage Hike

The Lincoln Public Schools Thursday prepared a special notice to teachers informing them their November paychecks would reflect salary hikes effective at the end of the freeze period.

But the notice also said a school decision on retroactive pay was being withheld pending "publihed decisions from the National (pay) Control Board."

"It is difficult to announce with certainty the amounts that can legally be paid," the notice said.

"In the meantime, payrolls do have to be computed if (pay) warrants are to be available on schedule.

"The November payroll is, therefore, being calculated now so that staff can get that portion of additional pay that it appears can legally be paid."

The notice conceded that "it is entirely possible that (a) later ruling may permit a different calculation."

The announcement said that as of Dec. 1 the monthly premium for health insurance will also go up, as will the contribution from the school district. Teachers won the hike in negotiations last spring.

The schools had been hoping for definite word this week on retroactive pay, but the Pay Board has yet to issue an official ruling.

The school announcement said the school district's decision was based on daily pay rates at last year's levels for the freeze period and at the higher levels for the period following the freeze.

As an example, a teacher with a 190-day contract who is on the fourth step of the bachelor's degree schedule will be paid a total of $7,428 this year rather than the $7,575 he would have received had the freeze not been imposed.

That teacher would have worked 59 days at the old rate, which amounted to a yearly pay of $7,100.

Omaha (UPI) — The Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., announced it will not carry out previously announced plans to build a $10 million antibiotics plant here.

The company instead will build a larger plant in Puerto Rico, according to Bruce S. Lance, vice president for engineering. The Puerto Rico plant will cost about $30 million, he said.

"Exceptionally rapid growth in Upjohn's overseas markets and the need to expand beyond fermentation capabilities to a complete pharmaceutical plant" were cited by Lance as two of the reasons for the change in plans.

NU Ag College Size Ranking Declines

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture has experienced an increase in enrollment this fall. But it also has a 6.5% drop in freshmen enrollment and has slipped to a lower position in size ranking among the nation's land-grant colleges.

According to Dr. Franklin E. Eldridge, Associate Dean of the NU College of Agriculture, total undergraduate enrollment in the College this fall is 1,432, an increase of 23 students over last year.

Enrollment figures indicate an increase of 10 sophomores, five juniors and 55 seniors, but a decrease of 29 students in the freshman class.

According to Eldridge, the substantial increase of seniors is partially attributed to a greater number of transfer students coming from junior colleges to NU. He noted that this plan of education has been encouraged over the past few years.

However, the ag college administrator pointed to the decrease in freshman enrollment as a significant factor in the total enrollment picture. This decrease, he said, will possibly lead to smaller graduating classes in the future. In 1971, 265 students were graduated, the largest graduating class in the history of the college.

For the first time in many years, Eldridge said, the University of Nebraska ag college has slipped to a lower position in size ranking of the nation's land-grant colleges. NU now ranks 13th, a drop from their former ranking of 11th.

The associate dean commented that "this should be of concern to all Nebraskans, since agriculture is the principal industry in our state."

In indications he has received, Eldridge said he has seen no decrease in the degree of job opportunities for agricultural graduates. "The decrease in students is not in the best interest of the agricultural industry in the state and does reflect a weakening in this particular educational choice by incoming students."

At a recent meeting of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, reports showed that enrollment in the nation's land-grant colleges of agriculture increased by 8.6 per cent. Current undergraduate enrollment in these colleges is 58,965, the highest ever.

Eldridge noted that according to the reports, the most sizeable increases have occurred in eastern portions of the U.S. He attributed part of this increase to an expanded interest in environmental quality and ecological concerns. He added that many of the eastern ag colleges also have more women enrolling in the agricultural courses of study.

The largest increase of enrollment in any of the land-grant colleges occurred at Pennsylvania State, followed by North Carolina State. Eldridge pointed out that both of these colleges moved from sizes less than the NU Ag College to enrollments larger than NU.

In standing among the Big 8 land-grant colleges, Nebraska ranks fourth, Eldridge said. Iowa State University, which is the largest land-grant college in the nation, leads the Big 8, followed by Missouri, Oklahoma State and Nebraska. Kansas State is in fifth place, but Eldridge pointed out that this year Kansas State experienced a 14% increase in ag college enrollment — a sizeable increase in comparison to Nebraska's.

Legislature's Committee On Power Recesses Current Hearing Session

Omaha (AP) — The legislative power study committee Thursday recessed its current hearings until Dec. 15.

The committee heard from a group of senior citizens who asked that power districts provide reduced rates to elderly persons on low incomes. The delegation represented the Omaha Senior Citizens Council.

Before adjourning, Chairman Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said he doubts a report can be readied in time for the next session of the legislature which convenes early in January.

Earlier, the committee visited informally with representatives of the Omaha Public Power District.

"We haven't got into anything of consequence yet," Carpenter said.

Charles A. Miller, the district's lobbyist, said he is paid $24,000 a year, and that his job is primarily to influence legislation affecting the district.

He said he did not contact any senators in regard to the resolution passed at the last session which created the power study group.

Carpenter asked Jack Marer, an Omaha attorney, to make a report to the committee concerning the conflict of interest investigation made on Hird Stryker, an OPPD attorney.

Marer headed a committee of the Nebraska Bar Association which found that Stryker is working within the legal profession's canon of ethics.

Carpenter's committee will ask about the legality of bargain utility rates offered employes of the Omaha Public Power District.

And the committee will also ask whether it is legal for a private firm, the Iowa Power-Light Co. to purchase half of the electricity to be generated at the nuclear power plant under construction at Brownville

The plant is being constructed for the Nebraska Public Power District.

As for the employe discount, Carpenter said he didn't disagree with the policy but questioned its legality. OPPD General Manager Lynn Monroe said the long-standing policy is now considered "a fringe benefit and part of an employe's salary."

The committee also heard a recommendation from the Quality Environmental Council that the state law on radiation be stiffened and that a $100,000 budget be appropriated to make tests near nuclear power plants

Two Men Killed In Collision Of UP Freight Train, Truck

Sidney (AP) — Two men were killed late Thursday afternoon in the collision of a westbound Union Pacific freight train and a Union Pacific truck.

They were the driver of the truck, M L. Sharp, 39, of Ogallala, and L. V. Paddock, 61, of Brule, a passenger.

The accident occurred on a company road crossing in the railroad yard. The train, which was just starting a run to Wyoming with a load of mostly empty coal cars, was traveling about 25 miles per hour, according to a UP spokesman.

The truck was demolished and caught fire after the collision.

Because the accident occurred on private property, there was no determination whether the fatalities will be counted toward the 1971 Nebraska highway death toll.

Phyllis Raeichert Killed In Crash

Max (UPI) — A car-train accident on a county road crossing southeast of here Thursday afternoon claimed the life of Phyllis J. Raeichert, 37, of Benkelman.

Authorities said her northbound car was in collision with a west bound Burlington Northern freight train.

The mishap occurred at 1:56 p.m. CST.

Engineer of the train was Leroy F. Kennedy, 49, of McCook.

RICHMAN GORDMAN 45th and VINE 10 to 10 EVERY DAY 10 to 10 SUNDAY

a tour of the shops

This Thanksgiving will be like none other. The holiday takes on a new excitement for Nebraskans, for not only is it the day of the Great Turkey, but the day of the "game of the year" between Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Many families have planned their holiday celebration around the television broadcast, and the traditional dinner of the day is almost taking a back seat. However, it has not lost all of its importance, and housewives will still be cooking and baking well in advance for the festivities.

On shopping tour this week we decided to help our homemaker who must still concentrate on feeding the family. Any table, whether it is for a sit-down dinner or buffet, will be enhanced by an attractive centerpiece, so we visited Tyrrell's Floral and Gift Shop to see what they had in mind We then stopped by Calandra's Card and Gift Shop for party ideas.

Many Lincoln families will be departing Nebraska shortly after the Thanksgiving holiday for the warm beaches of Hawaii, and still another Nebraska football game, so we visited Miller and Paine to scout the latest Hawaii wear. Our finds, we think, will be of interest—We'll talk about Hawaii in a moment—

AT TYRRELL'S FLORAL SHOP

The lovely colors of turning leaves, which so adeptly symbolize fall and have traditionally become a part of the Thanksgiving decor, are reproduced at Tyrrell's in centerpieces of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The bouquets are accented with sprigs of wheat, oak leaves and cattails

A beautiful and unique arrangement, perfect for any Thanksgiving setting, is a bouquest of the chrysanthemums in a carved out pumpkin.

We were also told that if you have a favorite vase that you would like your bouquet arranged in, Tyrrell's will be happy to provide this service.

There are some homes, of course, where the color schemes of autumn would not blend with the decor. For these homes, table centerpieces can be designed in bouquets of roses, carnations or gladioli—all seasonal flowers for this time of the year.

Arrangements of dried flowers are also very popular for this time of the year. They are more practical than blooming bouquets in that their life span is a great deal longer. Combinations of wheat, wood roses, cattails and oak leaves in hues of reds, yellows and browns, add a nice finishing touch to a table.

In the gift shop at Tyrrell's there are some additional items for Thanksgiving decor. Special candles, one of a turkey and another of a pumpkin, will add an interesting note to the dining room. There are, too, a wide selection of other candles in all shapes and sizes which will blend in with your flower selection and accent it.

AT CALANDRA'S

Your every party need for holidays—ranging from invita-the holidays—ranging from invitations to tablecloths—may be found at Calandra's Card and Party Shop.

The Thanksgiving set features a pilgrim couple toting baskets of fruit and standing on a bed of leaves. This centerpiece may be a fun family project to assemble, and it is easily constructed with the scene showing on front and back Made of tissue paper with the fall shades of brown, gold, and orange, the centerpiece has coordinating napkins, tablecloths, invitations, tallies, cups, plates, and place mats. By the way, party accessories in solid shades of orange, brown, or yellow will go well with this attractive display.

For those who wish to try something different and stay close to the seasonal decorations rather than the pilgrims, Calandra's has stocked another party set which features fall leaves. The striking decoration has a brown background with orange, yellow, and red leaves—and the set includes all of the necessaries to brighten up any table or party.

"Go Big Red' will be the theme of many a party and dinner come Thanksgiving Day — and Calandra's has many items to solve those decorating problems, too. The Big Red fan, complete with banner and 10-gallon hat, is depicted on coasters and cocktail napkins.

Solid red accessories and stationery tend to be the vogue these days—and the red candles and invitations seem to be the greatest sellers.

AT MILLER & PAINE

For Hawaii, USA, the attire is generally casual. Those fortunate persons who will be packing their bags for this glorious land will want to include some native wear.

Miller & Paine is offering the perfect attire for the trip with some muumuus in the Nebraska colors of red and white. For those who are not familiar with this Hawaiian garb, muumuus are loose fitting garments that serve extremely well in the warm climates. The ones at Miller's are available in both long and short lengths in a floral print.

There also is a selection of beautiful resort wear for the trip. The popular blazer jacket in easy-to-care-for light weight double knits with matching or coordinate skirts are being shown by many manufacturers. For the game day itself, there are blazer and skirt outfits in red with accents of white in small star designs on the sleeve hemline and the collar.

Those who are tennis or golf enthusiasts will be interested in the double knit short dress, which features a white bodice that reaches to hip lengths, and a short skirt effect in either red or blue.

Good morning:

There seems to be something of a stigma about tuning into KUON-TV, Channel 12, the educational television station. You know, the station without any commercials.

An objective analysis might show that there are two schools of thought on television. There are those who find the 'booby-tube' a way to tune out the problems of the world. Then there are those who simply don't watch.

In the first category fall a whole range of people, from educated housewives to professional and non-professional businessmen. In parlor gossip we find that many of these people who contribute so much during the work day prefer to tune out with the tube in their off hours.

In the second category are those who find television 'distasteful', and vow stolidly that they never watch television. It all sounds very elite and intellectual until you ask them how they liked a certain show, and they always happen to have just seen that show.

Now, somewhere in the middle of these two groups is educational television. Unfortunately the nomenclature from its early days has remained, although the head office has assumed a more appropriate name, the Public Broadcasting Service.

The whole problem, as we see it, is that we must overcome our conception of television as a cop-out vehicle. For not only does ETV serve the public, but the aspiring artist as well. In many of the performers who have not made it 'big' there lies a wealth of talent.

For example, on Wednesday evening this week, ETV produced "Macbeth" by the University Repertory Players. While there were parts that left something to be desired, the production as a whole was to be applauded.

So, for those who do admit to television watching, we suggest that the next time you consult your program guide your carefully digest the ETV programs. You are sure to find some wonderful ways to painlessly fill your off hours, and maybe even learn a thing or two.

Now, for your further entertainment:

LAST OF A TRADITION . . . When the Lincoln Community Playhouse opens its worn curtains tonight on the newest production, Peter Ustinov's "Halfway Up The Tree," it will also be the last opening night at this playhouse. The remaining productions of the season will be at the new theatre. But, don't let that keep you away from this comedy which promises to be of high calibre. It will play the 19, 20, and 26 through 28 of Nov., and Dec. 3 to 5, and 9 to 12.

WHO MADE A GOOF . . . Goofy, of course, the famous Walt Disney character who will star in the entirely new Disney On Parade which arrives in Lincoln on Nov. 30. For those who saw the show last year, no introduction is needed, except that this show will be more entertaining than ever. For those who missed it last year, you will be spellbound as Disney creations come to life. Adults will love it as much as their children do. The show will be in Lincoln through Dec. 5 and tickets are available at Pershing auditorium.

IN THE ART MARKET . . . a glorious three days for people shopping for original art will come to Lincoln on Sunday, Nov. 28 at the Gateway Shopping Center. Sponsored by Hadassah, the show will include a beautiful collection of oil paintings by Chicago's Arts International Gallery of Discoveries and a collection of graphics by Circle Gallery Ltd. of N.Y. The exhibit opens on Sunday—from 3 o'clock until 9—and will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 29 and 30.

ON YOUR TOES . . . for the National Ballet of Washington will be performing in Lincoln as the second Community Concert presentation. Directed by renowned balletomane Frederic Franklin, the company has received outstanding reviews from top ballet critics. The performance, for season ticket holders only, is at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21.

WORLD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA . . . with Lincoln's own Arnold Shatz of the Lincoln Symphony playing in the blend of 140 musical ambassadors from 60 nations, will be featured on ETV Channel 12 on Thursday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Conductor Arthur Fiedler conducts the 90 minute special which highlights the three U.S. concerts.

Stitchery Steals Show

In almost every artistic endeavor, there are many people behind the scenes who work almost as hard as the artist to ensure the success of a show.

At the Nebraska Wesleyan University Elder Art Gallery, the backstage workers are members of the NWU Art Council. Their function is to promote art at the school.

The stitichery show will be on exhibit at Elder Gallery through Dec. 17.

Mayflower Society

The 350th anniversary of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving dinner will be observed by the Nebraska Society of Mayflower Descendants on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21.

The anniversary dinner will be held at the Hilton Hotel in Omaha, and is scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock.

The Rev. Robert Alward, senior pastor of the Countryside-Briardale United Church of Christ will be the featured speaker at the affair. His topic will be "The Ship of Hope."

Officers will be elected following the luncheon address. E. Thomas Gumbert of Omaha is the current governor of the Nebraska Society.

Society Meeting

The National Society of Women Descendants of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, of Nebraska, will meet on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Hostess for the event will be Mrs. Nelley Knight, society president, and the program will be presented by Mrs. Joel E. McLafferty, who will review "The United States and China," by Fairbanks.

Initiation

When the members of Credit Women International gathered at the Elks Club on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, for their monthly dinner meeting, the evening's agenda promised an unusual, but interesting, few hours.

First, three new members were welcomed into the club. They are Mrs. Phillip Hauschild of BankAmericard, Mrs. Sherry Hempel of the Southeast Medical Center, and Mrs. Manfred Jalass of the Government Employees' Credit Union.

Then education chairman, Mrs. Clifford Prell, conducted the annual examination on the "Hands of Time" manual.

The evening was completed by discussion of the CWI future planning questionnaire.

Abby: go back to your husband—now

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 33 years, whom I have always adored, was unfaithful to me. I caught him, and there was no way out for him. He begged me to forgive him, said the woman meant nothing to him and he would never see her again, but I was so hurt and numb and heartsick I went to my son and daughter-in-law's home (where I am now living) and told them all about what had happened.

I have thought everything over, and realize that since this has never happened before, my husband deserves another chance. But my son has forbidden his father to come near me, them, or the children. children.

I spoke with my minister and he agrees I should go back to my husband. How can I? My son tells me he will have no respect for me if I go back. So now I must make a choice. Can you advise me!

TORN

DEAR TORN: Go back to your husband. And tell your son that one who cannot forgive destroys the bridge over which he one day may need to pass.

DEAR ABBY: There are bachelors living in this apartment building. They are not hippies, they are churchgoing men, yet there seems to be plenty of free love going on. They bring girls here day and night without any apparent shame, changing girls every few weeks. Even the children know something shady is going on.

With all this hanky-panky going on I can understand why the young people have become so disgusted with the older generation. I think these men should be asked to move. I would like your opinion.

OVER THIRTY

DEAR OVER: What people do behind their own closed doors is not the business of neighbors. As long as they do not disturb their neighbors, I see no reason for them to be asked to move. Besides, you would have a hard time proving that your suspicions were correct.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is pushing 40, has suddenly become very jealous of me for no legitimate reason.

I do daywork for different people. Every Friday I work for two very nice gentlemen who live together and are so wrappedup in each other they couldn't care less about me or any other woman.

Yesterday my husband came to pick me up at their place and they stood outside and blew me kisses, saying, "Good-bye, Doll. See you next Friday!"

Abby, believe me, I am in no danger with these fellows, but my husband doesn't believe me. He reads your column every day and believes you. Please help me and tell him not to be jealous.

SAFE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAFE: If you're telling it like it is, and I believe you are, your husband has no reason to be jealous.

Bridge: quiz day

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠KQ85 ♥742 ♦964 ♣A93
2. ♠AQ972 ♥J6 ♦873 ♣KJ4
3. ♠KJ984 ♥K95 ♦A962 ♣7
4. ♠AQ853 ♥J8 ♦KQ105 ♣J6
5. ♠KQ965 ♥J ♦63 ♣AQ842

1. Two hearts. All you can do at the moment is show a preference for partner's first suit. North's strength is unknown — he may have either a minimum opening bid or extra values not yet disclosed.

Two hearts shows willingness to stop at a part score, and thus indicate that the first response was based on fairly minimum values. But if partner were now to bid three hearts you should carry on to four, for you would be in the happy position of having somewhat greater values than your first two bids had shown.

2. Three clubs. This invites partner to go on to game with more than a minimum opening, but he is of course not forced to bid again. In this sequence, three clubs generally indicates 10 to 12 points.

3. Three hearts. It would be wrong to bid only two hearts, which would indicate a much weaker hand. Counting the value of the heart fit, the distribution and the 11 high-card points, you have the equivaletnt of an opening bid facing an opening bid — which means game. Accordingly you jump-raise rather than give partner a simple preference in hearts.

4. Three notrump. It is clear that with 13 high-card points opposite an opening bid you must undertake game, and it is likewise clear that the best chance for game lies in notrump. There is not much point to bidding two diamonds, even though this would constitute a forcing bid. It would suggest a distributional hand rather than the notrump type of hand you have.

5. Four Clubs. Game is highly likely, and even a slam is not out of the question. The distributional factors easily justify the jump raise (forcing), although it is true that there are only 12 high-card points. While it must be granted that three notrump could prove to be a better contract, there is no way of reaching a notrump game without sacrificing the advantages of the jump raise.

Just in time for your Christmas sewing projects!

AROUND THE TOWN

In spite of the fact that every Nebraskan has but one thought uppermost in his mind these days, we must point out that Thanksgiving Day has numerous other attributes that make it a great holiday

Take the talk around town this morning, for instance — It revolves around Thanksgiving Day and the game to be sure, but there are other topics of conversation — guests, parties and, of course, weddings.

Our grapevine tells us that in the average home Thanksgiving dinner will not be served until after the game — and that all of the smallfry have been warned that any interference with television viewing during game hours will not be tolerated. But on with the news—

* * *

Last Friday, Nov. 12, there was a wedding in Baton Rouge, La. — that of Miss Suanne Stiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stiner of Lincoln, and Robert S. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Graham of Baton Rouge.

This weekend Mr. and Mrs Graham will be arriving in Lincoln to spend Thanksgiving week as the house guests of Mrs Graham's parents, and on hand to share the greeting will be Miss Kay Stiner who arrives on Saturday for the Thanksgiving recess. Miss Stiner is attending the University of Arizona at Tucson

And there is more—

Arriving in time for Thanksgiving will be Mr Graham's parents who will join their son and daughter-in-law as honored guests when Mr. and Mrs Stiner entertain at a reception on Friday evening, Nov 26, at the Lincoln Country Club

We can't close the books on the Stiner family, however, until we tell you that there is to be a birthday celebration — The celebrant will be Miss Kay Stiner.

* * *

On with the guest list—

Coming from Denver, Colo , to spend the Thanksgiving weekend in Lincoln are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bowman (Shirley Sidles) and their three children, Beverly, David and young Thomas Schoeff Bowman — better known in family circles as Tommy.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowman and their children will be the house guests of Mrs. Bowman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sidles.

* * *

Thanksgiving Day will certainly be a family day at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Hillyer. Arriving from Wheaton, Ill., for Thanksgiving and the weekend will be Dr. and Mrs. Hillyer's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hillyer and their two daughters, Christine and Lisa. Joining the family circle will be another Hillyer son, Capt. Robert Hillyer, who will come from Ft Carson, Colo.

Joining Dr and Mrs Hillyer and their family for television viewing and dinner will be Dr. and Mrs. Donald Purvis and members of their family.

Buffalo, Wyo , enters the Thanksgiving picture by way of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meldrum who will be the Thanksgiving weekend guests of Mrs Meldrum's brother-in-law and sister, Mr and Mrs Harold Stebbins.

* * *

Just because the Nebraska-Oklahoma game isn't at Memorial Stadium in Lincoln is no reason for not having a pre-game party Mr and Mrs Richard Joyce are doing just that — On Wednesday evening, Nov 24, Mr and Mrs Joyce will be host and hostess at a cocktail supper at their home

* * *

Up to this moment we seemed to have completely ignored the current week which also has its bright spots

One of these is the Thanksgiving dinner-dance for the members of the 100 Club Planning the party, which will be held at Hotel Lincoln, is a committee composed of Mr and Mrs Ralph Tyler chairmen. Mr and Mrs John Bottorff, Mr and Mrs Marvin Spitsnogle, Mr and Mrs Ed Copple, Mr and Mrs Dale Ganz and Mr and Mrs W. M Swanson

Peace And Freedom' Party Petition Is Filed

The "Peace and Freedom" Party filed its petition forms Thursday for recognition on election ballots, according to Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann.

Although the petition filing is the first under a 1969 law regarding new parties, it was one of a dozen inquiries Beermann said his office has received lately. Under the law, new political parties can only gain official recognition and get on the ballot through the petition method.

Previously, a state convention was all that was required for a party to be put on the ballot.

Among the other groups which have told Beermann they would seek recognition are the "God in Politics" Party, the "Progressive Emblem" Party and the "NEWP" Party (which, its supporters say, stands for new party.)

"I don't have any idea of how many of these parties will actually file and circulate petitions for recognition," Beermann said.

But he said, "It is keeping us busy."

The "Peace and Freedom" Party, Beermann, said originated in California and in 1968, Eldridge Cleaver was the party's first presidential candidate.

The petition was filed by University of Nebraska English Professor Robert Hirschfield of Lincoln.

The party has until Feb. 9 to get 4,620 signatures of registered voters with a distribution factor of 1% of the vote for governor in the last election in 19 counties.

Tonnage Up

Le Havre, France —The French oil-tanker fleet increased 16% in tonnage last year, from 5.1 million tons to 5 9 million. Eight ships were retired, but six tankers in 200,000-ton class were added.

Two Moot Court Teams From NU Win Matches

Omaha — Two moot court teams from the University of Nebraska Law College won all their matches Thursday in regional moot court competition in Omaha.

The competition brings together top teams from law schools in several midwestern states.

Thursday's matches were against the University of Missouri at Kansas City, Washburn University, North Dakota, Creighton, Washington University in St. Louis.

One Nebraska team includes law students Richard Koph and Douglas Kluender, while the other includes James Snowden, David Domina and Kenneth Noha.

The regional competition continues through Saturday.

Exon Is Against Nomination Of Earl Butz

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday objected to the nomination of Earl Butz as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture on the basis of his record during the 1950s.

In a telegram to the Senate Agriculture Committee, Exon said, "The key reason for my objection to Dr. Butz has been his past record under former Secretary Benson when the nation's farmers suffered their other worst cost-price ratio in the nation's history."

"We are in deep economic distress in the farm belt. I am concerned that this fact is not fully appreciated or at least placed in its proper perspective in Washington. An indication that the U.S. Senate is concerned and intends corrective action would be evidenced by your declining to act favorably on this nomination."

Butz, who has been nominated by President Nixon to replace resigning Secretary Clifford Hardin, is a Purdue University dean and a former assistant secretary of agriculture Ezra Taft Benson during the 1950s.

Critics have called Benson "one of the chief architects" of the Benson policies which "forced hundreds of farmers off the land."

Transportation Board Favors Reduced Fares For Elderly

The Lincoln Transportation System Board Thursday gave approval to the principle of a proposal concerning reduced bus fares for the elderly and recommended supporting funds be made available from another source for expedience.

City Attorney Richard Wood said that a resolution to that effect would be drawn and presented the Council Monday.

According to Jim Zietlow, coordinator of the Lincoln Areawide Project on Aging to finance discounted bus rides for senior citizens, said the proposal would reduce the present 30-cent fare to 10 cents

Of the 20-cent reduction, funds from the Commission on Aging would finance three-fourths, or 15 cents, while the city would make up the additional five-cent subsidy.

Representatives from the Lincoln Recreation Dept. and Community Action for the Elderly spoke out in favor of the proposal noting that it would help the senior citizens live more independently if they could be furnished reduced-rate transportation, as well as the health factor of getting them out of "four walls."

The board agreed that a second project proposed by Zietlow whereby the handicapped and elderly outside of Lincoln would be furnished door-to-door transportation, was worthwhile.

After considerable discussion on how much would be "hard cash" output by the city in addition to the in-kind services the city would furnish, the board approved the project conditionally upon a workable budget.

They noted that even though the city's share was to be in in-kind services and the county's would be in "hard cash", there would be some "hard cash" involved on the city side because of insurance costs

The Lancaster County Board several weeks ago allocated $4,500 for county participation in the joint project

In other business, City Finance Director James Mallon reported that the net loss for operation of the Lincoln Transportation System for the month of September was $23,155.

The figures showed that operating revenues totaled $38,049 while $18,526 was spent for maintenance of the buses.

City Transportation System Manager Jerald Rae reported that he anticipates increased passenger totals in the next two months bringing in substantially more revenue.

Proposed Water System Extension Requires Revenue Bond Election

Nebraska City (AP) — An injunction hearing involving the City of Syracuse wound up in Otoe County District Court Thursday with an agreement which obviated a ruling by District Judge Walter Smith of Plattsmouth.

On Nov. 9, Judge Smith had issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting the city from using utility revenue to bring in additional water from the Cook area south of Syracuse.

The order had been obtained by Glen Davidson and others.

Both parties to the action agreed Thursday that no municipal funds will be used for the water system extension unless a revenue bond election is held to approve the necessary $400,000 bond issue

Mayor Ervin Kehlbeck said later the bond issue proposal will be put before the voters in the May 9, 1972 election.

The Syracuse board of public works had proposed the expansion program and on Nov 1, the city council disbanded the board of public works.

Group Will Study Coed Visitation

University of Nebraska Board of Regents Chairman Robert Raun of Minden Thursday announced a committee to study coed visitation on the NU campuses.

The Regents had earlier this month directed that such a committee be named.

Last 2 Moon Landings In Budgetary Jeopardy

©The New York Times

Pasadena, Calif. — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is understood to be under heavy pressure from the Nixon administration to cut its next budget so sharply that it migh have to cancel the remaining two Apollo moon landings.

Sources close to the space program report that the Office of Management and Budget has asked the space agency for a substantial cut in its budget request for fiscal year 1973, which begins next July 1. The requested reduction is said to be "quite a few hundred million dollars" below the current $3.3 billion budget.

NASA is fighting hard this week to convince the administration's budgetmakers to restore all or part of the proposed cuts. The fate of Apollos 16 and 17, scheduled for March and December 1972, may hang in the balance.

NASA officials generally declined to discuss their budget problems. NASA's budget has dwindled each year since its $5.9-billion peak in 1966, but there had been some hope of a modest "turn-around" with the next budget

Some officials denied that the two Apollo missions were in jeopardy. Dale D Myers, associate administrator for manned spaceflight, said "Apollos 16 and 17 look firm," but conceded that they could "be in trouble" if there is a significant cut in spending.

But other sources said that NASA, at the administration's request, had drawn up alternate plans that include elimination of one or both of the moon-landing missions, as well as the curtailment, cancellation or delay of other projects.

An Apollo scientist said it would be "absurd" to cancel the two flights because the rockets and spacecraft for the missions have already been paid for and the savings, largely from launching and operational expenses, would be "minimal" compared to the prior investment.

Each Apollo mission costs about $450 million.

One scientist contended that after spending $24 billion on the project, it would be "a national disaster" to end it before the last two missions, in which, he asserted, "the scientific results will be greater than in all the previous missions put together."

U.S. Steps Up Support To Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — With the military situation becoming critical in Cambodia, U.S warplanes have stepped up their support of Cambodian troops, official American sources reported Thursday

Reports circulated in Saigon that the South Vietnamese government was considering a Cambodian request for infantry and heavy weapons for the defense of Phnom Penh. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported near the western outskirts of the Cambodian capital

Dispatches from Phnom Penh reported U S Cobra helicopter gunships have been thrown into the battle ranging from 10 to 12 miles west of the capital.

The U.S. sources said the Cambodians have been getting substantially more American air support in the last 10 days, and one source declared: "They asked the United States for more air support because they were in a pinch"

The U S Command announced that last week five Americans were reported killed in action in Vietnam — the sixth consecutive week of fewer than eight combat deaths.

The weekly casualty summaries listed relatively low numbers of U S. wounded. Twenty-one Americans were reported wounded, compared to 13 the previous week — the only two weeks this year when fewer than 25 U S. troops were wounded Ten Americans were killed by nonhostile action such as accidents and disease. South Vietnamese battle fatalities were put at 219, compared to 198 the week before The Saigon command listed enemy dead for last week as 1,063

©The New York Times

Paris — William J Porter, the chief American negotiator at the Vietnam peace talks here, maintained the tough stance he has shown over the last few weeks by saying almost nothing

Porter greeted Xuan Thuy, the representative of North Vietnam who returned to the conference after a two-month absence, with a 23-ward statement that implied that it was up to Thuy if the talks were to get anywhere Porter said·

"Ladies and Gentlemen We have repeatedly made our position clear, we are awaiting a constructive reply and, therefore, have nothing further to say"

Thuy and his Viet cong colleague, Nguyen Van Tien, had little to say either Pham Dang Lam the Saigon representative took his cue from Porter and limited his remarks to seven minutes

Soccer Pool Winners Split $1.25 Million

London (AP) — A garage mechanic and a factory worker shared a world record soccer pools prize of over $1.25 million

Michael Turton, a garage mechanic who lives near Rugby in central England, received the pound equivalent of $634,295 for his skill at forecasting the results of last Saturday's soccer matches throughout Britain.

John Heald, whose job up to now has been repairing mine cars, in Mexborough Yorkshire, won $619,147 for showing equal skill. For Heald, 63, the win means he will retire. He has been in poor health.

Turton, 37, plans a round the world trip for himself and his family, starting off with a safari in South Africa

"What a great feeling knowing we need not work again," he said. "We have worked 80 hours a week for 10 years and now we will be able to pack it in."

Pools prizes are paid to those entrants who have predicted eight matches in which both teams have scored or tied.

Turton's share of the jackpot was slightly larger than Heald's because he won a greater number of dividends, paid on a points basis.

CSL Hears Committee Reports

The Council on Studnet Life (CSL) at the University of Nebraska Thursday heard and discussed committee reports on student publications, use of student fees and university health services.

Because of recent complaints about the use of mandatory student fees to finance the university newspaper, the publications committee has begun to investigate making the Daily Nebraskan independent of the fees, committee chairman Dr. James T. Horner said.

He said it would require the purchase of printing facilities at a cost of around $150,000. The newspaper's printing is now done by a Lincoln printer and has, this semester, already cost more than $9,000.

The student fees committee reported that preliminary investigation has indicated that more research needs to be done. However, it did submit a list of proposals that will not be released until the CSL acts upon it.

After hearing a report concerning establishment of a committee to study university health services, CSL approved the formation of a joint committee (consisting of students, faculty and service personnel) to decide upon the scope of such a study.

It will report to CSL at the next meeting Dec. 2.

It includes working for:

—the building of an Interstate spur to sevre East Lincoln, similar to the I-180 spur for the downtown area;

—a comprehensive study of police protection in East Lincoln;

—better bus service in East Lincoln, including north-south transportation and shuttle service between Gateway shopping center and the downtown area;

—expansion of the association.

Bowl Deals Remove Suspense

According to the rules, bowl bids are neither to be extended nor accepted prior to 6 p.m. Saturday, but also as nearly everyone knows it doesn't work that way.

Every football fan with sight good enough to read or hearing good enough to listen knows who's going to be calling whom at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Every telephone operator in Miami, who also happens to be a football fan, knows that Saturday evening she might be the one to place the calls to Lincoln, Neb., and to Tuscaloosa, Ala., where Nebraska's Bob Devaney and Alabama's Bear Bryant will just happen to be sitting by their telephones to say "Yes."

It's also no secret that calls will go out from New Orleans to Norman, Okla., and Auburn, Ala., sites of the University of Oklahoma and Auburn University.

And as soon as Penn State trots off the field after blasting Pitt, coach Joe Paterno will be handed a Cotton Bowl contract and all Texas has to do to be the other team is to beat Texas A&M on Thanksgiving Day.

Ironically, the bowl that may be most up in the air is one that supposedly was all set a couple of weeks ago with Stanford and Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

All of a sudden it's possible that Stanford, a loser to such powers as Duke, Washington State and San Jose State, might not be in it after all.

If California defeats Stanford Saturday and gets a favorable court decision against its NCAA-imposed probation, the Golden Bears would be in the Rose Bowl.

The excitement of what might happen at 6 p.m. Saturday has been dulled, much the same way that national elections have been dulled by those computerized gadgets that give you the winner with only a small percentage of the votes in.

Another week like last week and we may consider borrowing one of those computers. The 39-18 mark for a .694 percentage dropped the season log to 371-148-5 for a .713 percentage.

This week:

The Big Eight

COLORADO 35, Air Force 14 . . . Last year the Buffs didn't want a bowl game, this year they do.

IOWA STATE 34, Oklahoma State 20 . . . The Cyclones also are eyeing a bowl trip, but it hinges on a victory over the Cowboys.

KANSAS STATE 28, Memphis State 14 . . . The Wildcats aren't going to a bowl and Memphis State is, but even an also-ran in the Big Eight ought to be able to beat the Missouri Valley champion.

KANSAS 21, Missouri 14 . . . So what if the Jayhawks don't have a defense; the Tigers don't have an offense.

The Top Ten

MICHIGAN 27, Ohio State 14 . . . . What has often been a classic is just another game this year.

PENN STATE 42, Pittsburgh 7 . . . By game time the Nittany Lions may realize they have no chance to become No. 1 and that won't be good for the Pitt Panthers.

LSU 7, Notre Dame 6 . . . If you can't pass against LSU, you're in trouble. Notre Dame is in trouble.

ARIZONA STATE 28, San Jose State 7 . . . San Jose will find it tougher to sneak up on a Wildcat (Arizona State variety) than on an Indian (Stanford variety).

The East

BOSTON COLLEGE over Massachusetts . . . COLUMBIA over Brown . . . CORNELL over Penn . . . DARTMOUTH over Princeton . . . COLGATE over Rutgers . . . WEST VIRGINIA over Syracuse . . . VILLANOVA over Temple . . . YALE over Harvard.

The South

CLEMSON over North Carolina State . . . The CITADEL over Davidson . . . NORTH CAROLINA over Duke . . . FLORIDA STATE over Tulsa . . . TENNESSEE over Kentucky . . . OHIO over Marshall . . . MARYLAND over Virginia . . . SOUTH CAROLINA over Wake Forest . . . TAMPA over Vanderbilt . . . VMI over Chattanooga . . . SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI over Virginia Tech . . . WILLIAM AND MARY over Richmond.

The Midwest

DAYTON over Bowling Green . . . ILLINOIS over Iowa . . . PURDUE over Indiana . . . CINCINNATI over Miami, Ohio . . . WISCONSIN over Minnesota . . . MICHIGAN STATE over Northwestern . . . TOLEDO over Kent State.

The Southwest

. . . HOUSTON over Miami, Fla. . . . NORTH TEXAS STATE over Wichita State . . . TCU over Rice . . . TEXAS-EL PASO over Colorado State . . . DRAKE over West Texas State.

The Far West

BRIGHAM YOUNG over Utah . . . UTAH STATE over Idaho . . . NEW MEXICO over Wyoming . . . OREGON over Oregon State . . . PACIFIC over Fresno State . . . ARIZONA over San Diego State . . . SOUTHERN CAL over UCLA . . . STANFORD over California . . . WASHINGTON over Washington State.

Statistics Say It's Best Defense Vs. Best Offense

. . . OU OFFENSE AVERAGING 563.2 YARDS; NU DEFENSIVE GIVING UP ONLY 171.7

Kansas City, Mo. — Oklahoma has its Big Eight Conference offensive records, and Nebraska has its league defensive titles.

Now only a pair of conference games and a couple of non-league tests remain before the "Big Eight Bowl," that classic confrontation in Norman, Oklahoma, Thanksgiving Day, when the best the two have to offer is matched.

The pony power of the Oklahoma backfield filed an NCAA and two Big Eight marks last week, when it zoomed to 4,333 rushing and 5,069 total yards for the year.

Thus, with two games still to go, the Sooners have wiped out two long-standing marks the 3,910 rushing (which was the high in collegiate football history until the development of Oklahoma wishbone competency) and 4,817 totally, which were held by another Oklahoma team, the 1956 national champions.

To get yet another mark held by that last Oklahoma collegiate titlist, the Sooners will have to score 62 points in their final brace of games.

Nebraska, no slouch, either, offensively, holding a relatively pat hand which could well have broken the seasonal total-offense mark had not the Sooners burst forth, will end up winning at least three of the four Conference defensive crowns — rushing, total, and scoring.

The Black Shirts dropped their rushing-stopping average to 70.5 for the year last week. It would take over 900 ground lengths the last two games to wipe out the lead held now.

A similar kind of insurmountable lead exists in both the total-defense and scoring-defense chases — 1,400 is what it would take in yards and 82 in points (or 18 more than the season's total s u r r e n d e r e d). Somewhat closer is the contest for passing-defense supremacy. True, the Huskers top all, showing a 101.2 average, but conceivably Iowa State, with a 116.9 average, could overtake Nebraska.

. . . NU, OU, CU Slated For Bids

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame declared itself out of the post-season game of musical chairs Thursday as pieces began falling into place — unofficially — in the major college football bowls.

Under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, promoters aren't permitted to contact teams until 6 p.m. Saturday, local time, in the area the team is playing.

Nevertheless, phones have been jangling all over the country for a week, and some of the big bowls are reportedly set.

According to best inside information, they stack up this way:

ROSE BOWL Jan. 1 — Michigan 10-0 vs. Stanford 7-3.

ORANGE BOWL Jan. 1 — Nebraska 10-0 vs. Alabama 10-0.

SUGAR BOWL Jan. 1 — Oklahoma 9-0 vs. Auburn 9-0.

COTTON BOWL Jan. 1 — Texas 7-2 vs. Penn State 9-0.

GATOR BOWL Dec. 31 — Georgia 9-1 vs. North Carolina 8-2.

BLUEBONNET BOWL Dec. 31 — Colorado 8-2 vs. Houston 7-2.

FIESTA BOWL Dec. 27 — Arizona State 8-1 vs Florida State 6-3.

LIBERTY BOWL Dec. 20 — Arkansas 7-2-1 vs. Tennessee 6-2.

TANGERINE BOWL — Toledo 10-0 vs. Richmond 4-5 or William & Mary 5-5.

PEACH BOWL — Air Force 6-3 vs. Mississippi 8-2.

Announcement that the Fighting Irish, who for years maintained a firm no-bowl attitude, would sit this one out came from Coach Ara Parseghian in South Bend, Ind.

The coach said he took a sounding of the players and they voted against bowl participation. The Irish this year failed to measure up to expectations, losing to Southern California 28-14 and squeaking past several other teams which they were supposed to overpower.

The Irish also have a tough game coming up Saturday night in Baton Rouge, La., against Louisiana State. Notre Dame lost to Texas in the Cotton Bowl, Jan. 1, 1970 but came back to beat the previously unbeaten Longhorns Jan. 1, 1971.

Meanwhile, Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State, the best team in the East, maintained a closed mouth on his team's bowl plans.

"The only thing we are concerned about now is Pitt," Paterno said, referring to the game Saturday in Pittsburgh. The Nittany Lions are ranked No. 6 in The Associated Press poll.

Another announcement out of Jacksonville, Fla., said that Georgia, No. 8 in the AP poll, is one of the preferred teams for the Gator Bowl Dec. 31, with Gator scouts looking at Saturday's games for a rival. Tennesse and North Carolina are the most likely teams to be contacted.

As usual the four big bowls — Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Rose — will command the most attention, bringing into action six teams unbeaten at the present time.

Thus, the national championship may hinge on the Jan. 1 contests, as was the case last year when Nebraska, 17-12 winner over Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl, won the title when Notre Dame beat defending champion Texas in the Cotton Bowl and Ohio State fell before Stanford in the Orange Bowl.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska, the country's winningest football coach has been biding his time for another shot at Alabama since the Crimson Tide beat his Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl 39-28 in 1966 and repeated in the Sugar Bowl in 1967 by 34-7.

Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama, with one of his best squads, has a fondness for the Orange Bowl.

The national title could be decided in the Orange and Sugar Bowls, with Michigan, now No. 3 in the AP poll, in position to stake a claim with a triumph in the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska and Oklahoma, now ranked Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, clash in Norman, Okla., on Thanksgiving Day. Auburn and Alabama, rivals of long standing, match their perfect marks in a game at Birmingham the following Saturday, Nov. 27.

Michigan closes its Big Ten campaign Saturday against Ohio State at Ann Arbor. Stanford climaxes the regular season in "The Big Game" against California. The California Bears, by winning, could usurp Stanford's place in the Rose Bowl but such an eventuality appears unlikely.

The Bears would have to get a favorable court decision on the suit protesting the probation on them by the NCAA and would need a favorable vote from the Pacific-8 directors.

Ex-Husker Coach Joins Hurricanes

Miami (UPI) —Pete Elliott, former head football coach at Nebraska, California and Illinois, Thursday was appointed assistant athletic director at the University of Miami.

Elliott will assist athletic director Ernie McCoy, who came to the Hurricanes last year from Penn State and is a family friend of the Elliotts.

Elliott resigned as Illinois coach because of alleged involvement in a slush fund set up to help athletes.

He has been in private business the past few years.

Pressbox Filled For OU-NU Tilt

The sold out sign that was hung up on Oklahoma's Owen Field long ago for the Nebraska-Oklahoma game has now also been hung up on the pressbox that sits atop the stadium.

Oklahoma sports information director Johnny Keith is turning down all requests now being received for pressbox or sidelines space.

Keith says the Thanksgiving Day game will be covered by 97 writers from 65 newspapers, plus two magazines and both the Associated Press and United Press International wire services, NCAA Films, Tel-Ra, six Oklahoma and Nebraska TV stations, seven radio stations from the two states and numerous photographers.

—COACHING HELPS—

Many Factors Keys To Cutting Miscues

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

One of the characteristics of Nebraska's top-ranked football team this season has been its ability to put together long drives, an accomplishment that requires a minimum of mistakes.

"We have been running the same offense consistently," NU head coach Bob Devaney began in trying to explain the Huskers' ability to play nearly perfect ball much of the time this season.

"I wouldn't say it's a simple offense," he added, "But there isn't much multiple ball handling and that helps cut down on fumbles.

"And our quarterbacks have gotten good protection from the line and with good protection you're not apt to throw as many interceptions.

"And our line hasn't made many mistakes on running plays which keep some defensive man from busting through and hitting a ball carrier just as he's getting the ball."

But Devaney also points out that in that regard, the Huskers may not yet have faced a defense as good as Oklahoma's that they will meet on Thanksgiving Day.

"We're going to be facing the best defense we've seen this year," he said, "Not to mention the best offense."

The Husker coach points to experience as another factor in keeping mistakes to a minimum.

"Jeff Kinney is in his third year," Devaney notes "So is Jerry Tagge. Gary Dixon played two years of junior college ball before coming here and Johnny Rodgers is in his second year.

"Having that experience helps. The same is true of our receivers as of our running backs. Jerry List is starting for a second year and he was red shirted a year. Woody Cox had junior college experience before coming to Nebraska."

Still another factor, Devaney says, is the work of the assistant coaches.

"Our coaches don't just teach plays," he pointed out. "They also teach techniques.

"They work hard to make sure the ball carrier gets the ball in the right (proper) hand and that he knows when to bull his way and when he should run to daylight.

"Those are very fundamental things, but they're very important things and we work hard on them."

Devaney said offensive tackle Carl Johnson, who suffered a knee injury in the win over Kansas State last week, remains very doubtful as a performer in the contest with the Sooners.

"I think Carl Johnson is very doubtful despite his optimism," Devaney said

But he said Willie Harper, who is hampered with a slight shoulder injury, and Johnny Rodgers, suffering from a cold, should be ready.

"The problem with Harper is that he's missing work that he should be getting," Devaney said, referring to the Huskers' defensive preparations for the wishbone-T.

Both Harper and Rodgers were in sweat clothes Thursday.

Kickers In Top 10

Placekickers John Carroll of Oklahoma and Rich Sanger of Nebraska both rank in the top 10 in scoring by kicking this week, according to NCAA national statistics.

Carroll, averaging seven points per game, ranks third behind co-leaders Dana Coin of Michigan and Alberto Vitiello of Penn State, both averaging 7.1 points.

Sanger is 10th with a 6.1 average.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers ranks sixth in punt returning, averaging 15.9 yards per runback, and is 14th in pass receiving, averaging 4.5 catches per game.

Weight, Height Highlight Class C All-State Team

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

A quartet of interior linemen who average 217 pounds and an entire lineup which averages over 6-2 in height are the outstanding features of the 1971 Lincoln Star Class C high school all-state football team.

Plainview High tackle Bob Lingenfelter leads the way in both of the measurement departments, spreading 270 pounds over his 6-8 frame.

But nobody on the Class C mythical eleven is a midget. Grant center Alan Haenfler and Hastings St. Cecilia guard Dave Boeding are the "shorties" of the team at an even six feet.

Haenfler and 6-1½ Gretna back Ted Cox, not exactly small at 170 pounds, are the lightweights. From there on, in both height and weight, everything goes up until reaching the mammouth Lingenfelter.

In addition to the Plainview giant and Boeding, at 190 pounds, the interior line is completed by Randy Shada of Anselmo-Merna at 6-1 and 210, plus Bridgeport's Bob Benton, a 6-1½, 198-pound strongman.

The all-state ends are a pair of rangy, pass-catching bruisers. Both tip the scales at 200 pounds. Gibbon's Glen Lavington is 6-3, while Craig Wegner of North Loup-Scotia is an inch taller.

The explosive backfield combines speed and size. In addition to Cox there is David City's Bob Martin, a choice last fall after his junior season, at 6-1 and 188 pounds, Geneva's Dan Sorge (6-3, 185) and Randy Ennis of Valley, 6-2 and 205.

Another unusual feature of the Class C dream team is the fact that three of the members have a closer-than-normal relationship with their coach.

Grant center Haenfler and Gretna back Cox each plays for his father, while Shada, the Anselmo-Merna tackle, is coached by his brother.

Regarding the situation, each of the coaches echoed the sentiments of Gretna mentor Duane Cox who said, "Since I began coaching I have tried to treat every athlete the way I would like another coach to treat my own sons. So, they are no different than any other squad member.

"I also make it a point to leave the poor practice or game at school and not to overexpose or subject them to additional frustration at home over dinner. So far it has worked out well and I enjoy the assignment tremendously."

When opposing coaches sent in their all-state ballots, the votes for the linemen were full of phrases like, "Great blocker," "Outstanding speed and lateral movement" and "Big, tough, has desire."

Typical is Lingenfleter, who despite his size, has been timed in :05.1 for the 40-yard dash, recovered four fumbles, blocked three punts and as a tackle-eligible caught seven passes for 69 yards, including a pair of touchdowns.

Shada could handle the team's punting chores. He averaged 44 yards per boot on the season, with a 79-yarder on one attempt.

And the backfield is loaded with talent too. Cox, the only junior this year, completed one-half of his 142 passes for 1,135 yards. In addition he rushed for 598 more and was a defensive standout.

As the only repeater from a season ago, Martin was even more sensational in his final campaign. He carried 214 times for 1,387 yards, piling up 3,893 yards in his three-year career. This fall Martin tallied 24 touchdowns.

Sorge is another back with over 1,000 yards in total offense this fall. During his Geneva career he ran or passed for 38 touchdowns while leading the team defensively.

Ennis is another complete ball player. Like the others he was tough on defense. In addition, the bruising fullback rushed for 955 yards this fall and caught 15 passes to run his total to 1,165. Ennis tallied 17 touchdowns, kicked 12 extra points and a couple of field goals to score 124 points.

Redskins' Allen Hoping To Continue Mastery Of Cowboys

By United Press International

Washington coach George Allen must retain his whammy over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in order for the Redskins to keep the Eastern Division lead in the National Football Conference.

An Allen-coached team has never lost to Dallas. Allen met the Cowboys just twice in five years as Los Angeles Rams coach and beat Dallas both times. Earlier this season the 'Skins edged the Cowboys, 20-16, to take the division lead. They haven't been displaced since that Oct. 3 game.

Despite their half game lead and being host Sunday, Washington is a three-point underdog. Injuries to runinng backs Larry Brown and Charley Harraway put the Redskins in an offensive bind since they made up the bulk of Washington's running game. They are listed as doubtful starters, as is safety Richie Petitbon.

Allen hasn't had too much success lately with his quarterbacks and probably will alternate Sonny Jurgensen and Billy Kilmer in the driver's slot. Jurgensen showed some style in his first game since a preseason injury when he completed four of six passes in the one-point loss to Chicago last Sunday.

Coach Tom Landry used Roger Staubach to get Dallas moving the last two weekends and probably will go with him again, especially after his 176-yard passing and 90-yard running effort against Philadelphia last Sunday.

In other Sunday games, Miami is a 3-point pick over Baltimore, Minnesota is favored by 7 over New Orleans, San Francisco and Los Angeles are rated a toss-up, Cleveland is picked by 8 over New England, Pittsburgh by 4 over the New York Giants, the New York Jets by 7 over Buffalo, St. Louis by 7 over Philadelphia, Kansas City by 14 over Denver, Oakland by 14 over San Diego and Detroit vs. Chicago rated even.

Green Bay plays at Atlanta in the Monday night nationally televised game, with the Falcons 8 point picks.

Miami and Baltimore meet in the first of two clashes within a three-week stretch that may decide the Eastern Division title. Bob Griese came off a sick bed to pass Miami past Pittsburgh last weekend. All three Griese scoring strikes were to Paul Warfield. Baltimore managed a one-point win over the Jets after blocking an extra-point try and a field goal attempt.

Minnesota runs up against a New Orleans club that has been beating the brass off the top teams in the league. The Saints trounced Dallas, San Francisco and Los Angeles and held Oakland to a tie. The Vikings are the stingiest team in the National Football League with a 72-point yield. They have shut out three opponents this season, including Green Bay by 3-0 last Sunday.

Roman Gabriel tied a Ram record with 11 consecutive pass completions against Detroit as he hit on 17 of 22 passes for 179 yards and two touchdowns. John Brodie connected on 20 of 28 for San Francisco in the loss to New Orleans. He picked up 203 aerial yards and threw two TD passes.

Cleveland is in one of its worst slumps with four straight losses and hopes to use the Patriots as a springboard to victory. But the Browns hook up with an improved New England club that boasts two straight wins and a rookie All-American making headlines. Jim Plunkett had his best day against Buffalo with four TD passes last weekend.

Oakland is unbeaten in its last eight games after its season high 41-21 win over Houston. The Raiders also are primed for San Diego's John Hadi after setting a club interception record of 143 yards on four thefts.

Kansas City, a half game back of Houston in the AFC's Western Division, beat Denver, 16-3, earlier this year. The Broncs will have Steve Ramsey at quarterback in place of injured Don Horn, out for the season with a shoulder separation.

Blin Promises Ali Stronger Contest

Houston (UPI) — Jurgen Blin, a 28-year-old heavyweight from Hamburg, Germany, agreed Thursday to a 12-round fight in Zurich, Switzerland, Dec. 18 with Muhammad Ali and promised to give Ali a tougher battle than Buster Mathis.

Ali knocked Mathis down four times and won a unanimous 12-round decision in the Astrodome Wednesday night. It was Ali's 33rd victory in 34 fights.

Blin, a handsome, square-shouldered blond, has won 28 fights, lost eight and fought six draws.

Ali-Mathis Fight Nets High Gate

Houston (UPI) — The Muhammad Ali-Buster Mathis fight had a net gate of $400,000 Robert Arum of New York said Thursday.

Arum president of Top Rank, Inc., which handled the ancillary rights, said the net revenue for the telecast was $250,000, and the total live gate was $150,000.

Of the $400,000, Ali was guaranteed $300,000, and Mathis 15 per cent—or $60,000. That left a $40,000 profit.

Wadkins, Hooper Lead Azalea Open Tourney

. . . ROOKIE FIRES SEVEN-UNDER-PAR 64

Wilmington, N C (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, a brash and cocky 21-year-old rookie, fired a brilliant, seven-under-par 64 and tied Herb Hooper for the first round lead in the $35,000 Thursday Azalea Open Golf Tournament

Wadkins, a former national Amateur champion, and Hooper held a one-stroke lead over Buck Adams, a veteran club pro from Pinehurst, N.C., who had a 65.

Earl Fennell, a balding 39-year-old, and Len Thompson another rookie and one-time teammate of Wadkins' at Wake Forest, were next at 66, five under par on the 6,575-yard Cape Fear Country club course

Wadkins dropped out of Wake Forest earlier this year to turn pro while the 24-year-old Thompson, playing in his first pro event, was graduated from the same school two years ago

A group of seven followed at 67, headed by amateur Jay Simons, another Wake Forest student. The others were rookie Allen Miller, Jim Dent, Paul Bondeson, Paul Moran, Ted Hayes, and Tommy Sanderson.

Tom Weiskopf, the only one of this year's top 25 money winners competing in this relatively low money event, only managed to match par 71 in the warm, sunny weather. Most of the rest of the field was made up of second-line pros, those fighting for 1972 exemptions, and rookies.

Bluejay Cagers Ready For Intrasquad Game

Omaha — Creighton University's 1971-72 Bluejays put their wares on public display for the first time Friday in an 8 p m battle against a tough freshman crew at the Omaha Civic Auditorium

This is one of those years when a varsity victory cannot be taken for granted.

Coach Eddie Sutton has no seniors and only two veterans on his varsity team That inexperience plus lack of great height poses problems for Sutton and his staff Add to the picture a frosh team that is tougher than even the Jay staff had hoped, and the Friday battle becomes a toss-up

Al Lewis, lightening quick 6-3 guard, is the only returning regular for the varsity He will be joined by 6-7 center Gene Ellefson as the only ones who saw varsity action last season

A fine group of sophomores gives Creighton followers some hopes for an enjoyable varsity season. Sophs seeing action in the early going should be 6-6 Gene Harmon, 6-5 Ted Wuebben, 6-7 Ralph Bobik, and 5-11 Bimbo Pietro.

J B LeBlance, a 6-6 transfer from junior college ranks. 6-1 Richie Smith, 5-11 Marc Mirsky, and 6-5 Wayne Heinrich are the rest of the varsity and all should see considerable action

Frosh coach Jocko Ilcisin will call on a ranging crew of 6-8 Doug Brookins, 6-8 Wayne Groves, 6-5 Tom Anderson 6-5 Dave Terek, and 6-5 Charles Butler to start. Ilcisin also has Butler to start Ilcisin also has these prospects ready. John Forrey (6-1) Claude Brinson (6-3), Gerald Francis (6-1), Mike Scahill (5-10), and Dennis McDermott (5-11)

Paul Bryant Best Coach

Atlanta (UPI) — Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant, winner of more college football games than any other active coach and third on the all-time list, Thursday was named Southeastern Conference Coach of the Year by United Press International.

Bryant, whose current team has a 10-0 record and is ranked No 4 nationally, won by a substantial margin over runnerup Vince Dooley of Georgia in balloting by sportswriters and sportscasters in the seven-state SEC region.

Bryant had appeared to be fading after two sub-par (6-4, 6-5) seasons but "getting back down in the trenches" regained his touch this fall and now has only the Nov. 27 game with fifth-ranked, equally unbeaten Auburn standing between him and his fourth perfect season in 11 years.

Usual Retirement Age No Factor As Durocher Rehired By Cubs

Chicago (AP) — Doughty Leo Durocher, who reached the usual retirement age of 65 last summer, was rehired Thursday as manager for 1972 by the Chicago Cubs.

It gave "Leo the Lip" the last laugh in a flurry of recent rumors that he would be abandoned by Cub owner Phil Wrigley.

The foremost rumor centered on one of Leo's cronies of the old New York Giants, Whitey Lockman.

Even Ernie Banks, "Mr. Cub," hobbled the last few seasons with a bad knee, was mentioned prominently in a rumor which Wrigley quelled last month, announcing that Banks was too nice a guy for the job as manager.

"Ernie has such a beautiful reputation in baseball, it would be a shame to ruin it by making him a manager," said the 76-year-old chewing-gum magnate.

Durocher failed to bring the Cubs a pennant in six years as pilot, compiling a 430-379 record in that time. Last year, the team folded to a share of third place in the National League East with 83-79

The oust Durocher cry became so loud that Wrigley, on Sept 3, used a large paid advertisement in Chicago newspapers to tell fans and critics that the "dump Durocher" clique might as well give up.

Wrigley, at the same time, warned that any Cub players balking under Durocher's leadership would be found in "happier homes" this winter.

Devaney, NU Receive Gift

By The Associated Press

Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney Thursday accepted from Gov. J. J. Exon a large "Big Red" football made from carnations as a gift from the state of Colorado.

The presentation from Exon to Devaney and Cornhusker co-captains Jim Anderson and Jerry Tagge was made during a short ceremony at the governor's mansion.

The 1,000 carnations, most of them red with a few white ones, were a gift from Colorado Gov. John Love and the Colorado Flower Growers Association and were prepared in the form of a four-foot high and three-foot wide styrofoam football by the Nebraska Florists Association.

Devaney and the two co-captains decided to put it on display in the student union at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

When Exon commented that the football, which was red with the letter "N" on the sides in white flowers, didn't have a "No. 1" on it, Devaney's reply was "We'll take care of that."

Exon called the gift a "very fine gesture" and said it represented Colorado's claim to be one of the carnation capitols of the world

"People all over the state are sold on this team, not because of your record, but because of the fine young men who play on the team," Exon said

"Whether the Cornhuskers win or lose to Oklahoma next week" "you're still tops as far as we're concerned," Exon said

Money Panel Votes To Cut Forces In Europe

Washington (AP) — Carving $3.3 billion from President Nixon's defense budget, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved by one vote Thursday bringing 50,000 American troops home from Europe.

Chairman Alan Ellender, D-La., dismissed as "hogwash" a protest from Defense Secretary Melvin Laird that enforcing a 250,000-man limit on U.S. forces in Europe would irresponsibly damage the American defense position.

The committee approved 1972 defense spending of $70.2 billion, a figure that is $800 million less than the House-passed total and $3.3 billion less than the administration wanted.

Spy Cash Cut

The committee rejected, 14 to 10, another in a long series of moves to use the power of purse to force withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina and, among a number of other specific cuts, it voted to trim spending for military intelligence by $68.4 million. The House voted earlier to trim intelligence funds by an additional $181 million.

Ellender said the cuts will not affect national security in any manner and added: "We are confident the military can operate effectively with this huge sum."

Ellender noted the Nixon administration says the war is practically over in Vietnam and that the nation will not get involved in any more Vietnam-type conflicts.

"Therefore this is an opportune time to cut back unnecessary military spending," Ellender said, suggesting the savings be used to step up domestic programs in education, poverty and pollution.

14-13 Vote

Ellender said the recommendation troop cut in Europe, which was approved on a narrow 14-13 committee vote, also will not affect U.S. security.

"We simply do not need 300,000 American troops there any more," Ellender said. "Our allies must take on a larger share of the defense burden in Europe."

Ellender said the cuts were made even though the money needed for salaries and wages now accounts for 52% of the total Pentagon budget as compared to only 42% in 1968 when there were a million additional men and women in the armed forces.

The European withdrawal amendment has been sponsored unsuccessfully for years by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

In its present form it cuts off spending after June 15, 1972, for any troops in Europe in excess of 250,000.

Rehnquist's Associations Questioned

Washington (UPI) — Chairman James O. Eastland of the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday agreed to delay a vote and ask the FBI to determine if Supreme Court nominee William H. Rehnquist was ever a member of a right-wing political action group in Arizona.

The committee, which must approve the nominations of Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell Jr. before they are sent to the Senate floor for confirmation put off a vote until Tuesday.

Sen. Birch Bayh told reporters following an hour-long closed meeting that Eastland had agreed at his request to ask the FBI to question persons in Arizona about Rehnquist's alleged association with Arizonans for America, which Bayh described as a possible "precursor" of the John Birch Society.

The Justice Department said in a statement Wednesday that Rehnquist had never been a member of Arizonans for America.

Pentagon Newsroom Searched

Washington (AP) — The Defense Department acknowledged Thursday its security agents continued to conduct nighttime forays on the Pentagon press room with a rummage through newsroom desks, but it said this was a mistake and will not be repeated.

A spokesman said Daniel Z. Henkin, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, "was very distressed to know this happened." The spokesman said Henkin was told by the security people this "was an inadvertent check" and "will not happen again."

Reporters were given a similar assurance by Henkin several months ago but on arriving for work Wednesday cards were found on the desks of correspondents for Time magazine and the New York Daily News which said:

"An inspection of this office area by the Pentagon Counter-Intelligence Force revealed no violations of security regulations."

The Pentagon spokesman, Brig. Gen. Daniel James, said the Counter-Intelligence Force regularly checks all Pentagon offices to make sure safes are locked and no classified materials are left out overnight.

But reporters noted the press room is an unclassified area and they do not hold security clearances. They complained these after-hours inspections gave the Pentagon an opportunity to go through their notes and learn the names of contacts.

James said the counter-intelligence agents apparently failed to realize they were in the press room.

"If they can't figure out it's the press room," one reporter told James, "what kind of intelligence people are they?"

Union Station Selection Is A Surprise

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad expressed surprise Thursday that its Omaha Union Station has been listed as a national historical site.

A spokesman said the railroad was puzzled over the selection, since the station was built as recently as 1931 and there were many other stations with more historical value.

The station was listed as a historical site Wednesday by the National Park Service. It has been out of use since May 1 when the railroad dropped its passenger train service.

The station was nominated by the Nebraska State Historical Society because it is a "significant structure," director Marvin Kivett said.

Gain Evaporates In Stock Market

New York (AP) — Stock market prices sank as an early lead evaporated in Thursday's moderate trading.

The 3:30 p.m. EST Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 6.79 to 815.35. At one point it was ahead more than 3 points.

"The action we saw here today is a indicative of a market expressing its disappointment that some of its expectations that 1972 would be a strong year for corporate profits may not be borne out," said Monte Gordon, an analyst at Bache & Co.

Other analysts noted most investors were staying away from the market because of concern about Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic policies and the international monetary situation. They noted because of this the bargain hunting which prompted the early upswing dried up.

Gordon noted the market experienced its disappointment with corporate profit expectations Thursday in its negative response to mortgage investment issues.

An official of Continental Mortgage Investors said his company expected its earnings to fall short of year ago levels. The official blamed the decline on the great proliferation of new real estate investment-trust organizations. Analysts noted investors feared the earnings slowdown would be industry wide.

Mortgage investment stocks declined sharply in response to the prediction, occupying a large percentage of the most-active issues on the American Stock Exchange and also dropping on the New York Stock Exchange.

There were 92 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the New York Stock Exchange compared with 97 Wednesday. The biggest was 124,600 shares of S. W. Woolworth at 46, off 1.

The New York Stock Exchange Index of some 1,300 common stocks fell .39 to 50.78. Big Board volume was 13.02 million shares compared with 12.84 million shares Wednesday.

There were 491 advances and 878 declines out of 1,683 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 9 new yearly highs and 92 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 2.1 to 298.6, with industrials off 2.9, rails off 2.0, and utilities off .3.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dipped .72 to 92.13.

Metals, motors, mail order-retail were mixed. Rubber issues and aircrafts were up. All other stock categories were off.

Volume leader on the Big Board was C I Mortgage, off 2½ at 23.

American Stock Exchange prices also lost ground. The American price-change index slipped .18 to 23.92. Volume was 3.93 million shares compared with 2.84 million shares Wednesday. There were 269 advances and 570 declines out of 1,124 issues traded.

Corporate bonds were mixed, and governments were generally unchanged.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
